Handsomely Bound in Cloth. Full Library Size.

PRICE, 65 CENTS PER VOLUME. NET.....

CAPTAIN JACK LORIMER; or, The Young Athlete of Millvale High.

Jack Lorimer is a fine example of the all-around American high-school boy. His fondness for clean, honest sport of all kinds will strike a chord of sympathy among athletic youths.

JACK LORIMER'S CHAMPIONS; or, Sports on Land and Lake.

There is a lively story woven in with the athletic achievements, which are all right, since the book has been O.K'd by Chadwick, the Nestor of American sporting journalism.

JACK LORIMER'S HOLIDAYS; or, Millvale High in Camp.

It would be well not to put this book into a boy's hands until the chores are finished, otherwise they might be neglected.

JACK LORIMER'S SUBSTITUTE; or, The Acting Captain of the Team.

On the sporting side, the book takes up football, wrestling, and tobogganing. There is a good deal of fun in this book and plenty of action.

JACK LORIMER, FRESHMAN; or, From Millvale High to Exmouth.

Jack and some friends he makes crowd innumerable happenings into an exciting freshman year at one of the leading Eastern colleges. The book is typical of the American college boy's life, and there is a lively story, interwoven with feats on the gridiron, hockey, basketball and other clean, honest sports for which Jack Lorimer stands.

Uncle Wiggily's Picture Book

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Clothbound. 200 text pages. 32 Colored Illustrations. Price, $2.50. Net....

With a possible combination of 512 changes.

Uncle Wiggily's Picture Book is the latest volume by Howard R. Garis concerning the doings of Uncle Wiggily, the much-loved gentleman rabbit. But this volume is distinct and unique. No book like it was ever before published.

It is a book with "moving pictures," that is, it contains 32 colored illustrations that may be moved about from one story to another in the book. There are 32 stories that never before have appeared in print, each tale having to do with Uncle Wiggily and one or more of the characters familiar in the Uncle Wiggily Bedtime and Animal Stories. Each story is illustrated by two black and white illustrations made by Lansing Campbell, the Uncle Wiggily artist. In addition, there are two colored illustrations for each story. The unique character of the book is in these colored pictures, and the manner in which they are to be used. Each of the 32 pictures will fit in and illustrate each and every one of the 32 stories, thus making a possible combination of 512 different arrangments. It is a book of which the child will never tire.

Instead of the colored pictures being inserted in the book in the usual manner, they are placed loose in an envelope on the back cover. About at the end of each story, where the climax occurs, are two blank pages, the centers being cut out to form a frame for a picture. As the child reads the story and reaches the climax, he wishes to see what happens to Uncle Wiggily. Reaching to the back envelope ANY ONE OF THE 32 PICTURES may be selected at random and placed in the frame. It will properly fit the story being read, or any other story in the book. One side of the colored picture shows what happened to Uncle Wiggily. On the reverse side is a scene showing how he escapes from his enemies, to make the story end happily, as all stories for children should end.

Uncle Wiggily's Story Book

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Cloth, 16 full-page Ill. in color, 29 in black and white, by Campbell. $2.50. Net....

Nearly every event in the life of a child, from the first tooth that needs pulling, to the first tumble and fall, is told of in connection with some delightfully imagined happening involving Uncle Wiggily. There are little lessons for the children in contentment, happiness, kindness to animals, bravery and self sacrifice. To a child, getting lost or cutting a finger is an event of great moment, and it is just such events as these around which the stories are constructed.

THE VERY LATEST WORDS HAVE BEEN INCLUDED

Aerodrome, Aeroplane, Banzai, Black-hand, Camorra, Dope, Frazzle, Joy-rider, Molly-coddle, Push-ball, Nature-faker, sleeping-sickness, Taxi-cab and many others that have come into use since the last revision of the older dictionaries.

WITH USEFUL APPENDICES ON

Terms and Measures used in Physics, Engineering, etc. Foreign Words, Phrases, and Sayings; Abbreviations and Contractions; Forms of Address; Moneys of the World; Weights and Measures; Principal Mechanical Movements Illustrated.

The publishers believe that they have succeeded in producing

The Best and Most Compact Low-Priced Lexicon Obtainable

It combines a judicious condensation of bulkier dictionaries with the most modern meaning and pronunciation of English words. Special efforts were made in the orthography to give the best usage of the United States, and where two spellings were almost equally recognized they are both given.

The system adopted in indicating pronounciation is by respelling, the key being always printed in the lower margin of the pages.

The uncertainties arising from the conjugation of irregular verbs, the plurals or irregular nouns, etc., have been provided for in the different form shown in connection with the words to which they belong. Thus the forms cropping, cropped, and cropt are given with the different verbs to crop; dying and died with die; the plurals of the noun die, i. e., dies and dice, are plainly distinguished; with dictum is shown its plural dicta, etc.

The appendices will prove especially valuable, in particular that one in which the latest terms commonly used in Electricity, Engineering, Physics, etc., are tabulated and explained at length, and the pictorial appendix which illustrates movements and devices in mechanics.

Finally, the publishers believe that the clearness of the definitions, the careful discrimination of the senses of the words, the large amount of matter the book contains, together with its typographical excellence, combine features which will appeal to the American who has use for a condensed lexicon.

A Book That Should be in Every American Home.

It is of good value to the historian of the future to have this intimate story of the most interesting character of the time from his intimate friend. Roosevelt was one of the most human of men and the cold facts of his career failed to do him justice. The author has happily met this need as we have Roosevelt as he was. This book is excellently written and deserves to be widely read.

The Century Co.'s New Books

TWO SHALL BE BORN. By Marie Conway Oemler, author of "Slippy McGee," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Colored wrapper and a frontispiece.
Price $1.90

As readers will remember, Mrs. Oemler's delightful novel, "Slippy McGee," was the love-story of a burglar—and a lovable burglar he was too. "Two Shall Be Born" is the love-story of a New York traffic policeman—and a most memorable and engaging cop he is too. The new story is set in New York City with plot threads extending to foreign countries. Upon "Two Shall Be Born" Mrs. Oemler has bestowed a full measure of that charm which has endeared her to a multitude of readers.

It is style that makes a book literature or even a best seller, and it is primarily to those elements that constitute her style that Mrs. Oemler owes the thousands of readers who welcome her novels. It is her whimsical humor, her unflagging gaiety of spirit, her quick sympathy for those in distress, her keen detection and instant appreciation of the brave and the generous and fine in men and women—these are the elements that color and give flavor to all her stories. And that is why her readers, whether they take time to analyze their impression or not, are stimulated and gratified by contact with the author's personality as they go delightedly with her from page one to that page marked "The End." "Two Shall Be Born" is a novel to read and to recommend.

OUR REPUBLIC: A Brief History of the American People. By S. E. Forman, Ph.D., author of "The American Democracy," etc. Royal 8vo, 900 pages. Illustrated.
Price $5.00

This is a book ripe in scholarship, modern in treatment, stimulating in interest. It is a history that even the busy man and woman will find time to finish.

Here between the covers of a single volume of comfortable size is the whole story of America told for the general reader in a clear and entertaining way.

Beginning with the arrival of the first white men upon these shores and ending with the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, the drama moves straight on, unfolding itself even as it was unfolded to the eyes of men in the passing years.

The narrative is not of the trumpet and drum variety, nor does the soldier or the politician always hold the center of the stage. We read of toilers, scholars, inventors, captains of industry, and captains of labor, as well as of statesmen and warriors. The central theme of the book, its motif, so to say, is the rise of the American people. What is the story of that mighty Westward Movement that carried American civilization across the continent? Through what stages did our commerce and industry pass while they were moving to the attainment of their present stupendous proportions? By what processes were the little settlements that huddled along the American coast in the seventeenth century transformed into the greatest democracy under the sun?

In short, in "Our Republic," the forces that operated to build up the American nation are so interpreted and their operation so described that the citizen reader is enabled better to understand how the world around him came to be what it is.

MASTER SKYLARK (Holiday Edition). By John Bennett, author of "Barnaby Lee," etc. Square quarto, 322 pages. Colored wrapper, 8 full-page illustrations in color and numerous decorative figures in black and white by Henry Pitz. Price $3.50

This story of Shakespeare's times, in which both he and Queen Elizabeth appear, has taken its place as one of those classics for young people which grown-ups also delight to read. It belongs in the class of books whose position is settled and whose interest is timeless. The story and its style are as appealing today as they were over twenty years ago, when the book was first published.

"Master Skylark" has won its place alongside Kipling's "Jungle Books," Howard Pyle's "Jack Ballister's Fortunes" and five or six others that constitute the best books for young people ever written in the English language. It has been translated into several languages and has been dramatized. It has been put on innumerable especially selected lists of juveniles year after year. It is today more popular than it ever was, and its popularity is steadily increasing.

"Master Skylark" has fairly won the splendid new dress in which it now appears—has deserved the fine paper on which the holiday edition is printed, the larger type, the eight full-page illustrations in color, the many black and white designs at the beginning and end of each chapter and other decorative figures by Henry Pitz.

THE BOOK OF NOBLE DOGS. By Estelle Ross. 12mo, 300 pages. Illustrated. Price $2.00

This is a book for every person who loves dogs—and who doesn't love them? It is rich in anecdote about the dog friends of famous men. It treats this favorite subject from a new angle, giving the stories of the celebrated dogs of history, literature and mythology. It tells about dogs who were the friends of kings and the alleged familiar spirits of great magicians and indeed about all the most outstanding dogs that have appeared in prose and poetry.

The author, herself an ardent admirer of man's best animal friend, has devoted herself to the collection of the material for the book and presents it with a sympathy and eloquence that are irresistible. It is full of effective narrative, humorous and pathetic anecdote, sidelights on other times and other manners. If one needed any corroborative evidence to reinforce his affection for and interest in dogs, this account of memorable dogs of the past would be invaluable support as well as fascinating reading. It will become a classic of dog lore.

WINTERGREEN. By Janet Laing. 12mo, 303 pages. Colored wrapper and a frontispiece. Price $1.75

This is one of the jolliest, most refreshing love stories we have published in a long, long time. To compare it with other books, it is a good deal like "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage-Patch" and "Daddy Long-Legs." To compare it with the comedies on the stage that every audience loved, it is a good deal like "When Bunty Pulls the Strings" and Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." It is laughter and tears and then more laughter; and all the time an absorbing plot involving a double love-story carries the reader delightfully on.

Not one bit of the plot are we going to give away. The reader will want it to come in all freshness from the printed page. All we shall say is that the story is set in a little Scotch village on the rocky seashore, old and clean and individual; and that the characters include two amazing young couples and a marvelous cook—a cook as wise as Solomon, as cunning as Machiavelli, as energetic as Napoleon, as tender-hearted as Dickens—and a cook whose dishes are divine.

Read "Wintergreen" and you'll give it to at least a dozen people. It is a story we must thank England for.

THE LOVE-STORY OF ALIETTE BRUNTON. By Gilbert Frankau, author of "Peter Jameson," etc. 12mo, 487 pages. Colored wrapper. Price $2.00

A powerful dramatic novel which has had a remarkable success (both popular and with the critics) in England, where over twenty thousand copies were sold within a few weeks.

It is a love-story full of passion and fire, dealing primarily with the interplay of emotion between, first, a fine woman who has unwittingly given to a lover the heart which her early faithless and always merely sensuous and possessive husband has never won, and who before long follows the leadings of that heart openly and honestly, leaving her home; second, the lover, who is a "coming" barrister of the type that in ordinary circumstances would never dream of defying any item of the social code; and, third, the husband, whose hurt self-love and baffled desire lead him to refuse to divorce his wife—thus keeping the pair of lovers outside the social law, outside even the law of the land.

There is in the book humor, sophistication, action, incident—and there is a real question, a vital human problem, pulling at the heart-strings and compelling more than ordinary feeling about the book, as well as interest in it. No wonder England read this novel avidly; America is sure to do so as well.

FOOD PRODUCTS FROM AFAR: A Popular Account of Fruits and Foodstuffs from Foreign Lands. By E. H. S. Bailey, author of "Sanitary and Applied Chemistry," etc., and H. S. Bailey. 8vo, 285 pages. Over 50 illustrations. Price $3.00

Spices from the Zantee Islands, macaroni from the mills around Naples, oils from Italy and Spain, tea from Japan and China, cocoa and coffee and bananas from Latin-America—little do we realize how much we owe of the variety and flavor and quantity of our foods to other lands. In this thoroughly accurate and altogether popular book two food experts, both chemists of high standing, present all manner of curious and important facts for every reader interested in things about him as well as for those especially interested in what we eat.

"Food Products from Afar" is written for the general reader, and no special knowledge of botany, chemistry or other science is needed to understand easily all its fascinating contents.

THE WIND BLOWETH. By Donn Byrne, author of "Messer Marco Polo," etc. 12mo, 325 pages. 8 illustrations by George Bellows. Price $2.00

In his "Messer Marco Polo" Mr Byrne created what James Branch Cabell called "a very magically beautiful book." "The Wind Bloweth" is also a very magically beautiful story, and in some respects a more splendid achievement even than "Messer Marco Polo."

There is Uncle Alan who went with Franklin and cared little for the great things they did, since they did not reach the Pole; there is Uncle Robin who "had read every book" and was famed afar for his wisdom; there is the strange inimical mother of Shane, whose "heart had been hard to him, and him at her breast"; there is the cold wife the young sailorman married, with her greedy ancient mother; there is the woman the young widower found at Marseilles, beautiful of heart and soul and body, and for him full of a strange wise love, who must die for her love of him, since she had not kept her life clean, waiting for him; there is the very sweet and warm and childish Druse woman he married at Beirut, and the uncommon way in which he lost her to a crippled Arab wrestler; the fair northern woman of Buenos Ayres—then, Granya, home, the Glens of Antrim, wisdom, peace.

ATOLLS OF THE SUN. By Frederick O'Brien, author of "White Shadows in the South Seas," "Mystic Isles of the South Seas," etc. 8vo, 500 pages. Profusely illustrated. Price $5.00

Having recently returned from his third visit to the lonely islands of the line. Mr. O'Brien now writes his third book on the beautiful lands and the fascinating peoples of the far South Seas—"Atolls of the Sun." It has in rich measure all those elements that made his "White Shadows" and "Mystic Isles" such extraordinary successes.

"Atolls of the Sun" is not only an absorbing record of travel and a thrilling narrative of adventure; it is also a book of humor, of kindly human philosophy, of strikingly dramatic situations enough to endow a dozen novels. And it is all presented in an alluringly musical prose which has caught color and cadence from the people and places of that joyous Polynesia so loved by the author.

The new book deals with those blazing coral wreaths upon the equatorial Pacific known as the Dangerous Archipelago, which are among the most amazing habitations of man. Mr. O'Brien spent months among the Paumotuans taking part in their daily lives

Moreover, in the new book he tells of further adventures in the Marquesas Islands, and the reader meets again those unforgettable native figures—Exploding Eggs, Vanquished Often, Daughter of the Pigeon, Seventh Man Who Wallows in the Mire, and many others who first appeared in his "White Shadows in the South Seas."

THE REST HOLLOW MYSTERY. By Rebecca N. Porter. 12mo, 301 pages. Colored wrapper and a frontispiece. Price $1.75

This is an absorbing baffling mystery story with a refreshingly original plot. It is set in a great deserted mansion of an eastern potentate of wealth in southern California—the kind of place in which, as one of the characters says, "anything could happen." And many strange, fascinating things do happen there. Romance, mystery, crime, wealth, poverty, vengeance, all these enter the great mansion and affect the lives of the surprising people there.

The central figure of "The Rest Hollow Mystery" is an extraordinary young man with whom every reader will sympathize. A cold-blooded adventurer, two clever women, a famous scientist and chance itself play a game with his life and happiness.

The characters will impress themselves upon the memory of the reader, for the author has given them the courage, the sordidness, the convincing touch of authentic human nature.

WHEN THE WEST WAS YOUNG. By Frederick R. Bechdolt. 12mo, 300 pages. Frontispiece. Price $2.00

This is a book of true stories dealing with the West when it was young and really wild and woolly—and really heroic. And Mr. Bechdolt presents his material in a colorful style of unusual dramatic power admirably adapted to the material he is handling. These stories of the Old-Time West are as fascinating as the most absorbing fiction, only they all happen to be true.

The author states that "painstaking investigation" on his part "has verified these stories as they stand." The heroes of the tales are historical characters—locally if not nationally; most of them would be known to Westerners of a past generation.

As a collection they give a life-like picture of the West that is no more. One story, "Tombstone," shows the founding of a frontier town; another, "The Overland Mail," the opening of direct communication with the coast. The characters of all the tales are prospectors, Indians, gamblers, cowmen, marshals and sheriffs.

There has been no attempt, says the author, to gloss over ugly features or to idealize the actors in these dramas. There was no need for such an attempt; before the fences came there was but little of the sordid in this the most romantic part of America.

WEST! By Charles Alden Seltzer, author of "The Two-Gun Man," etc. 12mo, 312 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.90

"West!" is a story of action and color, with an engaging love theme and a conclusion that will please a host of new readers as well as the author's many old friends.

To the thousands who have read Mr. Seltzer's stories of the West the announcement of this new story will be an event of the first importance. Mr. Seltzer has never caught so alluringly between book covers the spell of the open plains nor portrayed so successfully the rugged men and splendid women who live and work there.

When Josephine Hamilton went West to visit her friend Betty, she took with her certain treasured convictions which she felt should govern all human conduct. But the ways of the wild region to which she had come were not in accordance with her ways, and the people there had firm opinions of their own.

She went to teach and she was taught. "Satan" Lattimer, ruthless, handsome, fascinating, who deserved his nickname, taught her some things, and there were others also from whom she learned. She discovered, among other things, that the ways of the West are ways of necessity and are not to be changed overnight.

SOME STRANGE CORNERS OF OUR COUNTRY. (New and Enlarged Edition.) By Charles F. Lummis, author of "Pueblo Indian Folk Stories," etc. 8vo, 300 pages. 32 illustrations from photographs. Price $3.50

The Southwest is at last coming into its deserts as a picturesque pleasure place for travelers and for those who travel by imagination and who choose only the most interesting places to go. New Mexico now has several colonies of artists—those free spirits who, disregarding habit and custom, go where they find the beauty for which they are seeking. Tourists are following fast. An Indian corn dance now will have as spectators people from every part of the world.

One of the best books ever written on the colorful sun-drenched Southwest was Lummis's "Some Strange Corners of Our Country." He spent months going over the country, and has studied it and its people and their manners, customs and literature for years. He started in a year or so ago to revise the book; he has ended by writing virtually a new one. The text for this revised edition has been all re-set, and new plates have been made for the illustrations. There is in the revised and enlarged edition more text and more pictures than in the original, and it is a much handsomer volume within and without.

SENTINELS ALONG OUR COAST. By F. A. Collins, author of "The Wireless Man," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Illustrated. Price $2.00

America has the biggest Lighthouse Service in the world; and it needs a great service to guard its 48,000 miles of coastline. The ancient battle with the waters has lost nothing of its romance. The life at countless points of danger in many lonely stations is crowded with adventure. The story of the Lighthouse Service, whether on the Atlantic or Pacific seaboards, in the Great Lakes, on the Mississippi, in the Philippines, or wherever it is conducted under the Stars and Stripes, is here told in a most readable style by the author.

Mr. Collins does not concern himself with the military side of coast defence; he writes of the men and machines who toil to make safe the passage of all vessels to and from and along our coasts.

The aids to navigation are everywhere becoming more numerous and efficient. Many dangers of the sea which have been dreaded for centuries are passing. The new radio compass and telephone safeguard as never before the lives of those who go down to the sea in ships.

"Sentinels Along Our Coast" is an absorbing book for any reader. The book is generously and helpfully illustrated.

SEA WRACK. By Vere Hutchinson. 12mo, 300 pages. Colored wrapper. Price $1.75

The ocean itself is one of the characters of this remarkable English novel. As in those masterpieces of Thomas Hardy, the natural environment of the characters or some extraordinary part of the environment plays an important part in the course of the story. "Sea Wrack" is a powerful love story in which are combined keen characterization, rich personality, fine and poignantly felt writing, and a setting strangely alive and memorable.

The scene is the northeast coast of England, where the land knows all the movements of the sea, and where the sea lashes or caresses the land. One day, on that coast, a boy baby lashed to a spar is thrown by the sea into the arms of big farmer Swinsco. The farmer has already adopted another baby, but he adopts this gift of the sea to be a foster-brother to the other boy.

The story is mainly that of these two extraordinary boys—growing up, loving, scheming, fighting, with the gigantic sea ever just beyond the human figures. The reader will follow the two brothers with breathless interest to the surprising conclusion.

SIDELIGHTS ON AMERICAN LITERATURE. By Fred Lewis Pattee, author of "A History of American Literature Since 1870," etc. 12mo, 342 pages. Price $2.00

This is a book of unlabored judgments—literary obiter dicta—on an interesting group of figures in American literature, ranging all the way from Philip Freneau to H. L. Mencken. And the style is even more easy, chatty and delightful than "A History of American Literature Since 1870," which achieved a real popular success upon its publication several years ago. Dr. Pattee's judgments will surprise and shock not a few readers, but what he has to say will stimulate every reader.

He analyzes the O. Henry craze and gives an estimate of that author quite different from the now conventional opinion. As for H. L. Mencken, perhaps the most influential of present-day American critics of books, Dr. Pattee appreciates his intelligence and his deliberately shocking methods but he will not be seduced by them. He diagnoses the case of Jack London, who thought of himself as a realist and was actually an extreme idealist; he revitalizes the almost forgotten Philip Freneau. There are chapters also on William Cullen Bryant, a frustrated poet; on Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, "recorder of the New England decline"; on the tragedy of Poe's "Ulalume," etc.

SHOUTS AND MURMURS: Echoes of a Thousand and One First Nights. By Alexander Woollcott, Dramatic Critic of The New York Times; Lecturer on Dramatic Criticism at New York University. 12mo, 300 pages. Price $2.00

Here are adventures among playwrights and players recorded by one who has heroically attended a thousand first nights in New York, London and Paris and who has brought back from them not merely his impressions of the plays themselves, but more often the amusing and dramatic and touching stories of how they came to be written and produced. Here are tales of failure and success and aspiration, tales whispered in the wings, from which a good deal of theatre wisdom might be gleaned by those who have a hopeful eye on the stage door. It is a book with more than one hero—Eugene O'Neill, perhaps, or Barrie, or Charles Chaplin. And it is catholic, for on its stage you will find not only Maude Adams but Elsie Janis, not only the Barrymores but Frank Tinney. Mr. Woollcott is the lecturer on dramatic criticism at New York University. As correspondent of "The Stars and Stripes" at the American front he had two aisle seats to the war. And he is best known throughout the country as author of that column which appears in the New York Times every Sunday—"Second Thoughts on First Nights."

THREE BLACK BAGS. By Marion Polk Angellotti, author of "The Firefly of France," etc. 12mo, 375 pages. Colored wrapper and a frontispiece. Price $1.75

Here is the latest of the author's fascinating mystery stories, this time set in France and Germany though many of the chief characters are Americans. There is always a breathlessly rapid movement in Miss Angellotti's stories, and here again she swiftly carries the reader in delighted suspense through plot and counterplot, through dangers innumerable and on to a most surprising and yet satisfactory conclusion. A beautiful and resourceful American girl is at the center of the plot, and the love theme throughout is prominent and handled with Miss Angellotti's usual finesse. It is a remarkably appealing story.

The thousands who read Miss Angellotti's "The Firefly of France" and saw it as represented in motion pictures, will welcome this newest love-mystery romance of France and Germany. She has herself been all over the ground covered in "Three Black Bags," a fact which helps explain that extraordinary impression of actuality which adds so much to the interest of the novel.

LETTERS TO A DJINN. By Grace Zaring Stone. 12mo, 258 pages. Price $1.75

This is a fascinating narrative giving the reader the color and flavor of alluring, romantic, far-away places in the Pacific—Tahiti, Malaya, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand. It is a series of letters with the charm of intimacy, the stimulus of spirited dialogue, and the carefree style of a jolly correspondent. A charming love story develops merrily as the letters fly back and forth across the world. Things happen in the tropics: one eats pomegranate seeds, breathes the odor of nutmeg blossoms in the moonlight, one loves, sees paradise, knows that life is primitive and that civilization is an empty farce—particularly if one is only twenty and very emotional.

The writer of the letters printed in the book appears as a sort of woman-errant, a young and attractive American girl, on an adventure of rescue; she is to bring from Singapore a sick woman to her family in Australia. Her letters are addressed to a confidant in New York who, she humorously imagines, appears before her as a djinn with good counsel whenever she is in trouble.

The writer reveals unusual charm and all sorts of happy traits—keen observation, adventurous courage, a subtle humor.

THE SHAKESPEARE GARDEN. By Esther Singleton, author of "A Daughter of the Revolution," etc. 8vo, 300 pages. 40 illustrations. Price $3.00

A beautiful book that will be prized by readers interested in flowers and gardens, in the quaint and unusual and in Shakespeare's times in England.

Notwithstanding the enormous literature that exists on all subjects pertaining to Shakespeare, no adequate book has heretofore been written on the gardens and horticulture of his day.

Miss Singleton, who has been all her life a devoted student of the great Elizabethan, has spent several years in the preparation of this volume. In it the general reader will learn that the horticulture of Shakespeare's day was in a high state of development. Part I of the book is devoted to the history and evolution of the small enclosed garden of the medieval castle into the Garden of Delight; the Elizabethan herbalists and horticulturalists; and the new flowers of the day. Part II describes the flowers mentioned in Shakespeare's plays, together with much quaint flower-lore gathered from various sources. Part III offers practical suggestions for a Shakespeare garden.

The many charming illustrations are from photographs made especially for this work. The book is furnished with a subject-index.

THE SOCIAL TREND. By Edward Alsworth Ross, Professor of Sociology in the University of Wisconsin, author of "Changing America," etc. 12mo, 235 pages. Price $1.75

One of the most readable, stimulating, inspiring and least dry of any of today's writers upon sociological subjects, Dr. Ross has gathered together a remarkable group of essays on various contemporary currents of life and thought in America.

The amount of enlightenment, of sudden penetration, or re-grouping of ideas, which this writer can give to his readers measures his value to them as much as his wide experience and long observation of the social field in many lands. He has, in this volume, touched upon familiar topics with which all thoughtful minds are concerned; to each he has given, in his candor, his clarity of vision, a fresh and deeply suggestive aspect. He has found something new and of real importance to say upon the menace of migrating peoples, on birth-rate and death-rate, on women in their new economic position, on politics, social service, prohibition, government, lawyers, the spirit of service, newspapers, dismissal wages, advertising and war.

Dr. Ross is always as sincere as he is interesting and racy, and these papers have that genuine value that belongs to eagerly interested and carefully weighed comment by an expert in social observation.

DOG HEROES OF MANY LANDS. By Sarah Noble Ives. 12mo, 277 pages. Colored wrapper and 12 illustrations. Price $1.75

This artist, illustrator, writer, loves dogs and appreciates them. She loves them for that utterly generous devotion to some human being which is the leading trait of practically every dog.

She loves also the individual dog, each with his own peculiar whimsies, crotchets, splendid enthusiasms or delicate reticencies that reveal an actual character, as much in a dog as in a man.

These tales are taken from many sources; but all are true. Some of the incidents were found first in the newspapers, in "Country Life in America," in "Our Animal Friends." Whatever the diversity of heroes or of circumstance, there is a unity in the stories—each tells how a dog-hero performed some difficult act of devotion from sheer affection for the human being he had elected to place in that inviolate shrine of every worthy dog which holds but one master or one mistress.

We believe this fascinating and stirring book is destined to be a well-beloved favorite of boys and girls.

WHISPERING SAGE. By Harry Sinclair Drago and Joseph Noel. 12mo, 304 pages. Colored wrapper and a frontispiece. Price $1.75

An absorbing love story of the Western sage-brush country that a lot of people are going to receive with enthusiasm. It has strong plot-interest, swift movement, suspense, and a good deal more than the usual feeling of real people, real life, real concern for the fate of genuine characters. They aren't marionettes who have only to advance the plot by the use of a limited number of standardized gestures and a limited amount of conventional dialogue.

The atmosphere of the plains of Nevada, too, is put over with a skill that knows how to impose its desirable illusion upon the reader. One can hear and smell the sage in the wind and the sun.

The main theme is a fight for water-rights, while Basque sheepmen, an interesting element of our Southwestern population that have not entered American fiction to any great extent, are introduced. There are cowboys also and other characters who are interested in cows and scorn sheep.

The authors know intimately the background of their story, and the reader will feel that he knows the characters of "Whispering Sage" when he has reached "The End."

FIVE NIGHTS AT THE FIVE PINES. By Avery Gaul. 12mo, 280 pages. Colored wrapper. Price $1.75

Would you or would you not spend five nights in an old house on Cape Cod where "at night the foot of Something goes up and down the stairs"?

But this is not merely the tale of a haunted house. It is the history of Mattie, whose last name was taken from a ship; a woman who lived a strange and romantic life shut off from the world in a sea captain's mansion at Star Harbor. Her story is developed through a sequence of psychic events which occur on five successive nights.

Through the book runs the sound of the sea and the sand blown from the wind-swept dunes, and before we have read far we come to know intimately those peculiar and lovable characters who are a part of the Cape Cod atmosphere; Judge Bell, who attends seances; The Winkle-Man and the Town Crier; Mrs. Dove who does washing for the summer people; and Jezebel, the psychic cat.

The publishers promise you that the book contains no problem and no propaganda, and that any one of the Five Nights at the Five Pines will be enough to take your mind off your troubles.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BIRD LIFE: A Popular Account of Its Economic Significance and Conservation. By George Inness Hartley. 12mo, 300 pages. Illustrated. Price $2.00

An astonishing revelation of the importance of bird life to human life this book will prove to most readers; it covers the subject fully in all its interesting ramifications and in many novel aspects.

To the average city-bred person the place of the bird in nature is just the one to which the esthetic value of its song and plumage entitle it; the farmer, who actually has the song and plumage to enjoy, expresses his attitude mainly by shot-guns and scare-crows and bits of rag on bush and tree to frighten winged thieves away.

As a matter of fact, birds are of supreme importance in that economy of nature which enables man to be fed—the stomachs of even the rascal birds prove when examined that they do more good by destroying enormous quantities of insects than harm of any kind. Birds also spread plant life, including forests; and they act as scavengers.

All this Mr. Hartley treats, while sections follow on domesticated fowl; on pigeons, market and homing; on the training of wild birds; on birds as food; on feathers and the feather industries; on guano; on birds and game; and the history of their protection and conservation.

MUMMERS IN MUFTI. By Philip Curtiss. 12mo, 325 pages. Colored wrapper and frontispiece. Price $1.75

A love-story with laughs in it.

Mr. Curtiss is well and favorably known for his humorous short fiction in the magazines; and this full-sized novel, as delightfully whimsical as his extraordinarily popular short stories, will be welcomed heartily by a reading public which gets all too little of laughter and capricious fancy in its novels. Mr. Curtiss is an authentic humorist and a gifted story-teller.

"Mummers in Mufti" could be called a story of theatrical life, though the central figure is neither an actor nor a playwright and though it is not a study of tense ambition, the whole scene being laid far from Broadway. It is, however, a picture of a musical comedy on tour.

The central figures are a wealthy young man of the almost vanished New England aristocracy, a pure relic of the Victorian age, who to his own huge amazement suddenly finds himself the owner of a whole "production" and the manager of a pretty, temperamental young woman who is playing the soubrette role. The story is romance, a kind of romance which finds its enjoyment in constantly touching realism rather than in soaring completely away from the actual world.

THE REIGN OF RUBBER. By William C. Geer. 8vo, 400 pages. Illustrated. Price $3.00

Few people realize how much modern mankind depends upon rubber in its thousand and one forms or how interesting is its long history. This book was written to fill a real need.

"The Reign of Rubber" traces the fascinating history of rubber from the time of its discovery in crude form down to the present day. It tells the story of vulcanization, that union of crude rubber and sulphur which makes available the valuable properties of rubber. It tells how the seed of rubber trees were taken from South American forests to England and then transplanted in Ceylon, and the beginning there of the great rubber plantations which now promise to supply most of mankind's rubber needs. It shows how cotton is the third necessity in rubber manufacturing, ranking with the crude rubber and sulphur. The author then traces the uses to which it is put and the needs it fills, from the humble rubber rings without which domestic preserving is impossible to the huge rubber tires of trucks as big as railroad cars. The author concludes with a forecast of the future of rubber.

THE WONDER BOOK OF CHEMISTRY. By Jean-Henri Fabre, author of "The Story-Book of Science," etc. Translated from the French by Florence C. Bicknell. 8vo, 384 pages. Illustrated. Price $2.50

The infallible delightfulness of Fabre's writings is sustained in this difficult task of making a book of elementary chemistry interesting to the point of being exciting. He has made the wonders of the physical world, its composition, combinations, mutations, a story-book that every active-minded child will receive with enthusiasm and count as one of the great initiations of his life. And, as he always does in his classics for young people, the great French scientist provides in easily understood language a great deal of authoritative information which grown-ups will be glad to have.

Two little boys—the same that Uncle Paul teaches the wonders of "Animal Life in Field and Garden" and to whom he tells the tales of "The Story-book of Science"— are his pupils in simple, informal talks on chemistry and, as usual, Fabre has made the device effective and charming.

Uncle Paul proceeds by allowing the boys to discover and reason out such steps as they can, a method which not only gives human interest to the young reader but also forces him to use his own powers of reasoning.

Altogether this is one of those rare books which should be a permanent and a primary classic for young people—and a book not to be scorned by grown-ups.

THE STORY OF COPPER. By Watson Davis, C. E. 8vo, 300 pages. Illustrated. Price $3.00

"The Story of Copper" is authoritative in subject-matter and extremely non-technical in style. A shining trolley wire, the nameplate on the door, a penny spent for the daily newspaper will mean more to you after reading it. Copper, brass and bronze are such intimate parts of our daily life that you should know more about them. Copper wires carry talk, non-rusting brass pipes bring water and copper roofs keep succeeding generations dry for centuries.

"The Genesis of Copper" is the chapter heading that tells of copper's creation; there is an intimate story of copper's junior partners, with whom it alloys. How man wins copper from the earth is told; and how he plants it again. A future archeologist may consider our subways, conduits and skyscrapers richer copper mines than the ones we work today.

"The Story of Copper" is another of the non-technical but well-founded Century books on such subjects as chemistry, rubber, lighting, etc., which have proved tremendously popular. The American reading public wants to know about things.

OUR MEDICINE MEN. By K———, M.D. 12mo, 250 pages. Illustrated. Price $2.00

A brilliant exposé of the pompous pretensions and dangerous mistakes of the medical profession, by an eminent member who has made a special study of its actual practices.

There is no such thing as a science of medicine. The scientific pretensions of the doctors are ridiculous. Medical education as at present carried on is inefficient and wasteful. Post-mortem investigations should be general and compulsory so that mistakes of doctors may be exposed. If accountability for doctors' errors could be enforced, perhaps the morale of the medical profession might be raised to the level of the old-time general practitioner.

It is in this way that this anonymous but veritable M.D., for whose professional standing his publishers vouch, writes of his fellow M.D.'s, and he writes in a style as brilliant and as sharply clear as his statements are shockingly surprising. His method is not heavy and statistical and labored and exhaustive. He knows his subject so well that he can be at once brief and entirely adequate. Do not fear that his style is foggy and thick and difficult with technical terms: he is too much of an enemy of pomposity and pretension among doctors to write that way. "Our Medicine Men" is a book that will arouse no end of discussion.

THE CRUISE OF THE HIPPOCAMPUS. By Alfred F. Loomis. 12mo, 252 pages. 47 illustrations from photographs. Price $2.00

There is humor dancing and bubbling around this story of a cruise from New York to Balboa (on the southern side of the Isthmus of Panama) as brightly as the sparkling waters danced about the little 28-foot yawl on its fair-weather days.

It was a four-months' cruise in the smallest vessel that has ever passed through the Panama Canal on a long-distance cruise. She was navigated by the author who had only two other lusty souls for crew. As she headed down the coast she poked her blunt nose into extraordinary scrapes—and came through whole.

The truthfulness of the narrative is "alleviated," the author considers, by its humorous treatment—it is more than that: it is illuminated and made joyous by it. And it is full of human interest. Before the "Hippocampus" makes Balboa, you will like the staunch little vessel and the jolly crew of three aboard her.

THE COMPLETE RADIO BOOK. By Raymond Francis Yates, Radio Editor of "The New York Evening Mail," and L. G. Pacent. 12mo, 330 pages. 40 diagrams and 25 illustrations. Price $2.00

The complete book that covers every phase of the enormous interest in radio. It is endorsed by the Radio Section of the Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies.

"The Complete Radio Book" has been written by a widely-read author on popular scientific subjects working in cooperation with a well-known radio engineer.

It outlines the why and how of radio, describing in understandable language the operation of the various instruments. It gives the history of the vacuum tube and its application to radio telegraphy and telephony. A chapter is devoted to Radio as a Hobby. There is another chapter devoted to Who's Who in Radio, with personality sketches of the men who have made contributions to this wonderful art.

The book is delightfully readable from cover to cover. It is the great story of radio—the romance of radio.

It presents for the first time in print a number of sensational documents, dated 1855, which prove almost conclusively that radio was invented by an American several years before Marconi was born.

ONE WORLD AT A TIME. By Margaret Fuller. 12mo, 322 pages. Price $2.00

This is one of those rare stories that are always remembered by the reader—remembered like some haunting perfume.

It carries the reader into a world that is strange, enticing, utterly other than the everyday of life. This picture of plantation days in almost tropical South Carolina of some twenty years after the Civil War is simply and wholly entrancing. The most sophisticated reader will relax from a critical attitude and merely taste its charm with the naïve and eager gusto of a child drinking in a fairy tale. It is hardly possible that any reader should not fall a fortunate victim to its spell.

Around and over everything is the magic of the land itself, with its sea islands of cotton fame, the bright sea washing into bays and channels everywhere; the waving palmettos, pines and live-oaks, the jasmine, the mingling everywhere of sea air and blossom-perfume; the great old houses in disrepair but of noble size and spaciousness.

But let us not convey the impression that this is a random collection of memories: there is a real story to tell (and one of the most sheerly exquisite and stirring of love-scenes); there are refreshingly original folk; there is quaint humor; and unexpected, unusual, arresting event and incident.

THE PROBLEM OF CHINA. By Bertrand Russell, author of "Why Men Fight," etc. 12mo, 260 pages. Price $2.00

In this book the author has endeavored to set forth briefly the effects upon the Far East of contact between Chinese and Western civilization. Chinese civilization had, until the last 100 years, about the same importance in the world as our own Graeco-Roman civilization, but science has given industrial and military preponderance to our system. Japan has produced a blend of the two, and China is in process of producing a different blend. It is the author's purpose to trace the interactions of political and cultural questions, to show the dangers of foreign aggression in China, and to emphasise the importance of China's contribution, past and future, to the civilization of the world. The international problems of the Far East are considered, both as they affect China and as they affect the relations of the Great Powers. China has suffered many wrongs at the hands of the Great Powers; but the author attempts to show that, for the future, a greater realization of China's rights is as much to the interest of the outside world as to that of the Chinese themselves. Mr. Russell has rarely written with more power.

NON-VIOLENT COERCION. By Clarence M. Case, Professor of Sociology, University of Iowa. 8vo, 375 pages. Price $3.00

A provocative and stimulating volume.

Here is the first book of which we know to treat authoritatively and in detail one of the most interesting, curious and significant of political phenomena—the passive resistance of non-participation.

The doctrine of passive resistance goes back to Confucius, the author shows; but never has it been so historically important as it is today. Dr. Case traces non-violent resistance from the day of the Chinese sage down to Quakers and other religious sects, to Tolstoy and the war-time conscientious objectors; to Ghandi in India and the Korean boycott of the Japanese. The development of the idea itself is stressed, and emphasis placed rather upon the methods used than the ends sought.

Dr. Case's work suggests some far-reaching and most engrossing ideas: Will the armed conflict that has grown too terrible for the thoughts of men to contemplate be superseded by the non-violent resistance of boycott and non-cooperation? Is the Ghandi movement in India, the most famous passive resistance in the history of the world, to prove the opening of an era which will see bloodless conflicts waged by whole populations before which guns, ships, tanks, planes and fighting men must eventually be helpless?

AN OPTIMIST IN THE NEAR EAST. By Herbert Adams Gibbons, author of "The New Map of Europe," etc. 8vo, 400 pages. Profusely illustrated. Price $3.50

An altogether delightful travel book by an author so extraordinarily well equipped with all manner of information about his subject that he has made it, in addition, a tremendously valuable volume of vivid and memorable historical sidelights.

Herbert Adams Gibbons knows his Near East, and by virtue of his numerous books on the history of the Ottoman Empire and contemporary politics in the Near East has become an acknowledged authority in Europe and America concerning that part of the world.

In the spring of 1922 he returned to his old stamping-ground, which has become once more the centre of international intrigue and the heart of the crisis that is preventing the reestablishment of world peace.

But this time he went, not as a critic to write a politico-discussive dissertation, but as a traveler who knows and loves the peoples of these troubled lands. He spent three weeks in the occupied regions of Asia Minor, going all along the Greek front; a fortnight in Constantinople; skirted the Black Sea coast of Kemalist Turkey; disappeared for a month in the Soviet Republics of the Caucasus, Daghestan, Azerbaidjan, Georgia, and Armenia; and, after another stop at Constantinople, worked his way back to western Europe during the summer via the Balkan States and the Successor States of the Hapsburg Empire.

"An Optimist in the Near East" tells how the people are harking back to their traditions and folklore, and how, weary of the bickerings of statesmen, they are going ahead, building up again their homes, and creating a better atmosphere for political, economic and spiritual development.

KID KARTOONS. By Gene Carr. Square quarto, 224 pages. Price $1.75

One of the most popular series of cartoons ever run in a New York newspaper is Gene Carr's black-and-white pictures in The New York World under the caption, "Metropolitan Movies." The series is no less popular in newspapers of other American cities where they appear under the caption, "Everyday Movies." In this book, "Kid Kartoons," are gathered one hundred of Mr. Carr's best pictures, in addition to an introduction.

"Kid Kartoons," please, are not to be confused with what people usually have in mind when they speak of the "funny pictures in the papers." Each Carr picture is a unit, and with its brief caption makes its point. And the point is always some individually conceived humorous angle of metropolitan life appealing to young and old alike, and also to that kind of reader who considers the usual newspaper funny picture the ideal feature to skip with eyes closed.

Mr. Carr is steeped in the life of the big city, which he loves as well as he knows it. And he has the gift of getting on paper the human and humorous side of the big city.

MIHRIMA AND OTHER POEMS. By Cale Young Rice, author of "Trails Sunward," etc. 12mo, 127 pages. Price $1.50

A book of poems of fresh inspiration, ripe wisdom and sure craftsmanship. This poet's ability to feel and to capture the most evanescent beauty is unabated; his depth of comprehension and his range of emotional interest has increased. It is a volume in the author's most mature manner.

The longer dramatic poem which gives the collection its title tells a touching legend of a miracle—a miracle that is granted as a reward of supreme love, the stigmata of the cross appearing to attest the soul's purity of a wife. The many shorter poems range far and wide, including "The Jungle" of the mind as revealed by psychoanalysis; a remarkable group of "Lurid Lives," the first of which is the soliloquy of a discharged "red" (what he would like to say to the capitalist); a poem on a death by the plunge of an aëroplane, etc.

PHANTOM GOLD. By Kenneth Payson Kempton. 12mo, 224 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

This is an absorbing story of the docks, the Atlantic coast and the open sea; and also of a boy who discovered through thrilling experience that all the pirates did not die with Captain Kidd.

An English boy, a petty officer aboard the British freighter "Arrowdale," is left destitute in an American port by the premature departure of his ship for Liverpool. He is taken for a dock thief and almost captured, but escapes and succeeds in shipping aboard a schooner bound ostensibly for the Banks of Newfoundland. Here on the "Laughing Lass" he finds a friend, a mystery, and many strange adventures—not the least of which concerns $5,000,000 in gold bullion. The boy learns that even in this day there are buccaneers of the seas. He learns, too, that firearms can be used in other ways than that of killing human beings. He is desperately familiar with certain sections of the Morse code. But how Rick Hartley saves the situation that confronts him, friendless, penniless, in a strange land and on perilous and hostile waters—that's the story and it is a delightfully wholesome one.

WHISTLING JIMPS. By Edna Turpin, author of "Treasure Mountain," etc. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. 12mo, 328 pages. Price $1.75

A delightful story of the Blue Ridge Mountains and of the picturesque people who live there. It will appeal both to boys and girls, especially to the many young readers who were enthusiastic about the author's other Blue Ridge story, "Treasure Mountain.

The isolated natives of the Blue Ridge are as strange to most Americans as are the natives of Kamchatka.

Whistling Jimps, the chief character, is a boy who is an intimate friend of animals and birds and all wild life—and who has almost hypnotic power over them. There is an absorbing plot for the reader to follow. Page Ruffin, a city-bred girl, and Whistling Jimps rescue a small child from the neglect of brutal and degraded mountaineers and restore him to his people.

Miss Turpin has a spirited and yet a most sympathetic style, and she knows intimately the Blue Ridge country, where she has lived and worked for years.

THE FLOWER OF FORTUNE. By E. B. and A. A. Knipe, authors of "The Luck of Denewood," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations by E. B. Knipe. Price $1.75

The latest story for boys and girls by these two prime favorites, and it is one of the best they have written.

"The Flower of Fortune" has for its background Dutch-English old New York shortly after the English came. The plot concerns itself mainly with Dutch inhabitants, and the quaint picture the authors draw is wonderfully convincing and interesting. There is much thrilling episode, much opportunity for youthful courage, generosity and independence.

The heroine is left by her father at an early age in absolute command of her own fortunes and with a considerable business on her hands. Her clear-eyed confidence and the spirit with which she meets many difficulties and mysterious troubles which surround her will win sympathy, as the triumph and success which come to her, and the pretty love story of which she is the heroine, will be thoroughly enjoyed. This story has not been serialized. A thoroughly delightful story.

BOUND VOLUMES OF "ST. NICHOLAS." The twelve monthly numbers in two square quarto, richly bound cloth volumes. 1000 pages, 1000 pictures. Per set $6.00

St. Nicholas is the most captivating of all juvenile magazines. "It is a true classic among current publications—a childhood land of gold and summer sunshine. Its pictures are as charming as its stories and verses; and stories, verses, and illustrations combine to educate the child's esthetic nature." A welcome gift for any child.

THE TURNER TWINS. By Ralph Henry Barbour, author of "The Crimson Sweater," etc. 12mo, 280 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

A new story by Barbour is a great event to a large following of young people; and "The Turner Twins," his very latest, is in his jolliest manner, is chockful of fun, excitement and mystery, and makes the reader know as likable a group of characters as ever romped through a book.

The Twins were so much alike that no one could tell one from the other, and when having journeyed east from California they reached Hillman's School they found the stage all set for their merry adventures. Hailed mistakenly as a football star, Ned philosophically accepted the situation, managed to conceal his colossal ignorance and won a place on the team. But it was his similarity to Laurie that saved him from disaster in the Big Game and only one other ever knew whether it was he or Laurie who kicked that winning goal and upheld the honor of the Turners!

That remarkable likeness helped again in the school entertainment and even Polly Deane, whose widowed mother kept the tuck shop, was startled. Polly was a great pal of the Twins, especially of Laurie, and it was Laurie who discovered the explanation of the mysterious sounds beneath the widow's cottage, solved the problem of what had become of Old Coventry's money and so brought a happy Christmas to Polly and her mother.

THE MYSTERY AT NUMBER SIX. By Augusta Huiell Seaman, author of "The Boarded-Up House," etc. 12mo, 250 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

In the location of this latest of her mystery stories for boys and girls, Mrs. Seaman has found a new field—Florida. Not, however, the Florida that the tourist knows, but the wild phosphate-mining region where are the beds from which come a large share of the world's fertilizer.

But it is with adventure that this story has to do, and with a baffling mystery. Near an abandoned phosphate mine that has long ago turned into a beautiful pool, still known as "Number Six," two cousins, a boy and a girl, stumble upon a baffling and inexplicable affair.

In the care of an old half-breed Indian guide known as Jerry Saw-Grass, and of his "cracker" wife, is a young girl of their own age about whom there appears to be considerable mystery. This child, Delight, knows absolutely nothing about her history or parentage. At the same time the cousins discover that old Jerry is keenly anxious to keep out of the way of a Mr. Tredwell, a New York lawyer who is staying at the same hotel with them. From this situation the story unravels, and out of the tangled threads of this absorbing mystery the truth is finally evolved.

THE PUSSYCAT PRINCESS. By Edward Anthony. Square quarto, 160 pages. Colored wrapper and 32 full-page illustrations by Harry Whittier Frees, creator of the "Animal Mother Goose," etc. Price $2.50

A book of quite extraordinary cat pictures and the altogether delightful story of a fascinating kitten on an adventurous lark. Mr. Anthony's humor and tenderness and his literary manner generally recall the charm of Eugene Field. Mr. Frees is well known for his extraordinary photographs of animals, and this series of cats and kittens in costume and in captivating poses will add to his reputation.

This book belongs to that far from large class which are at the same time on two levels, appealing to children primarily and yet having overtones and allusions constituting a sort of story within a story for the delight of keen and young-hearted grown-ups. They are lucky finds for parents who read to their children; they make a pleasure of what is sometimes merely a "duty."

The Pussycat Princess asks and receives from her royal father permission to go out into the world, taking whatever risks may befall, but for one night only. A great many things befall the Pussycat Princess on her first night out, and that, dear readers, is the story. It's a darling.

THE FORTUNE OF THE INDIES. By Edith Ballinger Price, author of "Silver Shoal Light," etc. 12mo, 255 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

This popular writer for boys and girls has done one of her very best and most exciting stories in this tale of an old New England seaport town and of far-off China.

It has the atmosphere of the old days of the clipper ships; of New England with its delicacy and iron strength; of rich, mysterious, dark, old China.

Miss Price always writes gracefully and quaintly, and this book has the quality of charm that is native to her. She is one of those fortunate authors who, writing sincerely and successfully for young people, somehow attract their elders too. This book, with its splendid setting, its swift action, its exciting plot, has qualities that will appeal to a very large number of readers—to those interested primarily in a plot and youngsters who are incipient style-lovers also.

It is really a rarely successful piece of juvenile writing. It will enlarge Miss Price's following of loyal readers.

THE INCA EMERALD. By Samuel Scoville, Jr., author of "The Blue Pearl," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

"The Inca Emerald" is another adventure book in Mr. Scoville's happiest vein and full of facts as well as thrills. It is a sequel to "The Blue Pearl," and just as that book chronicled a quest in the Far North, so "The Inca Emerald" is a Saga of the South. Readers of "The Inca Emerald" must expect to meet jaguars, anacondas, piranhas, fire-ants, bushmasters, crocodiles, pumas, peccaries, vampires and other strange forest-dwellers of the Amazon basin. They will be shipwrecked on Death River, cross mile-high Sky Bridge, find the forgotten Slave Trail, win their way through cannibal tribes, stand a siege in the Lost City of the Incas and at last recover the emerald from the thrice-guarded depths of Eldorado. Founding his story on scientific knowledge, Mr. Scoville has written a splendid book of clean, stimulating adventure which will be eagerly read by the thousands of boys and girls who have been awaiting a new book from him.

THE HILL OF ADVENTURE. By Adair Aldon, author of "At the Sign of the Two Heroes," etc. 12mo, 300 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

An absorbing story with a colorful and picturesque Western setting.

A story which will be enjoyed by older boys and girls. The setting is a cabin on a hillside of the Rocky Mountains. There two girls and their aunt, who is ill and has come to the mountains partly for her health, are to stay for the summer.

There are several interesting strands to the plot and many likable or picturesque or amusing characters; but the main story is how the aunt searches for a long-lost brother in the mountain country.

The high hills, the simple rugged life, the narrow trails followed by clever-footed Western horses, the strike-lockout on the irrigation project and the foreign workmen, the adventures and work and play of the girls—all make up a book rich in incident and character, and especially good for the in-betweens for whom it is hard to find enough fiction of a suitable character.

OUTDOOR STORIES. Retold From St. Nicholas. 12mo, 178 pages. Colored wrapper and 8 illustrations. Price $1.25

Here are a group of stories, the best of their kind published in St. Nicholas in recent years, all with settings in the great out-of-doors. There is variety and background, incident and character enough for any taste—a treasure-trove of good stories.

THE CHILDREN'S BOOK OF CELEBRATED PICTURES. By Lorinda M. Bryant. Square quarto, 100 pages, including 50 full-page illustrations. Price $2.50

In this book are gathered together fifty excellent reproductions of famous pictures of a character to appeal to children, each full-page illustrations faced by a page of text giving its legend, historical fact or fairy tale, or with some interesting anecdote about the painter—one of such a character that it tells something significant about his life and art.

This is something more than a wonderful picture-book which even the younger children will enjoy. Everyone knows how easily a child may be led to real joy in masterpieces if he is not repelled by too much educational talk about them, too fulsome insistence on their "greatness," and this book is a definite means of culture for boys and girls.

THE WOODS-RIDER. By Frank Lillie Pollock, author of "Wilderness Honey," etc. 12mo, 384 pages. Colored wrapper and 4 illustrations. Price $1.75

An alluring story of bees and piney woods and pirates and danger and daring in a delightfully new setting.

Mr. Pollock's business is bee-keeping, in the course of which he annually moves his loyal little workers from the lower Mississippi, where the flowers bloom early, to the woods of Canada, where the flowers bloom late. And so he knows and loves the woods and the bees, which play such important parts in his delightfully unusual stories.

In "The Woods-Rider" Mr. Pollock introduces again the same three young people who appeared in his "Wilderness Honey." Now they go from Canada to Alabama to get a fresh stock of bees. Falling in with a woods-rider for a turpentine orchard, they have many adventures. At times it looks as if they will never get the new bees back home.

*INTRODUCTION TO AMERICAN GOVERNMENT. By Frederic A. Ogg and P. Orman Ray. Royal 8vo, 841 pages. Price $3.75

The serious-minded general reader will find here a stimulating account of the national, state, and local governments.

Every chapter of this work challenges the reader to think independently. The defects and failures of existing political institutions are pointed out. Now and again suggestions for improvement are offered. A definite attempt is made to build up and direct the thought of the reader along forward-looking and constructive lines. Principles, points of view, tendencies, the reaction of human nature to political tasks and situations—these are the subjects opened for consideration in this book. The importance of historical facts is by no means underestimated; the facts are there, presented not as an imposing array of unrelated events, but as the continuous, outward expression of an inward growth the successive steps toward an inevitable goal. A splendid aid to clear and informed thinking on political questions.

*STATE GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES. By Walter F. Dodd. Royal 8vo, 600 pages. Price $3.75

Wheels within wheels, revolving on a single axis! So turn the various governmental organizations—from the great National disk that encompasses all others to the smallest local body—each rotating within a fixed radius and gathering all its force from a common center. Of these various bodies, the State governmental organization occupies a most important position.

This book seeks to indicate the setting of the State government in the national system and to emphasize the importance of State and local organizations. All of the forces of State government are treated as a whole, while the local governments are regarded as units, essential to the State organization. The problems discussed touch upon matters of vital importance to every American. The discussion is practical, the illustrations being drawn from actual experience.

*THE CENTURY VOCABULARY BUILDER. By Garland Greever and Joseph M. Bachelor. 16mo, 300 pages. Price $1.50

This book is written for those who wish to acquire, by independent study, a mastery of words and the ability to use them effectively. It is safe to say that this book will increase the average vocabulary 100 per cent. One proceeds from easy familiar words to those less familiar or unknown. The book is filled with word lore, word stories, and word histories that are little romances in themselves.

Besides multiplying the number of words in one's vocabulary, the book teaches one to appreciate the value of words by explaining the exact meaning and use of similar words that are often confused. Abundant exercises encourage the user to put into practice what he learns. It is broken into small units so that a person can give himself a private course on vocabulary building. Such a course will not only develop his ability to write or speak with force and precision, but will also enable him to read with keener enjoyment.

HISTORY

SOME HISTORICAL ERRORS OF JAMES FORD RHODES RELATIVE TO RECONSTRUCTION. By Major John R. Lynch.

This book is in sum a well substantiated criticism of certain passages of James Ford Rhodes' treatment of the Reconstruction period in United States history. Its interest is enhanced by the inclusion of a reply made to Major Lynch by an expert selected by Mr. Rhodes and also of the author's final comment on the expert's testimony. Major Lynch's treatment of this subject is well known and the present volume answers a growing demand for the entire material of the controversy. The author reviews the curious political situation in the Southern States after the War and dis-closes the origin of the pernicious theory of " Negro domination " as a purely political weapon used by one of the parties and having nothing whatever to do with the actual preponderance of Negroes over Whites in office. Major Lynch's analysis of generally misinterpreted and misunderstood conditions and the interesting historical data in which his book abounds make it most valuable and important as a contribution to a fair estimate of the Reconstruction period.

RACE PREJUDICE IN AMERICA: A Critical Analysis of Its Motive, Its Engenderment and Its Development. By John Lawrence Waller.

A brilliant contribution to modern thought on the race question. It meets the present-day demand for straight thinking on the whole subject of race in America. It is a treatment free from sentimentality, the result of a comparative, scientific study of the race situation in our own country, in Europe, and in the European colonies of Africa and Asia.

Mr. Waller makes his statement with power, clearness and cogency. From actual experience and observation in various countries he gives a fine and impartial summary of the conditions of racial prejudice, as applied to the Negro.

This is his longest and by far his best novel.

PUBLISHERS Cosmopolitan Book Corporation NEW YORK

Cosmopolitan Books

YOU know the tremendous sales—the large profits—that Cosmopolitan books and Cosmopolitan advertising have brought you during the last five publishing seasons. Think back a moment—"The River's End," "The Valley of Silent Men," "The Flaming Forest"—each has gone far beyond 100,000. "Kindred of the Dust"—"The Pride of Palomar"—also far beyond that almost unattainable 100,000. "The Go-Getter," "The Kingdom Round the Corner" and "The Vanishing Point"—now approaching that goal. Every book on the Cosmopolitan list has spelled big opportunity for every retail dealer who has had the foresight to stock them well and display them to show customers where the season's most popular books could be bought.

When This Man Writes—The World Reads!

THE COUNTRY BEYOND

The longest and finest novel ever written by

James Oliver Curwood

THE Country Beyond is a soul-stirring romance that lifts you from the midst of humdrum cares and affairs and carries you off to a balsam-scented wilderness. In it you'll witness the life-struggle of the most amiable rogue to be found anywhere in fiction; and in it you'll find the author at his best.

"Curwood was a little worried," said Ray Long, the famous magazine editor, in an article in The Bookman, "about the responsibility of becoming a best best seller. But applause has not injured him. He is today writing less, and writing better, than ever before."

With master skill he tells in this, the greatest of his novels, the story of Nada, a beaten girl who had faith in a bad man; of Jolly Roger McKay, whom the law calls a bandit; and of Peter, an Airedale. You will better understand the extent of an outdoor man's love for his dog when you've come to know Jolly Roger's friend Peter.

THE THREE GODFATHERS

The Unforgettable Tale of a Child and a Trio of Thieves

By Peter B. Kyne

FOUR bad men rode into a little Arizona town one December afternoon, but there was gunplay and only three rode out. This is the story of those three—The sort of tale that many a red-blooded American man will want to pass on to his son when he himself has turned its last page.

During the fifteen years that he has been writing Peter B. Kyne has created several characters and types that have become as well known as any to be found in the literature of any language. The immortal "Cappy Ricks" is one of the characters; the three godless godfathers are one of the types. And—despite all their sins—nowhere will you find a trio more lovable and genuinely American.

CAPPY RICKS RETIRES

The Story of the Best-Loved Character in American Fiction

By Peter B. Kyne

HERE at last is the volume that takes Cappy through the most exciting years of his life—through the past few years of your own life too—and there are uproarious chapters in it that you will want to read and re-read for years.

It's the same old Cappy, the Cappy who swears "by the Holy Pink-toed Prophet," and cusses Skinner out for being penurious. "Skinner my boy—if you ever forget yourself long enough to 'give three hoots in hell'—you'll want one of them back."

In this rapidly-moving book the explosive old gentleman does his level best to "retire" from business. But Romance—of the sea, of business, of full-blooded adventure—keeps calling him back into harness; and you'll decide when you follow this tale of his hectic career that when Cappy Ricks does come back, he comes back stronger than ever.

Cappy Ricks is an epic character of America today, and this is a book you'll want permanently in your library, not only for your own enjoyment but for the benefit of your children and friends in years to come.

Unbeatable combination of Author and Illustrator

N. C. Wyeth

STOP and think what these facts mean in sales:—

An ideal combination of famous modern author and famous modern artist, and an heroic tale of the merrie days of Edward III and the adventuresome Black Prince.

A renewed public enthusiasm for romance and colorful costume, with Doug Fairbanks, fresh from his victories as D'Artagnan, scheduled soon to appear in an elaborate new play called "Chivalry."

A book that has inspired N. C. Wyeth, most famous of America's color artists, as has no other book he has ever illustrated. His paintings for it mark as definite a step forward in his career as did his earlier pictures for Robinson Crusoe.

The VANISHING POINT

International Adventure With an American Hero

By Coningsby Dawson

IN "The Vanishing Point" Dawson has proved—or re-proved, for Dickens and Scott and a parade of other old masters beat him to it—that when an author famous for literary quality sets out to do a story packed tight with mystery and drama, it's time to sit up and take notice.

Pinned to his pillow at the Ritz, Philip Hindwood found a note on which was written:

——"Follow the Widow."——

And as you follow her in this story, with the American business man who knew nothing at all about women, you'll discover that Dawson has created a truly significant book, one that holds you in suspense to its last page and that, in the meantime, gives you a startlingly graphic picture of present-day conditions in Europe—a book of genuine historical importance, and one that will increase its author's large following.

The WILD HEART

One of the Most Important Literary "Finds" of Recent Years

By Emma-Lindsay Squier

With a 10-page introduction by Gene Stratton-Porter

Illustrated by Paul Bransom

WHEN we were preparing this unusual book for publication we believed it would appeal strongly to all nature lovers and to all children; that's why we spared no expense on its format and illustrations.

"It is in my judgment the best nature book that has ever been written," says Joe Mitchell Chapple, editor of The National Magazine, Boston. ". . . as clean as a hound's tooth and as refreshing as a breeze from the ocean at sundown," said the Rev. Dr. C. F. McGinnis in The Catholic Bulletin, and added, "We heartily recommend this book to every school, college, man, woman and child who appreciates Nature at her best and humor at its most whimsical."

The Wild Heart will sell big in the holiday season and during every Nature or Children's Book Week for years.

Revived to Meet a Growing Demand

By CONINGSBY DAWSON

"THE Garden Without Walls" was first published in 1913. Over night it made its author famous. The publicity Mr. Dawson has been receiving during the past two years, coupled with the fact that in all of his new books he is mentioned as the author of this book, has created a great new demand for it. That is why, like a famous old play that will never die, it has been possible for Cosmopolitan so successfully to revive this whimsical and appealing tale.

A BOOK THAT WILL HELP ANY MAN ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS

By Irving R. Allen

IT is more than a book—it is a formula for winning success, written by a man who tells the astonishingly simple secret of how success is won. Arthur Brisbane, the noted editor, says of this book that it "gives you one idea well worth a hundred times what the book costs."

James Oliver Curwood

AN out-of-doors man, is James Oliver Curwood —a man who loves Nature and the wilderness, and who lives the thrilling adventures of his novels before ever he begins to put them on paper. That is why his stories always ring true.

COSMOPOLITAN advertising is doing more than selling books to those who are always on the lookout for new fiction—it is reaching out for those 499 in 500 who do not buy books at all, and who are not, ordinarily, book-readers. It is this vast class of people that is being awakened to the joy of reading and directed into your bookstore by Cosmopolitan advertisements. And Cosmopolitan authors can hold these readers from year to year as can few others. You can't go wrong on a Cosmopolitan book.

Peter B. Kyne

HIS types are regular human beings with regular human failings, like the rest of us. From their famous author they often inherit a rich allowance of Celtic wit and friendliness that endears them more and more to their rapidly increasing audience.

PETER B. KYNE

MONTH after month books by Cosmopolitan authors lead the "Best Sellers" and "In Demand at Public Libraries" lists. That is because they are thoughtfully selected for the reading public from the output of the world's greatest writers by the editors of the greatest publishing organization in America. And because the publishers have sufficient faith in these books to market them in earnest.

CRAM'S UNRIVALED ATLASES

ATLASES are as fascinating as is the world itself; and the world and its events are made more interesting only by the associations that an imaginative mind recalls in turning the leaves from one continent to another.

Atlases are a source of information and entertainment in thousands of homes. With an atlas many evenings can be filled with pleasure and profit for every member of the family.

Invariably, family discussions arise that can be settled properly only by the use of an authentic, up-to-date atlas. The perplexing geographical problems that children bring home from school will find easy solution in a dependable atlas.

Parents and teachers who do not want to be "stumped" by the youngsters will cultivate the atlas habit as an invaluable expedient.

Atlases are more generally in use today than ever before. Especially after the recent world conflict, people in every walk of life have better learned to think in universal terms. The modern business institution has found the atlas an indispensable adjunct; the person who would be well informed, a desirable necessity. In schools and libraries they are in daily use as works of reference and instruction.

Because of the variety of uses which atlases serve, THE GEORGE F. CRAM COMPANY publishes an extensive line so that each individual requirement may be properly met.

THE GEORGE F. CRAM COMPANY has been engaged in publishing maps and atlases since 1867. That the company's efforts have met with widespread approval is evidenced by the fact that Cram Atlases have come to be regarded as the standard authority on geographical matters.

This catalog lists an atlas to suit every need, ranging in size from the pocket edition to the large complete volume weighing nearly eleven pounds, with a corresponding range in prices.

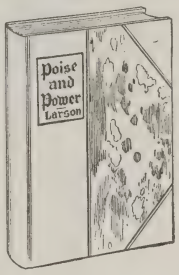
Poise and Power Series

It is only a few years, not more than a quarter of a century, since modern psychology began to proclaim the new science of human thought and action, so that we have had but a short time to demonstrate what a more intelligent application of our energies and forces can accomplish. But already the evidence is coming in from all sources, revealing results that frequently border upon the extraordinary. Man can do far more with himself and his life than he has been doing in the past; he can call into action, and successfully apply, far more ability, energy and worth than his forefathers ever imagined.

It is the purpose of these books not only to discuss these greater powers and possibilities in man, but also to present practical methods through which they may be applied, and to encourage as many as possible to study and apply these greater powers within them so that they may not only become greater and richer and more worthy as individuals, but may also become the forerunners of that higher and more wonderful race of which we all have so fondly dreamed.



These handy-size volumes are just the thing for carrying in one's pocket or bag on a journey. They are direct, terse, to-the-point utterances on every-day subjects in which all thinking people are interested. 16mo, cloth . . . . Net, $ .90 each

JAMES RUSSELL MILLER

Dr. Miller is the world's most widely read devotional writer. The secret of his success was told by him to a young minister who longed to be useful in a new field. "I have always loved people," he said. "I have had an intense desire all my life to help people in every way; not merely to help them into the Church, but to help them in their personal experiences, in their struggles and temptations, their quest for the best things in character. If you want to have success as a winner of men, as a helper of people, as the friend of the tempted and imperilled, you must love them and have a sincere desire to do them good."

The Boy Settler; or, Terry in the New West. Illustrated. 8vo. Net, 1.75
This book, which is the first volume of a new series for boys, describes events in Kansas Territory of the New West, in emigrant days (1857–1858). It is full of excitement and contains also much valuable information.

"The Great Pike's Peak Rush," or Terry in the New Gold Fields. Illustrated 8vo . . . . . Net, 1.75

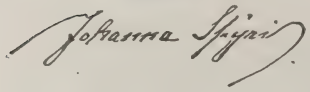
"Roosevelt once told a friend that he could remember the look of the page in one of Stanley's volumes that kindled his faith and fixed his will to be the man he finally became. It was in reading Spenser that Keats first knew himself a poet. But even a poor stick of a book may feed the divine fire. Lincoln felt the heart of American history beat in him as he read Weems's Washington. The world laughs at Parson Weems now.

But the world does not laugh at Lincoln."—N. Y. Herald.

BOOKS BY JOHANNA SPYRI



"Madame Spyri, like Hans Andersen, had by temperament a peculiar skill in writing the simple histories of an innocent world. In all her stories she shows an underlying desire to preserve children alike from misunderstanding and the mistaken kindness that frequently hinders the happiness and natural development of their lives and characters. The author, as we feel in reading her tales, lived among the scenes and people she describes, and the setting of her stories has the charm of the mountain scenery amid which she places her small actors."

Old Man Coyote. Illustrated by E. Warde Blaisdell. "Old Man Coyote"—the hero—reminds us somewhat in his pranks of Brer Rabbit of the South, but his deeds far antedate the latter's. Nobody's Girl

(En Famille)

By HECTOR MALOT

Illustrated by Thelma Gooch

NOBODY'S GIRL, published in France under the title "En Famille," follows "Nobody's Boy" as a companion juvenile story, and takes place with it as one of the supreme juvenile stories of the world. Like "Nobody's Boy" it was also crowned by the Academy, and that literary judgment has also been verified by the test of time.

Noble-minded little Perrine, left destitute and alone in the slums of Paris, must find her rich grandfather, several days' journey away, or no one knows what might happen to her. Even when she finds him, in the midst of his great factories, he may hate her because he had driven her father away from home and disinherited him. How she had the courage to go on and on until she reached Maraucourt, and obtained work in her grandfather's factory, and at last found a way into his heart, is through every step a story of the most absorbing interest to all lovers of childhood. She triumphs over all discomforts, perils and schemers with a firm faith in right things, and the perseverence of one unable to do wrong things. This disposition at last enables her to work great benefits for the people and ensures her the happiness of life lived at its best. This is one of the greatest of inspirational stories.

Loyal ideals, with their inspiring sentiments, are preserved through the most discouraging conditions. The building up of a little girl's life is made a fine example for every child.

The new Second Edition now read contains all the excellent feature which at once made the first editio a Standard Authority in libraries an educational institutions throughout th country. To gain quick and reliabl information regarding the work, ther is no better way than to ask the librarian of your public library. He will tell yo that while the first edition was mor widely used than any other referenc work, the Second Edition is in sti greater demand. This edition is muc more than a mere revision. It is prac tically a new work, for every articl has been critically examined and en larged when necessary or replaced b an entirely new article. The whol work has been reset from first to las the page made somewhat larger, th number of volumes increased fro 21 to 24 (including the Courses o Reading and Study) and printed fro new plates on thin paper—not too thi but making the volume easy to handl and to leaf, and although twenty pe cent. of material has been added, the shelf-space occupied has been much reduced. The work contains about 80,000 articles (30,000 more than any other encyclopædia); there are 100 full-page color plates, 250 half-tone photographic reproductions, 450 duotints, making in all about 7,500 separate illustrations, besides about 20,000 text-cuts, charts and diagrams. NORTHCLIFFE: BRITAIN'S MAN OF POWER

"There is not one page in "Northcliffe: Britain's Man of Power" that is not in one sense or another a valuable contribution to the history of our time.

"Mr. Carson has done his work well. His book will remain a notable one. So far Lord Northcliffe stands alone. His broad vision of journalism, his bold daring, his phenomenal keenness, combined with an intelligent respect for standards and enlightened patriotism, make of him a unique personality in which may be found the very triumph of individualism."—The Public Ledger, Philadelphia.

COOKE, EDMUND VANCE

COMPLETE WORKS

Just Then Something Happened! A story for Children. Cloth, $1.50 Net

"It is a sort of Baron Munchausen, Sinbad the Sailor and Alice in Wonderland all rolled together. The youngster who likes invention, thrilling situations, unlooked-for ways of escape and a delicious foolishness as a background for it all, will find them here a-plenty. Mr. Cooke's inventiveness is only equalled by his humor and wit. From the juvenile point of view, he is a crackajack of a story-teller."

The Story Club. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

There are no less than forty-four bright, new, interesting stories for children within the covers of this book. Any child of six years to sixteen will understand and enjoy them. "The Vinegator," "The Gassowary," "The Cave of the Eater-cow," "The Little, Lame Angel," are some of the titles. The book is fully illustrated in colors.

Told to the Little Tot. Stories for Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Here is a book of stories for the little folks, beautifully illustrated by Bessie Collins Pease. "The best written of all the books for quite small children," says the The Los Angeles Times, and parents who think enough of their children to give them real books of well-told stories, amusing and adapted to their infant minds, will want to know this book.

Chronicles of the Little Tot. Poems about Children. Cloth, $1.75 Net

Edward Howard Griggs and other eminent critics hailed this volume as being equal to the child poems of Stevenson, Riley and Field, and the New York American added, "There is a spontaneity to the humor, a touching realism to the pathos and a pervasive beauty in the sentiments, that raise this collection of Mr. Cooke's verses to heights seldom attained, even by the poets referred to."

I Rule the House. Poems about Children. Cloth, $1.50 Net

Of this second book of child verse, it is enough to say that it fully equals "Chronicles of the Little Tot" in its content. "The Sin of the Coppenter Man," "The Conqueror," "When Comp'ny Comes," "The Little Boy Snake," "The Monkey Man," "The Cooky Moon," "The Geographic Child" are a few of the poems of this book which are known and loved wherever there are children.

COOKE—(Continued)

Impertinent Poems. Poems Men Like. Cloth, $1.75 Net

"Impertinent Poems" with their keen insight into human nature, their colloquial habit of speech, their ingenious metricism and their whimsical sympathy established a new school of verse-making. Contains "How Did You Die," "Let's Be Glad We Are Living," etc.

Little Songs for Two. Love Poems. Cloth, $1.50 Net

These are love lyrics, of course. "Forty-one delicious, finely sentimental poems written in inimitable style," says the Portland Oregonian, and the San Francisco Call adds that they are "As exquisite as any of the work upon which he has built his reputation." This is an ideal gift book for lovers of all ages.

Rimes to be Read. Miscellaneous Poems. Cloth, $1.75 Net

This book contains a wide variety of story-poems and character-sketches, ranging from the foolery of "The Young Man Waited," the satire of "The Other One Was Booth," and the keenness of "Fin de Siecle" to the tense dramatic interest of "Connor McCarthy," causing Thomas E. Watson to exclaim in a magazine review, "Did Bryant or Whittier or Lowell write verses better than these?"

The Uncommon Commoner and similar songs of democracy. Cloth, $1.75 Net

"Since Whitman there has been no other poet who so surely gripped the vital things of democracy," says Secretary of War Baker. "Most of the lessons which the world is now learning will be found simply and winsomely told in this volume." William Allen White commends the "straight-from-the-shoulder" style, and Brand Whitlock expresses his debt of gratitude for the poems, which he says he owes "in common with all Americans."

1. BETTINA'S BONNET

Bettina is a little girl who lives on the edge of the forest with her mother and father. Her parents are very poor, and her father earns his living by chopping down the forest trees. Betty wishes she had pretty things like other children, and longs for a bonnet with roses on it instead of the handkerchief she ties over her curls. One day she rescues a fairy from a wicked spider's web, and the fairy gives her three wishes. She wishes "something nice for mother, something nice for father, and a bonnet with roses on it for me!" The little story shows how many people were made happy by a kind act.

2. BUNNY'S BIRTHDAY

Bunny wakes up on the morning of his birthday; the sun is shining and the birdies singing. Bunny takes his bath and dresses quickly. He runs downstairs and eats all his breakfast, because his mother says if he eats every bit he will then be a very good little rabbit and can have his presents. He gets a tin auto, a spade and a little wheel-barrow.

How Bunny and Ducky Daddles rescue the Princess' Puss Cat from the Fox Ogre is a tale of thrilling adventure with a happy, safe ending.

3. G. G. DRAYTON'S JUMBLE BOOK

This little book is instructive as well as amusing for the tiny tots. It contains a jolly little alphabet, which tells them "A" is for Apple, "B" is for Bee, "C" is for Cat—You call her "Puss-ie." Many illustrations make the book quite gay and there is also a little lesson in Roman letters, which a pretty mother sings:

"Now listen, darlings; 'round me flock
And learn the time from the old hall clock."

They are then taught in rhyme how to tell the Roman letters from one until twelve. Mothers will welcome this little "Jumble," as it instructs while it plays.

MOTHER GOOSE

Illustrations by Edna Cooke; 12 in color; 100 in black and white.

In this handsome volume beautifully illustrated by Edna Cooke, there has been gathered together and carefully edited over four hundred of these favorites of our early childhood. Never before have so many different nursery rhymes been given in a single volume. A special feature of the book is the large number of illustrations, in black and white, in addition to twelve full-page illustrations in colors. Brilliant as all the work of Edna Cooke undoubtedly is, probably the most lasting of her drawings will be the wonderful pictures which she has made to illustrate the good old nursery rhymes. Edna Cooke possesses in marked degree the ability to interpret these old favorites both for old children and the little tots; few artists indeed can lay claim to the wonderful touch possessed by Miss Cooke in painting for the little folks. It is safe to say, that this is the most complete and the most attractively illustrated Mother Goose on the market.

RANDALL, JOHN HERMAN

THE ESSENCE OF DEMOCRACY

Democracy is the great word of the hour. Never before has this great word dominated so largely the world's thinking. When President Wilson set forth his reasons for the entrance of the United States into the world's greatest conflict, summing it all up in that new classic phrase "to make the world safe for Democracy," he established it forever as the practical ideal for human striving the whole world round.

Dr. Randall here sets forth that Democracy will be glorious or inglorious according to the content we put in the great word; if it means nothing more than the politicians say it means then it is a futile thing. In his usual convincing manner he shows that real Democracy is a thing of the inner life, and must not only be a belief, but an experience.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF POWER OR WHAT TO LIVE FOR

The demand of the 20th century is not so much for new beliefs as for actual knowledge. While there will always be a place in human life for speculative thought and as long as one thinks at all for one's self, he must formulate some philosophy of life, still what every man must live by is the knowledge born out of actual experience. With the crumbling of the old traditional creeds, there will continue to come ever new and fresh restatements of the basic truths of life. But the need of the hour is for a formulation of the practical principles which everyday experience has demonstrated to be most effective in bringing life to the fullness of all its latent powers.

RANDALL—(Continued)

THE PHILOSOPHY OF POWER

In his new book, "The Philosophy of Power," Dr. Randall attempts such a formulation of principles, apart from all doctrinal questions of speculative interest. It might be regarded as the Creed of the practical man who cares little about theology or dogma, and yet who is conscious of a need of some practical working philosophy for life.

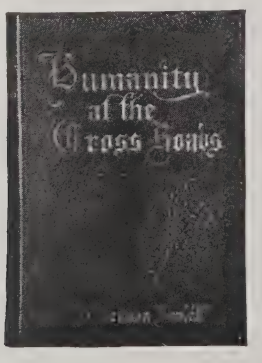
THE LIFE OF REALITY

In these days of great personal perplexities, and gigantic world-problems, every thoughtful man and woman is earnestly bent upon the search for reality. Out of the din of conflicting voices, out of the chaotic confusion of clashing opinions, one question emerges supreme over all. Amid all the deceptive appearances of life and in spite of life's disillusionments, is there such a thing as Reality, to which our human gropings may lead? Can it be found and experienced in the daily storm and stress of life, and if so, what is the pathway by which man may approach and live "the life that is life indeed"?

Dr. Randall firmly believes that such a real life is possible to every man, and in the chapters of this book he seeks to point out the sources and nature of that Reality for which, since the world began, every soul has been searching either consciously or unconsciously, the various paths of experience through which one moves toward the great discovery, and the resulting freedom and power in the life of the individual, who has attained the soul's supreme quest.

5¼ x 7½. Cloth, $2.00 Net



HUMANITY AT THE CROSS-ROADS

The writer believes that the true ideals of any people grow out of its actual philosophy of life and its conception of religion. Organized religion to-day has failed to grasp the significance of the new truth and seems powerless to furnish the vital forms of expression through which the resurging life shall find adequate and living manifestation. Can religion regain its lost leadership and give to the world the great ethical and spiritual dynamic demanded in the new age now dawning?

ARMANDE. By Edmond and Jules de Goncourt. Translated by Alfred E. Haserick and with an introduction by W. D. Orcutt.

Of the Brothers Goncourt, Victor Hugo says, "Charming writers, two minds from which spring a single jet of genius." Armande is their masterpiece.

BALLAD OF READING GAOL. By Oscar Wilde.

Only when neglected and despised, ill and miserable, did sincere feeling bring forth in Oscar Wilde his one great poem, "The Ballad of Reading Gaol;" the utter hopelessness of the condemned felon is communicated to the reader's mind in all its gruesome intensity.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE. By Sir John Lubbock.

An inspiring essay on the blessings of life and the beautiful world in which we live, to which are added strong essays on The Troubles of Life, Labor and Rest, Religion, The Hope of Progress, etc.

CHRISTMAS CAROL. By Chas. Dickens.

This familiar story possesses perennial interest for young and old. Whether regarded as a ghost story, a character study, or a parable, the "Christmas Carol" is one of the most brilliant tales in English literature.

CORSAIR AND LARA. By Lord Byron. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

The extraordinary interest at the present time in Byron demands that two of his complete works be presented in this series. No better understanding of this "wild child of nature" can be obtained than in Corsair and Lara.

COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The incident on which the story of The Courtship of Miles Standish is based was a tradition in the family of the author and is a good portrayal of early colonial life.

DESTRUCTION OF POMPEII. By Pliny and Bulwer.

Two interesting descriptions of the Destruction of Pompeii: one by Pliny, the greatest scientist of the ancient world, who wrote as an eye-witness.

DISCOURSES OF EPICTETUS. Selections.

In Sir John Lubbock's "List of the One Hundred Best Books," the Bible is first, the "Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" second, and "Epictetus" third.

ELEGY AND OTHER POEMS. By Thomas Gray.

The "Elegy in a Country Churchyard" occupies as secure a place among English classics as "Hamlet" or "Paradise Lost," but some readers may not realize that several poems by Gray are equally perfect and impressive. This collection contains all of Gray's verse which is really worth knowing.

ENOCH ARDEN. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

In "Enoch Arden" we have one of the most beautiful and pathetic poems in the English language. Had Tennyson never written another line, he would have gone down in history as one of the greatest poets of his time.

EVANGELINE. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The purity, sweetness and refinement with which Longfellow delineates the affections of the heart make his poetry the most welcome of visitants at the domestic fireside, and of all his poems, "Evangeline" is probably the most popular.

FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mr. Emerson is no bookish theorist. He does not draw his conclusions from syllogisms, but from his personal observations of men and things.

GOLD BUG. By Edgar Allan Poe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

A story of great effect and absorbing interest, one of those rare books that once opened is not closed until the last paragraph is finished.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS. By Fenelon.

Judiciously made extracts from the letters of the great archbishop. Fenelon united in his personality the sweetness of the saint with the strength of the reformer, and his personal correspondence contains the very heart and soul of religious devotion.

GOLDEN WINGS. A Prose Romance and a Poem. By William Morris.

Two early productions of Morris's with the same title. The Prose Romance, written in 1856, while still a student at Oxford, and the Poem, two years later, both of which show the irresistible and quaint charm apparent in all the later writings of this architect, painter, designer, craftsman, socialist and author—who, on the death of Tennyson, was thought by many would be the next Poet Laureate.

HEROISM AND CHARACTER. By Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As Friendship and Love are linked, so Heroism and Character are complementary. In fact, we perceive a strong connection between the four subjects.

HOLY GRAIL. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

This idyl, which must rank as one of the greatest of Tennyson's poetical achievements, came to him suddenly, "as if by a breath of inspiration."

KING OF THE GOLDEN RIVER. By John Ruskin.

"The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841, at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement, without any idea of publication. Later, with the passive assent of Ruskin, the charming allegory was publicly printed, and literature is thereby the gainer of this most pleasing little work.

L'ARLESIENNE. By Alphonse Daudet. With a biographical sketch by M. F. Sweetser.

L'Arlesienne is the best of Daudet's dramas, and is responsible for his fame as a playwright as well as a novelist.

LADY MONTAGU. Selected Letters.

Lady Mary Montagu, who lived from 1690 to 1762, derived her marvellous literary talents from her relationship to Henry Fielding, the novelist, and Sir John Evelyn, the diarist.

LEAVES OF GRASS. Selections. By Walt Whitman.

Walt Whitman is looked upon as the one distinctive American poet, the product of our New World democracy. Though perhaps lacking in grace, his poems are inspired by his enthusiasm and humanitarianism, and in every line the reader sees the personality of the poet—noble, generous and lofty—a great man in the highest sense of the word.

LETTERS TO A YOUNG MAN ABOUT TOWN. By William Makepeace Thackeray.

These charming but comparatively little known essays originally appeared in Punch, and, until the present edition, have been reissued in a volume by themselves but once, and then in a privately printed book now extremely rare. In his humorous and satirical manner, Thackeray shows up the follies and life of a young man about town in the middle of the nineteenth century.

LITTLE BOOK OF EASTERN WISDOM. Collected by Rev. Claude Field.

A notable collection of epigrams, quotations, etc., from the immortal philosophers and sages of ancient times.

LORD CHESTERFIELD'S LETTERS. Selections.

These letters of sound counsel and practical advice, addressed to his son, Philip, are what Lord Chesterfield's reputation rests upon, and it is through these that the name of Chesterfield has become symbolic of culture and refinement.

LOVE LETTERS OF A VIOLINIST. By Eric Mackay.

Originally published in England, with the name of the author suppressed, these charming love sonnets created much discussion as to authorship, some even claiming they were the work of Swinburne—from whom only it seemed could originate the fertility of thought, grace of language, ingenuity, skill in the ars poetica, wealth of words, and classic resources.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. I. By L'Abbé Prévost. With an introduction by M. F. Sweetser.

MANON LESCAUT. Vol. II.

Not only in French, but in the emotional literature of our world has Manon Lescaut taken a classical place, and is a profound lesson drawn from weakness of human nature.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. By Edward Everett Hale.

Written to foster patriotism during the Civil War, "The Man Without a Country" still holds to-day as large a claim as ever on the English-reading public.

MEN AND WOMEN. By Robert Browning.

Browning is known the world over for his deep-veined humanity and rare faculty of dramatic representation. These poems have as much red blood in them as the dramas of Shakespeare. The present volume contains all the principal favorites which have sung themselves into the memory of every reader who loves vigorous, manly poetry.

MILTON. By Lord Macaulay.

A profound and masterly essay on the leader of English literature of the seventeenth century by the leading literary critic of the nineteenth century.

OLD CHRISTMAS. By Washington Irving.

An ideal picture of an old-fashioned Christmas in rural England. The good old customs, and the quaint games handed down from generation to generation, are pictured in a most interesting manner.

PASSION IN THE DESERT, AND AN EPISODE IN THE REIGN OF TERROR. Selected Prose Works of Honore de Balzac.

Balzac is thought by many competent authorities to be the greatest novelist of the world. His short stories are quite as remarkable in their way as his longer stories, and the very best of them are to be found in the present collection.

PAUL AND VIRGINIA. By Bernardin de St. Pierre. With a biographical sketch of the author.

One of the most beautiful works in romantic literature, a production which gave St. Pierre everlasting fame.

POEMS OF SENTIMENT. By Byron.

Probably no poet in the English-speaking world has ever held as high and well recognized a position as a "sentimentalist" as George Gordon, Lord Byron. His master lyrics dealing with the subject of love, consisting principally of his shorter poems, have been selected and edited with the greatest care for this edition.

POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. By Benjamin Franklin.

A selection of the best sayings from the numerous issues of "Poor Richard." Helpful and inspiring; the work of a most practical mind, written for a most practical nation.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS. By Dr. John Brown.

"Rab and His Friends," a story of a mastiff, full of beauty and pathos. In this volume the story of Marjorie Fleming, an interesting case of remarkable precociousness, is also published.

RECESSIONAL AND OTHER VERSES. By Rudyard Kipling.

Including all of the Departmental Ditties.

RIP VAN WINKLE AND THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW. By Washington Irving.

These immortal stories of Dutch life in colonial New York are the best pieces of writing that Mr. Irving contributed to literature. The pathos, quaintness, and wit are impressed upon the reader in a striking way.

ROCHEFOUCAULD'S MAXIMS.

These maxims, written by a cavalier of Richelieu's time, one who knew the world as few have an opportunity of knowing it, are witty, subtle and true. The author has grasped the whole of life, and weakness of human nature, of fashion and conventionalities are strongly depicted.

RUBAIYAT OF OMAR KHAYYAM.

The "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" is one of the greatest contributions that the East has given to literature. The subtle thought, the soft Oriental imagery, and the delicacy of the poetry will appeal to the poetic imagination of all ages.

SALOME. By Oscar Wilde.

Originally published in French, "Salome" was translated into English the following year, and since then translations have appeared in Spanish, Swedish, German, Polish and Russian, showing the truth of the German statement that to-day Oscar Wilde is a "World's Poet" and "Salome" a "World's Play."

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. By Sheridan.

Sheridan's comedies are second only to Shakespeare's. "The School for Scandal" undoubtedly his masterpiece, has had an undiminished popularity from the moment it was published to the present day.

SELECTED POEMS. By John Boyle O'Reilly.

Through several causes, but not lack of merit, Boyle O'Reilly is fast becoming merely a name to the generation of to-day. Therefore, pains have here been taken to perpetuate the choicest productions of his pen—poems worthy of rank with the masterpieces of English literature.

SIR ROGER DE COVERLEY PAPERS. By Addison.

The famous "Sir Roger de Coverley Papers" are not only treasured by all students of English literature, but by historians as well. For nowhere do we find a finer description of English life in the eighteenth century than in these papers. Furthermore, in the character of Sir Roger we find the finest delineation in English literature of an ideal gentleman.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER. By Oliver Goldsmith.

"She Stoops to Conquer" is a comedy abounding in the keenest wit and satire. Human nature is depicted by a masterly observer, and the characters of the play are true to life.

SKETCHES OF YOUNG COUPLES. By Charles Dickens.

Some of the earlier sketches of the immortal Dickens, in which, however, are seen the clear and wonderful characterizations unequaled by any other modern author, and even unsurpassed in his later and better known works. His people live before you.

SOME FRUITS OF SOLITUDE. Reflections and Maxims. By William Penn.

"To quote a book like this were impossible; at least one can hand it on, with a wrench, one to another. Some of the 'Fruits' are sounder, juicier, and grown against a sunnier wall of experience than others, but all are delicate, and the little basket which holds them will be found in all times and places a peaceful and sweet companion."—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SONNETS FROM THE PORTUGUESE. By Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

In the "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a most exquisite series of love poems, we have Mrs. Browning at her best, and in sentiment and lofty rhyme she is at times truly Shakespearian.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT. By Matthew Arnold.

An epoch-making essay, by one of the most cultured, practical and inspiring minds of our century.

TALES OF A WAYSIDE INN. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Containing some of the best of his shorter poems, the first part of which was brought out in 1863, and which met with immediate success.

THOUGHTS OF MARCUS AURELIUS. Selections.

Marcus Aurelius was the purest and loftiest of the pagan philosophers. "His great work, 'The Thoughts,'" says Lecky, "not only forms one of the most impressive, but also forms one of the truest books in the whole range of religious literature."

UNDINE. By Baron Friedrich de la Motte-Fouque.

The charming and graceful narrative, Undine, is a gem in German literature. It breathes of the fresh fragrance of the woods, and is animated by beautiful thoughts that people the sea and air with nymphs and spirits.

WERTHER. By J. W. von Goethe. With a biographical sketch of the author.

To appreciate the romantic and sentimental nature of the mighty Goethe one must read Werther. Though o'ershadowed by the author's other works, yet Werther alone would have made him immortal.

WILL O' THE MILL AND BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH. By R. L. Stevenson.

This little parable of a life contains a wonderful moral and is also an irresistibly fascinating story in itself, written in the most exquisite English. Many critics think it Stevenson's masterpiece.

and a large family to play with." How her three wishes are granted, how she wanders about the country, not on a magic carpet, but in the company of a large family of cousins who are temporarily without a home, and finally meets her father, is told with many exciting details.

RHYMES BEFORE TAKING

Harold Speakman.

An altogether delicious little book about newly-engaged couples. There are fifty verses—from Joel Cornish and Arrabella Perkins, who work on the farm, to Natalie DuPont and Stuyvesant Van der Neer, who do not work at all. What each girl thinks is on one page, and what her man thinks is on the opposite page. The result is delightful. Tucked away among the more humorous verses are several of true and sincere sentiment. Decorated throughout in two colors by the author. The cover design is in full color.

THE YOUNGEST SHEPHERD

RENAISSANCE AND ITS MAKERS, THE

The purpose of this book is to lay before the general reader the main tendencies of the epoch that laid the foundation of modern life and thought. It also serves as a guide to the best of the vast literature of the subject.

The Renaissance movement in Italy is traced to its source and the consequent progress throughout Europe is set out in the historical order. The story is not confined to the Revival of Learning, but embraces its influence on Art, Philosophy, Social Life and Character. An effort has been made to focus in easy narrative the transition from Mediævalism to Modernism, and give a succinct account of the Fourteenth Century Revolution and its consequences for succeeding generations. Beginning with St. Francis of Assisi, the story ends with Francis Bacon. The method is episodic. We see the qualified Renaissance premonition in Dante, the last great Mediævalist; we observe the new spirit active in Petrarch, the first great modern, and in his pupil, Boccaccio. We follow the Renaissance beyond the Alps, into Germany, where Renaissance becomes Reformation; into the France of Rabelais, the Spain of Cervantes, the England of Sir Thomas Moore.

The book is copiously and beautifully illustrated in color and black and white.

THE ENGLISH YEAR

"The English Year" is an endeavor to present by word and picture the meaning and savor of the months and seasons. Wind and rain and frost; birds and beasts and insects; grasses and mosses and trees; the stars, even the accidents of our almanacs, combine to give each month a very distinct character. Without in any way attempting to exhaust the category, the authors have described under each month what is most characteristic.

The series of beautiful plates from some of the choicest efforts of living English artists, combined with Mr. Seaby's delightful drawings (nearly 200 in number), go to make these volumes undoubtedly the most charming nature books ever published.

SOME THINGS THAT MATTER, by Lord Riddell.

Net, $2.00

We are all self-made men (or women), consciously or unconsciously. We make our habits, our habits make us. If we gain control of our habits we gain control of our lives.

How to concentrate, how to observe, how to read, how to think, these are some of the things that Lord Riddell takes up. As one of the largest newspaper proprietors in the world, a man whose grasp of world affairs has twice placed him at the head of news service for two continents, once at the Peace Conference in Paris and recently at the Disarmament Conference in Washington, his opinion upon which things do matter must carry weight. From the authority of his own splendid career he offers a few basic rules of life.

OLD MOROCCO AND THE FORBIDDEN ATLAS. By C. E. Andrews.

Illustrated from Photographs. Octavo. Net, $3.00

Through a region of Morocco little traversed by white men and over a pass of the Atlas Mountains frequented chiefly by wild tribes and banditti, Mr. Andrews takes his adventurous way in a most delightful story.

Alert to the beauty and the picturesque quality of the people and their country, Mr. Andrews has been able to capture in his narrative the barbaric splendor of the scene. His book abounds in color, adventure, humorous episode and vivid pictures of great loveliness. He makes what he saw live again in his pages—a brilliantly reflected image in the clear stream of his writing.

"Old Morocco and the Forbidden Atlas" is a story enchanted days and nights under the Eastern stars.

MADAME DE STAEL: Her Trials and Triumphs. By Lieut.-Col. Andrew C. P. Haggard, D. S. O. Author of "Sidelights on the Court of France," "Louis the XIV. in Court and Camp," etc.

With Portraits. Octavo. Net, $5.00

Napoleon, in the midst of his most sanguinary campaigns, always kept in mind Germaine de Staël. He might subjugate Europe but he could never control that voluble, volcanic, magnetic personality and she could work him unknown harm. He exiled her from her beloved Paris only to set her loose in Europe to talk brilliantly, continuously, with such tremendous zest that she overpowered her hearers everywhere.

The life of Germaine de Staël was a succession of stormy, intense love affairs, political intrigues and brilliant salons. An unescapable, exuberant personality, shackled by neither conventions nor inhibitions fairly steps out of the pages of her story. And it is the story of a woman who lived every moment of her life to the fullest.

LIFE OF SIR WILLIAM HARCOURT, by A. G. Gardiner.

Photogravure Frontispieces, Two Volumes Boxed, Octavo, Net, $12.00

This without doubt is one of the great outstanding biographies of our generation. Both for its subject and its distinction of style it deserves to go at the head of the list of modern biographical studies. The career of William Vernon Harcourt covers one of the richest and most eventful periods in recent English history. Gladstone, Disraeli, Queen Victoria, Napoleon, General Gordon, Rosebery, Parnell, Pusey and Newman—these are some of the famous men and women who fill the pages of this brilliant biography. From his early university days down through his newspaper activities, his entrance to the Bar and his assumption of government office, the story unfolds against a background of the most interesting events in England and Europe. Harcourt had the tremendous physical vigor and mental equipment to carry him into the thick of the fray and he was one of the notable figures of his time.

THE IRISH FREE STATE, by Albert C. White. Author of "Ireland: A Study in Facts," etc. Price Later

The setting up of the Irish Free State, a fact of tremendous political significance for the United States, promises to compose a situation that has baffled many of the best minds of England and Ireland for generations. The proclamation of the Irish Free State creates no new unit of nationality, man-made. Its roots reach far down into one of the most ancient of civilizations. It is the logical result of an old and always powerful national urge.

It is then a brief history of the Irish struggle from the days of the Gaelic kings to the present day, that Mr. White has written. No man can understand an Irishman who does not know the history of Ireland.

FACING REALITY. By Esmé Wingfield-Stratford. Ex-fellow of King's, Cambridge. Author of "The Reconstruction of Mind," "The History of English Patriotism," etc. Octavo. $2.50

Are we socially and morally bankrupt? Is present society incapable of solving the Sphinx's new riddle?

Only a change in the basic attitude of men's minds can save the present civilization, says the author of this book. The modern world is a world of chimeras, invented by advertising, by journalism, by political and social catch phrases, by men's disinclination to think straight. The truth that the past has written plain is that failure to adapt itself to a changing reality has brought to annihilation previous forms of life. One more war will wipe out humanity yet we continue in the old paths. The Sphinx has changed the riddle, while we, unheeding, are giving the old answer.

Mr. Wingfield-Stratford writes with a keen humor but a conviction of the seriousness of the situation that carries across the footlights. He shows us that our world, social, literary, political, artistic, is paper, that we are conforming to new names of things, not to the things themselves. He offers a solution, very simple but basic. A book to untangle one's thoughts and start them on a new line.

MY IMPRESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES. By Margot Asquith. Author of "Margot Asquith: An Autobiography."

Net, $1.50

For frankness Margot Asquith holds the palm. Her autobiography was a storm-centre for months for this very reason. Now she has set down what she thinks of us after a tumultuous tour of the United States last fall. The book is brilliant and provocative and will be read and discussed for its friendly, spicy estimation of a nation she admires very greatly.

THE POMP OF POWER. Anonymous.

Octavo, Net, $5.00

The first ten pages of this book disclose unmistakably the fact that the author is a man of note who held a position of great importance in the British Government during the war and later in the Peace Conference. His revelations of what went on behind the scenes add a fascinating page to the inside history of the last few years. Much that was confidential and unrecorded is set down here and the strange drama that went on under the official surface, a drama that involved almost every figure of prominence, French, Italian, British and American, is played out before our eyes. It is a book that is bound to cause a stir on both sides of the Atlantic.

SELF HEALING SIMPLIFIED. By George L. Perin, D.D.

A book like "Self Healing Simplified" has been desperately needed by the ordinary person everywhere—the person who is willing to do his part toward getting well but who has no idea what to do. Dr. Perin tells him what to do, what to say, what to think; how to order his daily life; how to acquire confidence; how to approach faith. Discarding all extreme claims, Dr. Perin says in the first place that the mind can heal; that it may not be able to heal alone; that, obviously, no form of healing can be successful without a favorable mental state, and that the favorable mental state can usually be acquired by the sincere and conscious effort of the sufferer. This effort should take the form of certain affirmations, which he gives. Probably the best and simplest book on auto-suggestion so far written.

ON A CHINESE SCREEN, by W. Somerset Maugham. Author of "The Moon and Sixpence," "The Trembling of a Leaf," "Liza of Lambeth," etc.

Net, $2.00

Sharply etched with an athletic economy of strokes are these brief studies of the motley melee of humanity, French, Indian, English, Chinese, American which varying interests have brought together in China. Mr. Maugham singles out a figure here and there and tells a tale of it, quaint and impressive, terrible, amusing, always unexpected. He brings out all its inherent drama or tragi-comedy and leaves the moral to the reader.

"The Moon and Sixpence," had a quality which made it unforgettable. "On a Chinese Screen," shows the same brilliance, the same penetration, the same balance between irony and broad sympathy.

THE LONDON SPY. By Thomas Burke. Author of "More Limehouse Nights," "The Outer Circle," etc.

Net, $2.00

A fascinating book on the strange streets and byways of London by the man who wrote "Limehouse Nights." Thomas Burke is a devotee of London, good and bad, grimy, stately, smug and grim. He describes London streets and the shifting kaleidoscope of life passing there in infinite variety.

In the Streets of Rich Men; In the Streets of Good Company; In the Streets of the Motley; In the Street Called Queer; In the Streets of the Simple; In the Streets of Don't Care; these are some of his chapters. It is the Burke of "Limehouse Nights" and "The Outer Circle" through whose eyes we see the heart of London.

PERFECT BEHAVIOR, by Donald Ogden Stewart. Author of "A Parody Outline Of History."

Illustrated, Net, $1.50

Another Stewart success! Here in all its gorgeous absurdity is the parody handbook of perfect manners. For months we have been flooded with detailed advice on everything from table-manners to the proper deportment at funerals. Donald Ogden Stewart has omitted nothing. He ranges from the simple etiquette of the introduction, where uncharted pitfalls await the unwary, to the more difficult technique of engagements and weddings, courtship, travel, sports, balls and parlor games. It is a book of unalloyed delight.

PIECES OF HATE: And Other Enthusiasms. By Heywood Broun.

Net, $2.00

The Ringmaster of the Big Show, or, to be more current, the Balieff of the All-American Chauve-Souris!

Mr. Broun's motto might well be Terrence's Humani nihil alienum. The boxing-ring, the theatre, books, politics, horse-racing, child-rearing, college sports—they all find their place in his "column" and his magazine articles.

They are all here in this book. Some of his audience, now grown to national proportions, read Broun for his humor, for the clear pungency of his thought. But perhaps the thing which stands out most sharply in this volume, apart from the delightfully racy style, is the sense of fair play. The art of being a "good sport" has suffered several notable relapses. Read Broun and re-learn it.

ROBIN HOOD'S BARN: The Confessions of a Garden Adventurer. By Margaret E. Bailey. With Pen and Ink Drawings by Whitman Bailey.

Net, $2.00

The garden to which Miss Bailey admits us in these delightful pages is as much a state of mind as an actual bit of earth. Her material garden lies on the border line of Rhode Island and Massachusetts and one end of it is washed by the sea that works all sorts of wonders among the salt marsh fringes. But it is not only of wild life and her flowers that she evokes a vivid sense. No less real is the spirit of place so strong in her pages. The reader is a favored friend who passes the barrier of her close and finds a cool house where one may gossip of the world and his wife and look out upon an old-fashioned garden. The black and white drawings add much to the charm of this book.

NEITHER HERE NOR THERE, by Oliver Herford. Author of "The Rubaiyat of a Persian Kitten," "This Giddy Globe," etc.

Net, $1.50

As a humorous commentator upon morals and manners with special attention to cats, tutti frutti trees, Bolshevism for babies and trouser creases, Mr. Herford leaves nothing to be desired. His book is a mirror of engaging frivolity, an incisive but good-humored thrust at the follies of the day, while here and there a very rich and moving note is struck, as in "The Bon Dieu's Birthday Party" where one finds in full flower a tender fantasy that is the greatest charm of Mr. Herford's imagination.

STICKFULS: Reflections of a Newspaper Minion. By Irvin S. Cobb. Author of "Speaking of Operations—" "Sundry Accounts," etc.

Net, $2.00

Irvin Cobb is admittedly one of the great newspaper reporters of this age—or of any age. Stickfuls of the autobiography of his newspaper days—full of fun and interest and drama.

MARGOT ASQUITH: An Autobiography.

Two new volumes. Illustrated. Octavo. Net, $7.50

No book of personal memoirs has in years created the international sensation that attended the publication of Margot Asquith's autobiography.

But her story is only half told; and that which remains has to do with a period (the War years in London) which is probably more momentous than any other in English history.

Mrs. Asquith saw it from the innermost circle outward. Upon the terms of an old friendship and intimacy she met and talked with the great figures who determined the destinies of England and of Europe.

MAROONED IN MOSCOW. By Marguerite E. Harrison.

Octavo. Frontispiece. Net, $3.00

For months, literally, America has been asking: What is really going on in Russia? Is the Soviet a new hope of political freedom—or is it an old tyranny tricked out in fresh clothes?

Here is the story of an American woman who spent eighteen months in Soviet Russia and saw the thing work. Part of the time she was in prison, and her tale is one of the most dramatic stories imaginable. Mrs. Harrison relates only what came under her own eyes; but her observation was wide and acute and there emerges from this narrative an extraordinarily detailed and vivid picture of the actual manner of daily life in Russia today.

THE MEMOIRS OF DJEMAL PASHA: TURKEY, 1913-21, by Djemal Pasha.

Net, $6.00

These memoirs of the man who was successively Military Governor of Constantinople, Minister of Public Works and Naval Minister, and who, with Enver and Talaat, formed the triumvirate which dictated Turkish policy and guided Turkey's fate after the coup d'etat of 1913, are of extraordinary interest and the greatest importance. They give the first and only account from the Turkish side of events in Turkey since 1913. The development of relations with Germany, France and England immediately before the war is clearly traced. Djemal Pasha was sent to govern Syria and to command the 4th Army, which was to conquer Egypt. The attack on the Suez Canal is graphically described, and the British reverses in the two battles of Gaza. Further important sections are devoted to the revolt of the Arabs and the question of responsibility for the Armenian massacres.

THE ART OF LAWN TENNIS: Revised Edition for 1922. By W. T. Tilden, 2d. Winner of the World's Championship 1920, 1921. Winner of the United States Championship 1920, 1921. Winner, with W. M. Johnston, of the Davis Cup, 1920, 1921.

Illustrated with unusual action photographs. Net, $2.00

The Champion's keen and fascinating book on the game and its personalities has gone into its third edition, and Mr. Tilden has added an up-to-the-minute and prophetic survey of the new stars, those youngsters who are rapidly getting into the focus of the public eye. He believes that Arnold Jones will step into the shoes of Vincent Richards in the Junior Class, winning the field by a wide margin; in Charles Watson he sees a possible follower of Garland. Of boys under fifteen Tilden believes Alexander Weimer of Philadelphia has the biggest future.

This is the clearest and most vivid book on tennis on the market. W. T. Tilden has something to say to the novice, he has something to say to the good player and to the expert.

THIRTEEN YEARS AT THE RUSSIAN COURT. A Personal Record of the Last Years and Death of Czar Nicholas II and His Family. By Pierre Gilliard (Formerly Tutor to the Czarevitch).

Illustrated with Photographs. Octavo. Net, $6.00

Thirteen years at the Russian Court, 1904-1917, as tutor to the Czarevitch, were sufficient for M. Gilliard to watch the whole tragic drama of this fated family play itself out, scapegoats sacrificed to the demand of the times. . . . He was a member of the household during those years when the mysterious illness of the only son and heir was preying upon the mind and heart of the Czarina, moulding her to desperate faith in the miraculous powers of Rasputin. He was with them when the war was declared, when the Revolution broke over their heads and during the humiliating days of their captivity. He was separated from them only when they were hurried away to the scene of their murder. The facts of this final scene in detail were preserved partly through M. Gilliard's efforts.

The book is written simply, with restraint, but through the incidents it describes the drama of a lifetime is told and the simple moral grandeur of the Imperial family revealed.

RECOLLECTIONS AND REFLECTIONS. By a Woman of No Importance. Author of "Memories Discreet and Indiscreet" and "Further Indiscretions."

Octavo. Net, $4.00

Random memories of lords and ladies, sportsmen, kings, queens, cooks, chauffeurs and empresses. The author's wit, philosophy and insight make of it a delicious blend.

There are stories of Gladstone's love-making, of Empress Eugenie and the diamond the soldier swallowed, of Balfour's hats, Henry Irving's swelled head and the cosmetics of Disraeli. There are stories of etiquette at a hair-dressers' ball, side by side with comments on Kitchener's waltzing and much else.

Delightfully rambling, specific and imprudent is the Woman of No Importance, whose "Memories Discreet and Indiscreet" and "Further Indiscretions" have been among the most popular books of recent years.

MEMORIES AND BASE DETAILS. By Lady Angela Forbes.

Illustrated with Photographs. Octavo. Net, $6.00

Margot Asquith set a fashion and began a new period of frank and intimate memoirs. Lady Angela carries on the tradition with remarkable ability and a wealth of fascinating detail concerning the men and women who now occupy the social and political limelight. Lady Angela Forbes was the daughter of the fourth Earl of Rosslyn and the youngest of one of the largest and most prominent families in England—Kitchener, Lord Roberts, Disraeli, the Kaiser, Prince Edward—she has dined or sailed or hunted with them all on the most informal terms. She tells of the gaieties, the mistakes and tragedies of herself and her friends with engaging frankness.

ROSINANTE TO THE ROAD AGAIN. By John Dos Passos. Author of "Three Soldiers," etc.

Net, $2.00

Don Quixote mounted upon Rosinante and went forth to adventure. In much the same spirit two friends journey afoot through the Spanish countryside and set down their adventures in these pages.

Richly colored scenes, quiet interludes at wayside inns, mountain and valley, old towns rich in story, much talk with high and low and very alert observations of the new currents in an ancient civilization make up this delightful and revealing record.

A book of youth, marked with freshness and personality, it reveals the author of "Three Soldiers" in a new light.

MISCELLANIES—Literary and Historical. By Lord Rosebery.

Two Volumes, Octavo. Boxed. Net, $10.00

To all lovers of good prose it will seem indeed time that the world at large be given an opportunity to read Lord Rosebery. His is an ability, a dignity and a charm of lucid phrase, that lends itself admirably to the familiar form he has chosen and the subjects he takes up are dear to all men with a love for the personalities behind the outstanding figures of the past.

Robert Burns, as Lord Rosebery talks of him, walks about in Dumfries and holds spellbound by sheer personal charm the guests of the tavern. There are papers on Burke, on Dr. Johnson, on Robert Louis Stevenson and many others. One group deals with Scottish History and one with the service of the state. The last is a study of the Genius Loci of such places of mellow associations as Eton, and the Turf.
In all, two volumes of high flavor to be read with leisurely gusto by those of discernment and appreciation.

A CENTURY OF BANKING IN NEW YORK: 1822-1922. By Henry Wysham Lanier. With many illustrations from Rare Old Prints and Paintings.

Octavo. Net, $5.00

Dedicating his rich and picturesque pages to "the ferocious City which devours and forgets its own history," Henry Wysham Lanier sets down a chronicle of one hundred years of New York's financial life with the romantic appeal of fiction.

For one who has a special interest in the beginnings of American banking, as well as for the reader whose imagination plays about the amusing and dramatic events of a generation that is gone, this recital of Manhattan's own story is of great charm. Mr. Lanier begins his tale with the yellow fever epidemic of 1822 when all the banks of New York, to say nothing of 100,000 people, fled "from the city to the country"—that is, from lower Broadway to the healthful village of Greenwich.

Net, $1.50

With the passing of the theory that woman's place was in the home—especially in the kitchen, it has been discovered that men after all know far more about food and its preparation than women do. If anyone questions this, he has only to inspect the irresistible array of dishes described in this volume. The recipes are all from men and are set forth with a blue-print, fold-on-dotted-line particularity which will make cooking as easy as A B C. Never before have the favorite dishes of so many distinguished men been described. Here are authors, actors, artists, scientists, business men and the President of the United States all telling what they like best and how to make it.

WHAT TO EAT AND HOW TO PREPARE IT. By Elizabeth A. Monaghan. Based on the principles of diet laid down by Alfred W. McCann in "The Science of Eating."

Here is the simplest and most practical book written on how to choose your meals and how to cook them so that none of the nutritive elements are wasted. Miss Monaghan explains the few basic rules of a balanced diet, provides varying menus, recipes and special diets for special cases. She devotes a chapter to the case of those of us who must eat in restaurants, a chapter to the girl who works, a chapter to weight control, a chapter to children.

TOMORROW WE DIET. By Nina Wilcox Putnam. Author of "West Broadway," "It Pays to Smile," etc.

Net, $1.00

You have been, you must have been in your secret heart, allured by those advertisements which show how you can have just that slim yet lovely outline (you know, the picture where there's two of her in one and only one of her in the other), but you probably never actually got around to putting out the $10.00 to find out the little secret that made all the difference. Now you can save your $10.00.

Nina Wilcox Putnam has tried them all: Beastly Buns, Feed and Fade Away, Dr. Blank's Rubber Garments, all of them. What is more, she did find the way to get thin, the one and only way to get thin and keep thin! Anyhow, thin enough.

LITTLE ESSAYS OF LOVE AND VIRTUE. By Havelock Ellis. Author of "The Task of Social Hygiene," "Literary, Scientific and Medical Essays in War Time," etc.

Net, $1.50

That the world can be remoulded is a discovery of the 19th and 20th Centuries. To improve our morals we must first improve our knowledge, break through the sentimentality and platitudes which sheath family life. In the judgment of Mr. Ellis, it is more passion that we need, if we are to undo the work of Hate, if we are to add to the gaiety and splendor of life.

This, briefly, is the theme of this frank yet sincere inquiry into social and domestic relations by one who is known internationally for his sane and modern discussions of men and women in present-day society.

THE SECRET OF THE SAHARA: KUFARA. By Rosita Forbes.

New Edition Illustrated from Photographs. Octavo. Net, $3.00

Rosita Forbes, an Englishwoman, has just completed one of the most remarkable exploits in modern exploring. With no assistance but that of native guides she has penetrated to Kufara, which lies hidden in the heart of the Libyan Desert, a section of the Sahara. This is the region of a murderous and fanatical sect of Mohammedans known as the Senussi. No other white woman has ever been known to enter the sacred city of Paj, a gloomy citadel hewn out of rock, on the edge of a beautiful valley. The story of this woman's adventure, of the hairbreadth escapes, dangers, her life as a veiled Orah woman and her return to civilization is one of the most exciting and romantic tales imaginable. The book is illustrated with pictures taken by the author, many times under pain of death if detected.

THE EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH AND HIS TIMES. Reminiscences by Lieut.-General Baron von Margutti, C.V.O. With 8 Illustrations on Art Paper.

Octavo. Net, $6.00

It was Baron von Margutti who informed the Emperor Francis Joseph in 1914 that Serbia had rejected his ultimatum.

The character of the Emperor is a moot and obscure question. Here is a story of his life and the tragedy of the Hapsburgs written by one of his Aides-de-Camp, a man who knew the Emperor intimately and who knew the men and women who surrounded him.

The book is frankly and intimately written. Personalities and well-known characters take form in its pages and much new light is thrown on matters of great historical interest.

OUR NAVY AT WAR. By Josephus Daniels. Former Secretary of the Navy.

Net, $3.00

On April 2nd, 1917, not a single order had to be given to pass the United States Navy from a peace to a war basis. Five minutes after President Wilson signed the resolution, the message of war was received by the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets. Radio and cable carried it to Panama, Honolulu and the Asiatic. By the time the extras were on the street the United States Navy was ready for war.

The work of the years that followed proved the worth and power of that efficiency. It is the well-oiled wheel that makes no noise and receives no attention. For the people of the United States, therefore, Mr. Daniels, formerly Secretary of the Navy, has recorded the great achievement of their Navy in the World War.

GIVING AND RECEIVING: A Book of Essays. By E. V. Lucas. Author of "Rose and Rose," "Adventures and Enthusiasms," etc.

Net, $2.00

It is a great pleasure to announce a new volume of essays by Mr. Lucas. Since the appearance of "Roving East and Roving West" Mr. Lucas has been looking back at America through London fog. His visit here is still very fresh in the memory of a host of friends from California to the Battery, and his new book will be eagerly awaited. Sound philosopher and shrewd critic, his essays have an appeal that is unfailing.

BOOKS IN GENERAL. Third Series. By Solomon Eagle. (J. C. Squire)

Net, $2.00

Some men write of books as a child plays with blocks, solemnly arranging them one above the other. And some few write as Solomon Eagle does, of books as the best things in the world to talk about.

'If One Were Descended from Shakespeare," "Solid Ben Jonson," "The Romantic Generation," "Prohibition and the Poet"—he has something arresting to say and he says it delightfully.

POETS AND PURITANS, by T. R. Glover. Author of "The Pilgrim," "Jesus in the Experience of Men," etc.

Net, $4.00

The real business of the critic, says Mr. Glover, is to find out what is right with a great work of art, not what is wrong. That is the inspiration of this volume of intimate, personal studies, leisurely scrutinies of great men who are worth understanding. The essays, nine in number, deal with English writers: men as far apart in outlook and temperament as Bunyan and Boswell; Poets and Puritans; and men who were neither. In each case the endeavor is to realize a personality—to see a man in an environment, face to face with problems in art or religion, or both.

COLLECTED PARODIES. By J. C. Squire. Author of "Life and Letters," "Birds and Other Poems," etc.

Net, $2.00

J. C. Squire as a parodist has few equals today. His "Imaginary Speeches," "Steps to Parnassus" and "Tricks of the Trade" are among the most amusing bits of satire that have appeared in years. The best of these good-humored assaults upon our literary manners are here brought together in one volume. And those who cherish "The Christmas Garland" for sure relief in moments of gloom will add this new book of Squire's to the shelf with a sense of doubled security. The Repertory Drama, How They Do It and How They Would Have Done It, Imaginary Reviews and Speeches, and The Aspirant's Manual—they are all here for your delight.

TIMOTHY TUBBY'S JOURNAL. Anonymous. Illustrated by Herb Roth.

Net, $1.50

First appearing in "The Bookman" where it has met with a welcome like that which greeted "The Parody Outline of History," this delightful take-off of the visiting English novelist has been ascribed to half a dozen well-known writers. The real author, however, has not yet been smoked out. Timothy Tubby and his wife Theresa tour the United States and the anonymous author sets down the facts of lion-hunting with an impartiality that will delight the hearts of all who can enjoy a joke that is frequently on themselves. It is captivating, fooling, laughable, ridiculous, but with just enough truth to show both visitor and visited where they get off.

A PHILOSOPHER WITH NATURE. By Benjamin Kidd.

Net, $2.00

In this collection of arresting essays, by the well-known author of "Social Evolution" and "The Science of Power," nature is presented to us through the medium of an intensely human mind. Each essay vivid with the freshness and hope of youth and the healing virtue of the country.

Benjamin Kidd was always a keen observer of nature. He was engaged throughout his life in carrying out systematic observations on the habits and intelligence of animals and in the pursuit of this hobby collected a large number of notes. These essays, however, do not pretend to be scientific contributions, being in origin written more for the author's and reader's recreation than for purposes of advancing knowledge.

Importations

THE PLAYS OF HUBERT HENRY DAVIES. With an introduction by Hugh Walpole.

Two Volumes, Net, $10.00

American lovers of the drama have a special reason for interest in these two volumes. At the time of his first success Mr. Davies was working in San Francisco, whither he had come from England. It was Frohman who made him an offer that brought him to New York and began the series of productions that ended only with his death in Paris in 1917. These two volumes, very beautiful examples of fine bookmaking, contain the famous successes: "Cousin Kate," "Captain Drew On Leave" and "The Mollusc." Among the other plays included are: "A Single Man," "Doormats," "Outcasts," "Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace," "Lady Epping's Lawsuit." Hugh Walpole has contributed a very touching introduction.

CHINESE METTLE. Written and Illustrated by E. G. Kemp, F.R.S.G.S. Author of "The Face of China," "The Face of Manchuria, Korea and Russian Turkestan," etc.

Illustrated. Octavo. $3.00

A look into the real heart of China. Tourists throng to China, travel from seaport to seaport, and see even less of China herself than a visitor to New York sees of America. It is only in the interior where travel is a difficult adventure, that Chinese life is to be seen and the changing mettle of China to be felt.

How little we know of this great country, of its wealth and beauty, its men and women of mark we realize from the first page of Miss Kemp's unique and vivid account. It is of international importance that we gain a better understanding of China today. "Chinese Mettle" is a clear mirror of the shifting scenes of this new and powerful republic. Miss Kemp has illustrated her book herself, fully and richly.

MEMOIRS OF THE MEMORABLE. By Sir James Denham. Author of "Wake Up England."

Net, $5.00

The gracious charm, diverting wit and leisured culture of the past age of which he writes are the sauce with which Sir James serves up his fascinating memoirs. Walks with Browning; talks with Swinburne; daring disputations with Mark Pattison, it is of such truly memorable people that he writes. Lewis Carroll was Sir James's tutor. Disraeli, Kitchener, Gladstone, Beerbohm, were among his friends.

Sovereigns and statesmen, peers and poets, preachers, courtiers and brilliant ladies saunter through the pages. One is left with the feeling that Sir James was equally fortunate in his friends and his times.

A BOOK OF DRAWINGS. By George Belcher.

Octavo, Net, $4.00

Mr. George Belcher is probably the most popular English humorist artist of the day, and for years his regular drawing in the Tatler has been an event of the week. To Punch too he has been a contributor for a very long while. Not however until now has any representative collection of his searching transcripts from life been brought together.

POLICING THE PLAINS—Being the Real Life Record of the Famous Royal North-West Mounted Police. By R. G. MacBeth. Author of "The Romance of Western Canada."

Illustrated from Original Photographs. Net, $3.50

In the story of the great white North where men came face to face with life in its raw simplicity the most powerful and outstanding figures are those of the red-coated Royal Mounted in their ceaseless and lonely patrol across the plains. From the days of the Hudson Bay Company's rule and the rebellion of Reil, Mr. MacBeth sketches the history of this mobile force of men who have represented authority with a fearless devotion. He has written from first-hand knowledge and always with a strong sense of the danger and romance that shadowed their footsteps; the grim searches for criminals through hundreds of miles of the sub-arctic; the masterful handling of outlaws and the Indian rebellions. It surpasses in thrilling incident and danger all the fiction ever woven about these men.

FROM GLADSTONE TO LLOYD GEORGE. By Alexander Mackintosh. Author of "Joseph Chamberlain: An Honest Biography."

Octavo. Net, $4.00

To the Press, politics is a series of dramatic moments. Mr. Mackintosh has looked on at the drama of English politics from the Press Gallery since the days of Disraeli, and he has known all the prominent political actors behind the scenes.

Gladstone, Chamberlain, Randolph Churchill, Balfour, Asquith and Lloyd George, some point in each man's career has been the vital moment when his power hung in the balance, when the fate of the country depended on the influence of his personality. It is these great moments that Mr. Mackintosh has recorded.

VERMEER OF DELFT. By E. V. Lucas. Author of "Roving East and Roving West," "Adventures and Enthusiasms," etc.

Illustrated with Reproductions. Net, $3.00

E. V. Lucas writes of pictures with the love and contagious enthusiasm of the layman to whom color, line and form give the most intense pleasure. Vermeer is a comparatively recent discovery and only thirty-seven of his pictures, ten of which are in America, are known even now. There must be others, hidden by grime in some odd corner of the world; and after one has read Mr. Lucas's loving descriptions of the Vermeers already identified, his passionate eulogy of their perfection, the search of the missing masterpieces appears an absorbing quest worth a life-time of travel among the side streets and queer shops of the world.

ALARUMS AND EXCURSIONS. By James E. Agate. Author of "Responsibility."

Net, $2.00

This man fairly bristles with ideas and puts them on paper with a vigorous brilliance that is exhilarating. Mr. Agate is still the dramatic critic and his talk comes back again and again to things of or related to the stage, to an appreciation of Sarah Bernhardt, to a joyous tooting of the horn for Charlie Chaplin, to a discussion of the decay of criticism today. But he is off duty. He is writing for pure pleasure in the writing, in the same "robustiousness, confidence and zest" that distinguished his unique novel of two years ago, "Responsibility."

THE LEGENDS OF SMOKEOVER, by L. P. Jacks, Principal of Manchester College, Oxford.

Octavo, Net, $4.00

Smokeover is London or Birmingham or Antwerp or Pittsburgh or Baltimore—it does not really matter which you choose as long as you select a great modern industrial beehive. Mr. Jacks has the skill and the courage to look beneath the smoke pall which casts a sort of hazy glamor over the city and see what is really the manner of life of the 20th century. It is a provocative book, written in a delightful style, full of human figures that typify the thousands who make up our social life.

ILLUMINATION AND ITS DEVELOPMENT IN THE PRESENT DAY. By Sidney Farnsworth.

Numerous full-page illustrations including several in gold and colors also a large number of drawings by the author.

Octavo, Net, $7.50

The day has gone by when illumination of books and manuscripts can be looked upon as a harmless amusement. It is absolutely necessary that the artist of to-day should make a searching enquiry into some of the best forms of lettering and decoration. Undoubtedly the best way is to make a practical study of the many beautiful forms of writing and illumination used in the past, but surprising developments have taken place recently. This volume covers the subject from all sides.

WILD LIFE IN THE TREE TOPS. By C. W. R. Knight, M.C., F.R.P.S., M.B.O.V.

Illustrated with Photographs. Octavo. Net, $5.00

We have recently rediscovered that natural history may be the most interesting thing in the world if it is presented by the right observers.

Mr. Knight assuredly belongs to the select band of fascinating story-tellers of truth. His book on the feathered inhabitants of the tree tops, and some others not feathered, reads like an adventure story. For example, one may be a concealed guest at the almost indescribable feast of the Herons; or catch the Long Eared Owl at home in the depths of the pine forest; or the Merlin at his hunting. The observations of Captain Knight have revolutionized many conceptions regarding the tree-nesting community.

A remarkable ability in stalking and deceiving wild things has enabled him to procure a series of photographs of the utmost scientific value as well as of high artistic quality.

THE SOUL AND BODY OF AN ARMY. By General Sir Ian Hamilton. Author of "Gallipoli Diary," "A Staff-Officer's Scrap-Book," etc.

Octavo. Net, $5.00

After fifty years in the service Sir Ian Hamilton, Commander-in-Chief of the Gallipoli Expedition, has retired and is free to give the public some points on its dark horse, the army. Sir Ian agrees that war is the worst affliction that can befall mankind, but all the while it is plain that his heart's blood is crying, "The Army! The Army!" Immediately he is off on a brilliant and comprehensive summary of just what the army consists of today and of what it must consist tomorrow. Wit, jokes and personal memories he mixes in with a prediction of the future that must arouse intense interest and widespread controversy; and he writes it all with the dash and vigor, the exhilaration that have made him one of the greatest generals of our time.

COMMUNICATION WITH THE NEXT WORLD: The Right and Wrong Methods. A Text Book Given by William T. Stead from "Beyond the Veil." Edited by Estelle W. Stead.

Net, $1.00

W. T. Stead, the well-known spiritualist who went down on the Titanic in 1912, presents through a French medium a sound system for communication with the other world. This is the first book to explain the proper and improper methods of conducting seances, the different ways of communicating, the opportunities of increasing our sensitiveness to the thoughts and messages of those on a higher plane.

There is included in the book a symposium of opinions concerning the value of these messages from such great leaders as Sir Oliver Lodge, Rev. G. Vale Owen, Dr. Ellis T. Powell, etc. The frontispiece is a psychic photograph of W. T. Stead.

IN THE HANDS OF THE ARABS. By Zetton Buchanan.

Illustrated with Photographs. Net, $4.00

A woman's record of captivity among the Arabs. The book is written with the simplicity of perfect truth. The story Mrs. Buchanan had to tell when she regained civilization was so sensational that it needs no art to make it thrilling.

To a lonely Arab village in Mesopotamia a young British Irrigation officer brought his wife to join the British colony. Like a nightmare, the Arab Tribesmen rose against them, murdered them all in a night. This young wife alone was dragged off to the house of a neighboring Sheik and held prisoner. Her account is of that captivity in a harem, of her constant terror, thwarted hopes and final rescue.

LITTLE TREASURE ISLAND: Her Story and Her Glory. By Arthur Mee.

50 Illustrations. Net, $4.00

Not so much a history as a wonderful story of the spirit of England; how it shone in such men as Sir Francis Drake, Shakespeare, and so on; how it sprang forth in such women as Edith Cavell, in boys like Jack Cornwell and men like Captain Fryatt during those ravaging years through which we have just passed. Surely one of the most inspiring stories that a girl or boy could read. The book is beautifully illustrated with over fifty illustrations, photographs, reproductions of famous pictures and modern originals.

THE LEISURE OF AN EGYPTIAN OFFICIAL. By the Late Lord Edward Cecil, K.C.M.G., D.S.O.

Octavo. Net, $4.00

Lord Cecil had a cultured taste for life. He was set down in the midst of the social and official circles of the British in Egypt, a life which his humorous appreciation transmutes into an exquisitely amusing puppet show.

This book was written for Lord Cecil's own family and friends as a record of how he spent his days. He breakfasts at his peculiarly bad club, risks his life with an Egyptian cabby, sidetracks with tremendous dignity the numerous bland requests for government favors which pour in upon him. And so the day goes filled with amusing incident and gayly spent leisure. Lord Cecil enjoys it all with the joy of the wise onlooker to whom life is a fine art.

IN WHIG SOCIETY—1775-1818. Compiled from the Hitherto Unpublished Correspondence of Elizabeth, Viscountess Melbourne, and Emily Lamb, Countess Cowper, Afterwards Viscountess Palmerston. By Mabell, Countess of Airlie.

Octavo. Net, $4.00

In the age of cards and candle light, when Sheridan and Tom Moore were beaux and Pitt was the power in Parliament, Lady Melbourne ruled supreme in society. It was at her house that the wits and statesmen, fresh from parliamentary debate, sat at supper with the most beautiful women of their day until the candles guttered and bent in the gilded candelabra and the sedan chairs in the street showed tawdry in the light of dawn.

Lady Melbourne's letters and those of her daughter open a new window upon the eighteenth century. Political intrigue and social scandals take form in these hurried notes from reigning belles. It is treasure indeed that Lady Airlie, her great-great-granddaughter, presents in this collection of letters.

Poetry and Plays

A PUSHCART AT THE CURB, by John Dos Passos. Author of "Three Soldiers," "Rosinante To the Road Again," etc.

Net, $1.50

The tempestuous arrival of "Three Soldiers" and its remarkable success obscured for a time the fact that John Dos Passos was contributing to a number of periodicals, essays and poems of marked distinction and beauty. The essays have appeared in book form in "Rosinante to the Road Again," a book which critics everywhere have hailed as one of the finest pieces of prose writing an American writer has produced in years. Now comes his volume of verse displaying another side of his versatile genius. With a notable gift for descriptive writing, Mr. Dos Passos brings to these poems an imagination that refracts his thought like a prism. It is a book that will add much to his reputation for sensitive and fine workmanship.

THE BOOKMAN ANTHOLOGY OF VERSE (1922). Edited by John Farrar.

Net, $1.50

This Bookman Anthology is a unique thing as collections go. It has three distinct features which should make it of special interest. First, it is current; it reflects the poetry of the past year or two admirably. Second, it is catholic; the volume contains a widely diversified collection of the best-known and ablest of the moderns. Third, it is intimate and informal; Mr. Farrar has written a brief sketch to go with each poem, giving a pen picture of the author and many interesting details about the writing of the poems selected and the work of the authors generally.

TRANSLATIONS FROM THE CHINESE. By Christopher Morley. Author of "Chimneysmoke," "Songs For A Little House," "Mince Pie," etc.

Net, $1.50

It is Mr. Morley's contention that inscribed upon the secret tablets of every man's heart are certain hopes, fears and passions which are rarely expressed and never legible to the observer because they are written in a species of Chinese. These are the secrets he would unfold. Beneath the wit and satire of these little poems there is something more—a penetration of the exterior man, a voicing of the unspoken. They are like electric flashes revealing attitudes and expressions subdued by convention and the monotony of daily life.

CHIMNEYSMOKE. New Popular Edition, by Christopher Morley. Author of "Mince Pie," "Translations from the Chinese," etc. With frontispiece and jacket in full colors. End papers and many black and white drawings by Thomas Fogarty.

Cloth, Net, $1.50; Leather, Net, $2.50

This delightful volume representing the best of Mr. Morley's earlier work is now issued in a new popular edition of convenient pocket size. All of Mr. Fogarty's delicate drawings have been retained and this new format will in every way meet the high standard of bookmaking set for the original large edition. The demand for a selected edition of Mr. Morley's poems for school use, classes in contemporary poetry, reading circles and clubs will now be fully met at a popular price.

SPINDRIFT. By Milton Raison.

Net, $1.50

Fresh, stimulating sea poems by a boy of eighteen who sought adventure on the sea at the age of sixteen. There is more than precocity here; there is real feeling and a touch of genius. "If many modern poets remind one of a noisy syncopating orchestra, these brief pieces are like the clear melodious whistle of a boy on a fine summer evening, writes William McFee in his introduction.

POEMS: Second Series. J. C. Squire. By the Author of "Collected Parodies," "Poems: First Series," "Tricks of the Trade," etc.

Net, $2.00

Lyrics with the simplicity and lightness that make words sing. Mr. Squire's is a clear, keen mind that grasps imaginatively the forces that work complexly behind the facts and experiences of life. He builds material of the five senses into something beyond the senses, his English lanes and by-ways into the secret springs of joy by which men live.

EAST OF SUEZ. By W. Somerset Maugham. Author of "The Moon and Sixpence," "Of Human Bondage," "The Circle," etc.

Net, $1.25

A brilliant play that will be produced in New York this fall. Its setting is Chinese and its whole atmosphere dominantly oriental. The characters are Europeans and Mr. Maugham has again shown his remarkable power of bringing the white man into conflict with an alien civilization.

THE LOVE MATCH: A Comedy in Five Scenes. By Arnold Bennett. Author of "Milestones," "Sacred and Profane Love," "The Old Wives' Tale," etc.

Net, $1.50

Marriage a bargain? Nothing so nonsensical! Marriage, of course, is a game of poker. The best bluff wins. Furthermore Mr. Bennett distinctly implies that what marriage requires above all things is a genius for excellent repartee. At least he lavishes upon the quarrels of the millionaire Russ and his adorable Nina the most scintillating give-and-take throughout the five scenes of his latest delectable comedy.

But there's no logic in the thing, and woe to him who would plant it there, says that wise man, Arnold Bennett.

SWORDS. A Play in Four Acts. By Sidney Howard.

Illustrated. Net, $1.50

" 'Swords' is as remarkable a play as America has ever produced. It is a drama of action on a par with 'The Jest,' fused with the ecstasy of inspiration and the mysticism of the spirit and the body of woman. It sets Ghibelline and Guelph, Pope and Emperor, two nobles and a dog of the gutters fighting for a lady of strange and extraordinary beauty who is the bride of one noble and the hostage of the other. With the passions, the cruelties, and spiritual vision of the middle ages to build upon 'Swords' sweeps upward to a scene of sudden, flashing conflict shot with the mystic and triumphant ecstasy which emanates from this glorious woman."—Kenneth Macgowan, The New York Globe.

THE COMING OF THE PEOPLES. Volume III of the Romance History of America Series. By Francis Rolt-Wheeler.

Illustrated, Net, $1.50

One of the most inspiring stories in the world is the varied and infinitely interesting story of the men and women, French, Spanish, English and Dutch, who first gained a foothold in this unknown new land. Sturdy Puritans in New England, Cavaliers in Virgina, Dutch merchants in New York, Quakers in Pennsylvania, each struggling little group lived through strange years of fortune and ill fortune.

Out of a storehouse of anecdote and detailed information Mr. Rolt-Wheeler has put this story of the founding of America in so interesting a form that one can never forget it. It is one of the world's romantic periods that he is describing and he loses none of its stirring qualities in his fresh and zestful telling of it.

These almost incredible things actually happened in the everyday life of this missionary. Incidentally these stories show how Christianity is transforming the lives of Hindu boys. A book that will not only fascinate but will leave a lasting impression in favor of Missions, on the minds of its young readers.

Fiction

THE CATHEDRAL. By Hugh Walpole. Author of "The Young Enchanted," "The Duchess of Wrexe," etc.

Net, $2.00

In this remarkable novel Mr. Walpole presents a study of power and human destiny in widening circles. The conquest of power over a man's character is merely the sharp focus for an intimation of power that uses all men's lives. In the foreground we have Archdeacon Brandon, ruler of the Cathedral and the cathedral town; behind him we have the town itself; back of the town lies the Glebeshire country; back of Glebeshire, England; beyond England the world of men and affairs, all moving with set purposes.

Throughout the novel the Cathedral is presented as a living organism and an indestructible force. Mr. Walpole's picture achieves rondure by rich and delicate detail of many lives, from the all-powerful Archdeacon down to the Verger's smallest child; from the dignity of ecclesiastical meetings to the wastrel nights in the town tavern.

DECEMBER LOVE. By Robert Hichens. Author of "The Garden of Allah," "Bella Donna," etc.

Net, $2.00

The theme of this story is daring and calls for a power and delicacy that few novelists command so well as Robert Hichens.

The loss of the Sellingworth jewels in Paris was not permitted to pass without sensational comment. Lady Sellingworth was silent. She declined to discuss it. Then came the appearance at No. 4 Berkeley Square of Alick Craven, a man of thirty, vigorous, attractive, decidedly somebody. Coincident with his arrival Lady Sellingworth retired from the noise and whirl of society—and tongues wagged.

Mr. Hichens deals with this romance of a brilliant woman, a figure in London society, in a manner that suggests the sure touch of "Bella Donna" and "The Garden of Allah."

LILIAN. By Arnold Bennett. Author of "The Old Wives' Tale," "Mr. Prohack," etc.

Net, $2.00

Other novelists present the marriage problem. Arnold Bennett solves it. Here's the answer. Since between husband and wife there are no moral standards there can be no such thing as an ethical code, no lofty abstract principles of right and wrong. Marriage occurs when a man and a woman take the law into their own hands, not only the human law but the divine.

For a woman who is beautiful there is no business but the business of pleasing and Lilian was beautiful. She was also poor and alone. The first requisite in life for Lilian was of course a husband. There is all the humor and philosophy which make "Mr. Prohack" a joy for ever in this novel of love and Lilian.

THE THREE LOVERS. By Frank Swinnerton. Author of "Coquette," "Nocturne," "The Chaste Wife," etc.

Net, $2.00

This new novel very definitely takes its place beside "Nocturne" and "Coquette" as a story of modern London life, depicting the conflict of character among men and women. A young and intelligent girl alone in the world is introduced abruptly to a kind of life with which she is unfamiliar. Drawn into a modern and free-going group of artists, writers and actors, she is dazzled by the splendor of what seems real romance and freedom. But the surface gilt rubs off and she faces the truth, which is hard to bear. Mr. Swinnerton has given us a fascinating character study in the development of his heroine and her struggle for the love of the men to whom she is most attracted.

THE JUDGE. By Rebecca West. Author of "The Return of the Soldier."

Net, $2.50

To write pungent and terrifyingly sane criticisms (and Miss West's name carries weight and fear among the highest in England) is a notable thing; to write novels of tender insight and intimate revelation is a far more convincing thing and "The Judge" is such a novel.

Every mother is a judge who sentences the children for the sins of the father. This is the theme. The first half of the book is a marvellous story of young lovers; the second half is a revelation scarcely paralleled in fiction of the conflict between the mother's claim and the claim of the younger woman. That the book is unusual is self evident. That it gets deep into the secrets of life will be admitted by all who read it.

THE JUST STEWARD. By Richard Dehan. Author of "The Dop Doctor," etc.

Net, $2.50

Richard Dehan takes first rank as a teller of stirring tales. All the lure, the mystery, the occult power that the East holds for the West is present in this dramatic story.

Across the ages and out of the Orient an ancient trust reached out and claimed John Hazel in the midst of the bustling life of a modern young Londoner. On the sons of Hazel there rested a tremendous responsibility, a duty to the house of Forbis, borne loyally from generation to generation. Just for a moment destiny had brought together the paths of Katherine Forbis and John Hazel in a shell-torn road of France. Now in old Alexandria their fates are woven inextricably together and a drama begun hundreds of years ago reaches its climax.

THE ALTAR STEPS. By Compton Mackenzie. Author of "Carnival," "Sinister Street."

Net, $2.00

This new novel by Mr. Mackenzie will bring an abundant reassurance to his admirers for it shows conclusively that he has turned to a theme far removed from theatres, turf and the underworld of fast society. "The Altar Steps" is a study in the psychology of religion; it exposes with a cruel ray some of the dingy and grimy corners of the sacristy. The book has a fascination that rests securely on the fidelity and beauty of the character drawing. Mr. Mackenzie discloses a new power in his handling of incident, often leading up to abrupt catastrophe. It is a book that will arouse wide discussion for its honest and fearless examination of a world that is very near to the author's heart.

THE BREAKING POINT. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. Author of "Dangerous Days," "K," "The Amazing Interlude," etc.

Color Frontispiece. Net, $2.00

Here is a story different from any Mrs. Rinehart has yet written. Mystery, and the tragedy of a forgotten past, stalk the unconcious figure of young Doctor Livingstone. Over lives of hard work and deep content is cast the shadow of an old disaster, of hate and death, starvation and the loneliness of the criminal.

It is on a tree-shaded street of a quiet suburban town that Mrs. Rinehart sets her scene. The home of the two doctors, one a young man just making his name, the other his foster-father, on the verge of retirement, is pictured so vividly and humanly that one feels its peace and charm intensely. Into this quiet backwater, tragedy and sensation thrust there way and we behold spellbound the working out of a remarkable theme.

SPELLBINDERS. By Margaret Culkin Banning. Author of "Half Loaves," "This Marrying."

Net, $2.00

Has the vote and its consequent widening of mental horizons introduced a brand new element of discord or of greater mutual support into modern marriage? The household of the George Flandons was almost wrecked by it. That his wife should accept the opportunity to play her part in state and national affairs seemed to George Flandon a desertion of her real duty. Mrs. Banning has written an absorbing novel catching on its many facets the picture of the life of today especially among the younger married and unmarried sets. Its drama is strong and convincing and her skill in character drawing recalls the excellence of her work in "Half Loaves."

THE TALKERS. By Robert W. Chambers. Author of "The Little Red Foot," "Eris," etc.

A remarkable novel of a girl with two personalities, brilliantly worked out against a background of New York's ultra clever circle.

It wasn't the childish soul of her that Sadoul wanted and when her soul held out against him he sought a way of conquering in spite of her. Even souls are mere working material for modern science. The girl's beautiful body became a battleground between her own spirit and That Other One. Sadoul himself should have been the first to appreciate the delicate irony that drove the new Gilda, heavy lidded, languorous, into the arms, not of himself, but of young Sutton.

J. POINDEXTER, COLORED. By Irvin S. Cobb. Author of "Old Judge Priest," "Those Times and These," "Speaking of Operations—," etc.

Net, $1.75

Do you remember old Judge Priest's Jeff, body servant in bad standing to the Judge through many mutually satisfactory years?

Well, here is Jeff—J. Poindexter now—face to face with New York and ready to meet it more than half way with his ready wit and laughable ingenuity. Mr. Cobb's home town is Paducah, Kentucky; he knows exactly whereof he speaks. Jeff tells his own story in his own peculiarly expressive language and gives us many an eye-opener concerning New York life.

ON TIPTOE: A Romance of the Redwoods. By Stewart Edward White. Author of "The Silent Places," "The Blazed Trail," "The Riverman," "Gold," etc.

BALLOONS. By Princess Bibesco (Elizabeth Asquith). Author of "I Have Only Myself To Blame."

Net, $2.00

The publication of Princess Bibesco's first volume, "I Have Only Myself to Blame," aroused the critics on both sides of the Atlantic to ardent defense and attack. The originality and sharply incisive style were conceded by all. Some said the frank treatment of her characters, the almost psycho-analytic presentation of her men and women overstepped the novelist's privilege. Those who enjoy fresh, vivid and skillful work read her stories eagerly. They are new and different and her forthcoming volume, fancifully entitled "Balloons," is full of stories of marked character. They are like a splash of brilliant color drawing the eye and satisfying the desire for the unusual.

ONE THING IS CERTAIN. By Sophie Kerr. Author of "Painted Meadows," etc.

Net, $2.00

This novel by Sophie Kerr is not only the finest product of her growing power; it is a recalled, a recaptured picture of a manner and period of American life rich in color, dominated by great passions, prejudices, loves and hates.

The time is not so long ago; the scene, a section of the Eastern Shore of Maryland; the people, farmer folk in whom there live vigorously the spirit and traditions of a landed aristocracy. The drama of Mart Bladen, unconverted reprobate, great-hearted lover and fearless roisterer is a moving tale. And it is set in a mellow atmosphere that brings to mind such memorable romances as "Wuthering Heights."

THE BLACK GANG. By Cyril McNeile (Sapper). Author of "Bulldog Drummond."

Net, $1.75

A new, full length Bulldog Drummond novel more exciting, if that is possible, than the first one. The Black Gang is organized by Drummond for the removal of undesirable aliens and foreign agitators. Into their net come the famous Petersen and Irma of earlier fame and the struggle is fast and furious to a tremendous climax. A tale to set the pulses racing and chloroform dull care. Don't miss it if you like detective stories—good ones.

MORTAL COILS. By Aldous Huxley. Author of "Limbo," "Crome Yellow," etc.

Net, $2.00

Another example of the brilliant and amusing sophistication of this young man whose "Limbo" and "Crome Yellow" stirred Ludwig Lewisohn to say of him in the Nation, "He does the almost forgotten thing superbly," and F. Scott Fitzgerald to call him the "wittiest man, after Beerbohm, now writing in English."

Mr. Hutton, looking at himself in the mirror, admired his mustache and knew himself for a fool. The truth was that, while ladies bored him, he could not stay away from them. And in the end the most tiresome one of all led him to the death chair. "What is a man to do with women!" says Mr. Hutton and apparently Mr. Huxley himself echoes him and adds "or to do with the rest of this exquisitely ridiculous world but laugh."

THE KINGFISHER. By Phyllis Bottome. Author of "The Dark Tower," etc.

Net, $2.00

Cambridge didn't make Jim a gentleman. It simply made him an extraordinary dock-hand. And no dock-hand, however extraordinary, should, by any of the rules, have attracted the love of so exquisite a little flower of luxury as Viola. But Jim didn't know the rules and never would.

"The Kingfisher" is the story of the making of a man, of the buffetings and opportunities that life dealt him with so careless a hand. There is strength and beauty and irony in the telling and an extraordinary sense of the power of love.

NICOLETTE: A Tale of Old Provence. By Baroness Orczy. Author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," etc.

Net, $1.75

A story of love triumphant. Long ago when Louis XVIII was on the throne of France the ancient half-ruined chateau of the Ventadours perched high amidst the mountain fastnesses of old Provence. Down in the valley there snuggled the comfortable cottage of the peasant Deydier. But grinding poverty tyrannised over the chateau and smiling prosperity reigned in the cottage.

The story is of the all understanding, all conquering love of Nicolette Deydier for Monsieur le Comte, Bertrand Ventadour. Neither feud nor pride of race nor prejudice nor scheming greed may break the tie that binds this peasant child to the man she has chosen. A romantic story of romantic times in a land of romance.

SUNDRY ACCOUNTS. By Irvin S. Cobb. Author of "Old Judge Priest," "Those Times and These," "Speaking of Operations—" etc.

Net, $2.00

Here is Irvin Cobb in many moods—mystery, sentiment, intrigue, pure farce, a note of tragedy. Whether he is leading us through one of the twisting plots hatched by wily, lovable old Judge William Pitman Priest, or his ingenious black bodyguard, or plunging us into the depths of the secret of the lonely house on Clay Street which stands every night and all night long brilliantly lighted in its setting of blackness, his is the gift of the finished story-teller which allures and holds attention through the mere telling of the tale. When, added to this, there is ingenuity of plot and vivid personality-drawing, the whole spiced with the familiar Cobb humor of incident and speech, the resulting concoction is rare entertainment.

LAUGHTER, LIMITED. By Nina Wilcox Putnam. Author of "West Broadway," "Tomorrow We Diet," etc.

Net, $1.75

It is evident from Mrs. Putnam's latest merry novel, "Laughter, Ltd.," that she knows the moving picture world at first hand and can write about it, recognizing its failings but bringing testimony to much that is fine and good. Her lovely, slangy heroine who is exposed to the undoubted dangers and risks that beset youth and beauty in that artificial swift-paced life, proves to her own satisfaction and that of her readers that a clear head and a clean mind are pretty reliable safeguards, however ugly a situation. Those who are familiar with Mrs. Putnam's breezy, intimate style of writing will need no introduction to this jovial, sympathetic study of the heart of Movieland, humorous on the surface but made significant by a keen insight and a kindly understanding.

BEAUTY FOR ASHES. By Joan Sutherland.

Net, $1.75

Is a man who has, wrongly, been named as co-respondent in honor bound to marry the defendant?

Madge Cardew was a madcap of course and all London was linking her name with Lord Desmond's but it was an innocent enough affair. Madge's husband, blinded by shame and anger started the grinding of the divorce machine and Lord Desmond found himself suddenly face to face with disgrace and bound by conventional honor for life to a girl with whom he had merely been friendly. It was only then that he knew how great was his love for Pauline.

THE VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS. By Richard Blaker.

Net, $2.00

To be somebody is more ethical than to serve somebody. The individual has not only a right but an obligation to stand out against family entanglements in the name of independence.

The story centers round the figure of Charles Petrie, popular playwright in London but known in Pelchester merely as a shabby fellow and to his family as a singularly sarcastic and annoying father. Sarcasm was Petrie's one defence against the limp weight that was Mrs. Petrie. His children would have been astonished to hear him called a charming man of the world, yet he was. It is probable that he never would have come out into open combat if he hadn't been moved suddenly to interfere and save his daughter Cynthia from offering herself a willing sacrifice to her mother.

Richard Blaker is new to America, a novelist of acute, pointed characterization and alertness to atmosphere and the simple realities of life.

MR. PROHACK. By Arnold Bennett. Author of "The Old Wives' Tale," "Clayhanger," etc.

Net, $2.00

Mr. Prohack had committed the unpardonable sin. He had committed poverty. Not all at once—dramatically—but gradually, insidiously. Yet his wife, simple creature, loved him, and his son and daughter thought him a good sort.

Now if Mr. Prohack had remained steeped in his sin he might still be a normal Londoner, a valued man in the Treasury, a welcome figure in his one remaining club. But the misguided fellow allowed himself to come into one hundred thousand pounds.

And the moral of Mr. Bennett's latest kindly vivisection of modern society is as follows: Let all pleasantly, or even unpleasantly, seedy husbands think twice before they allow a rich friend to die in a benevolent frame of mind.

THE HOUSE OF FIVE SWORDS. By Tristram Tupper.

Net, $2.00

The Robin, aged seven and copper-curled, peered in awestruck delight at the five gleaming polished swords that hung against the shining dark wall in Colonial House where she had gone to deliver the Colonel's boots. Suddenly, forgetting boots, Colonel and awe in an overwhelming flood of ecstasy and desire, a heritage from her dancing mother, she lifted two of the swords from the wall, crossed them on the floor and, alone in the wide, dark, silent hall of the Colonel's house, danced lightly, joyously the Sword Dance of Scotland. And from the doorway a cynical, white-haired old figure watched with narrowed eyes and tightened mouth. And then the storm broke over the innocent Robin's head.

That was how it began. How it went on and how it ended is told charmingly and movingly by Mr. Tupper in this romantic story of age and youth, of love and hate, of bitter, unyielding hardness that dragged destruction and misery in its train, and of melting pity and tenderness that bound up the wounds and made life whole again.

THE RETURN OF ALFRED. By the author of "Patricia Brent, Spinster."

Net, $1.75

To step into another man's shoes and find you can't step out again; to step out of the way of one girl and into the way of another; to attach to oneself, like a tin can to a dog, a past of which one knows nothing except the hue—black; all this is quixotic, even foolhardy, but it is one way to keep the world interesting.

The whole village of Little Bilstead knew more of Alfred's past than Alfred, and apparently they found that past shocking but decidedly interesting. Alfred himself found the most disagreeable thing about his past was that it didn't stay behind, would come between Marjorie and him. But the whole situation was always surprising, always developing like fireworks, and—well the end was worth it.

As delightfully amusing a romance as "Patricia Brent, Spinster."

THE CONFESSIONS OF A WELL MEANING WOMAN. By Stephen McKenna. Author of "Sonia," "The Education of Eric Lane," etc.

Net, $2.00

As brilliant a bit of satiric character study as has come out of England in months. Entertaining and amusing certainly and a clever study of the newest developments in London Society, but preeminently a picture, etched in acid, of a type of woman we all know.

Enough has been said in criticism of the younger generation. Mr. McKenna has written a mordantly clever attack on the older generation.

TELL ENGLAND, by Ernest Raymond.

Net, $2.00

The publication of this book in England evoked a response that has made it one of the most notable novels in years. The author has set down in a vivid and dramatic story a record of heroism that is very affecting. "Tell England" with its three heroes, who are followed from school days to the conclusion of the Great War, is a story of youth so appealing in its living characters and so enthralling in its incident that one is loath to miss any of it at the first reading. For its adventure and humor, says one critic in the London Graphic, here is the Odyssey of Youth.

JIMMIE DALE AND THE PHANTOM CLUE. By Frank L. Packard. Author of "The Adventures of Jimmie Dale," "Doors of the Night," etc.

Net, $1.75

Slouching, ill-kempt, an unprepossessing figure slipped through the deeper shadows of the Bowery. Passers-by, intent on the particular business which took them abroad at that late hour, would have vouchsafed more, much more, than a desultory glance had they known that the Grey Seal of dramatic memory had returned to the underworld. With his old-time dash and breath-taking courage Jimmie Dale appears again, engaged in a new adventure. Frank L. Packard's famous character whose exploits as "The Grey Seal" are known to mystery lovers everywhere, once more circumvents New York's police and crooks alike. There are no idle moments in the career of this gentleman-adventurer. His plans are as clear-cut and as swift in their execution as the diamond cutter in his kit.

BLACK CAESAR'S CLAN. By Albert Payson Terhune. Author of "Black Gold," "Buff: a Collie," "Lad," etc.

Net, $1.75

Buried treasure beneath the placid waters about Miami—

Claire Standish and her brother lived on their prosperous Florida farm in humdrum happiness—apparently. Then why should Claire greet a chance stranger who happened upon their hidden path through the swamp with a leveled revolver? Who used the tunnel leading to the Standish house? What was the message of the nightly mocking bird signals? For that matter why should Gavin Brice, a stranger in Florida, ragged and homeless, be so eager to discover the naswers to these questions? It makes a story of breathless excitement, this tale of modern treasure hunters, a mystery where quick thinking and instantaneous movement mean the difference between life and death.

THE KING'S ARROW: A Tale of the United Empire Loyalists. By H. A. Cody. Author of "The Frontiersman," "Under Sealed Orders," etc.

Net, $2.00

Through his earlier books from "The Frontiersman," to "Jess of the Rebel Trail," Mr. Cody has made and held for himself a first place as a novelist of the romantic and the adventurous.

This present novel deals with one of the most romantic and picturesque periods in the history of North America.

THREE MEN AND A MAID. By P. G. Wodehouse. Author of "Indiscretions of Archie," "The Little Warrior," "A Damsel in Distress," etc.

Net, $1.75

For light, delightful, hilarious reading Mr. Wodehouse deserves the prize. He never wrote anything more amusing than this tale of the courting of Miss Billie Bennett. In his delicate sense of the supremely ridiculous he is on a par with Charlie Chaplin. His rollicking effervescence stands alone.

"P. G. Wodehouse is a contributor to the joy of life and deserves a special kind of laurel wreath, something snappy. When others go down in the sea of humor he stands jauntily at the rail and hurls peppy conversation at the waves."—Chicago Tribune.

GUINEA GIRL. By Norman Davey. Author of "The Pilgrim of a Smile."

Net, $1.75

With the publication of "The Pilgrim of a Smile," Norman Davey attracted attention as the most exquisitely casual, the most genially humorous ironist of these times, a son of Lucullus, a man of "strange genius and beautiful writing."

In "Guinea Girl," Mr. Davey writes a charming and entertaining story of the world and the demi-world. Sophistication that is not weary, but amused, sets off incidents of life the world over, from all strata of society, from all points of view, and lo! it is all of a pattern and the pattern is intensely amusing to those who behold it.

HOAX. Anonymous.

Net, $2.00

A romantic story of a son as viewed by a quietly amused father; a tale so deft and so original that before the reader is at all aware of how it comes about, the life-history and affairs of the heart of Eugene Bennett are not only intimately known but eagerly pursued.

First there is Leila. Then, at intervals, Mary Louise and Claudia. It cannot be said that anyone displaces the other in Eugene's veering affections. They reign simultaneously and in succession. In fact, much of the unique charm and humor of this chronicle of a very modern young man resides in the casualness with which he accepts the buffets of fate.

Discreetly veiled in anonymity though it is, the author of HOAX will not long remain undiscovered with such qualities of engaging frankness and bland—often mordant—humor. As Mr. Wegg says: "When found, make note on."

THE FIRST PERSON SINGULAR. By William Rose Benét. Author of "Moons of Grandeur," etc.

Net, $2.00

In this story of Adela Ventress against the town of Tupton, Mr. Benét has taken for his underlying theme a fact which, frequently unobserved, furnishes much of the comedy, romance and tragedy of life: namely, that the group is ever banded together against the individual and will punish anyone who dares too great an individuality. Mr. Benét is associate editor of the New York Evening Post Literary Review and is one of the ablest of the younger writers. His "Moons of Grandeur" was published about a year ago.

SUNNY-SAN. By Onoto Watanna. Author of "A Japanese Nightingale," "The Heart of Hyacinth," "The Honorable Miss Moonlight," etc.

Net, $2.00

It was all delightfully quixotic when the four young American students in Japan bought a little Japanese-American geisha girl, and put up the money for her education. But it was quite another thing when Jerry opened the door of his New York apartment and found smiling adorably back at him Miss Sunny Syndicate, come to stay.

Onoto Watanna wrote "A Japanese Nightingale," "The Heart of Hyacinth," and many other well-beloved stories of Japan. Surely no one has ever surpassed her in conveying the delightful naiveté of the Japanese character, the humor and delicate romance that all things Japanese have for western eyes.

THE EYES OF LOVE. By Corra Harris. Author of "A Circuit Rider's Wife," "My Son," etc.

Net, $1.75

How proud and irritated and childlike a man would feel if he really knew how he appeared in the eyes of his wife.

"The Eyes of Love" is a highly humorous, epigrammatic and knowing novel in which Mrs. Harris amuses herself and the world at large by the most flagrant betrayal of secrets from the occult art of being a woman. She has set her story in the gracious atmosphere of a southern city, chosen, as the most skilled in the art, Betty of the wistful eyes and rebellious hair and told such a tale of the strategic management of men as has never been told before.

Uncanny insight into men and women and a delightfully humorous slant make "The Eyes of Love" as outstanding a novel as the author's justly famous "A Circuit Rider's Wife."

THE JUDGMENT OF CHARIS. By Mrs. Baillie Reynolds. Author of "The Lonely Stronghold," "Also Ran," etc.

Net, $1.75

If you had run away from an all-too-persistent lover and an all-too-gorgeous family: If you were taken under the wing of a kindly, middle-aged millionaire and invited to become his secretary:

Would you expect complications? Charis did, and her expectations were realized. Few people can out-write Mrs. Baillie Reynolds when it comes to telling a good story. Here she is at her best: charming people, interesting situations, and an unexpected denouement.

ANN AND HER MOTHER. By O. Douglas. Author of "Penny Plain," etc.

Net, $1.75

In a gay pattern of memories touched here and there with darker shades Miss Douglas writes a story of a Scottish minister's wife. Dickens would have envied Miss Douglas her rare old Scotch characters and the delicious humor of the incidents told. And Ann, fresh, charming and modern makes just the right foil for the story of her mother's life. A novel of the quality and charm which endeared "Penny Plain" to the hearts of so many readers.

NÊNE. By Ernest Pérochon.

Net, $1.75

This novel of French peasant life won the Prix Goncourt awarded by the Academy in 1920. Its success was instantaneous. Everywhere it was hailed as the finest interpretation in years of the spirit of rural France. The sale of the book ran to ninety thousand copies in a few months.

For American readers this beautiful and authentic picture of agricultural France with its simple, rugged outlines, its sectional differences, its mighty bonds of conservatism and convention is a most impressive setting for the romance, the tragedy, the maternal tenderness and passion that go to make "Nêne" a work of genius.

THE RETURN OF PETE. By Luke Allan.

Net, $2.00

Luke Allan is one of the best known of Canadian writers dealing with the Great North West. His earlier books, "The Lone Trail," "The Blue Wolf," and "Blue Pete," have given him a very fine place which he quite sustains in this new novel.

DANCERS IN THE DARK. By Dorothy Speare. Net, $1.75

With a challenge in every page of her unusual story, Miss Speare has had the courage to write a novel about the doings of the modern young girl. She has missed no gesture, overlooked no inflection. The creature who is the despair of her elders, the bewitchment of her male contemporaries, the dark doubt of her serious elder brother is here in full-length portrait.

Miss Speare may shock some of her readers by the frankness with which she describes the flapper at home, on her own in the world, in college and out; but the core of her story is sound and wholesome.

CROME YELLOW. By Aldous Huxley. Author of "Limbo," "Leda," etc.

Net, $2.00

A fine story finely wrought. Mr. Huxley here offers us, as he did in "Limbo," something strangely different, a novel of insight and searching modernity.

You cannot fail to like Denis particularly, of all the group who make up the house-party at Crome House. His boundless zest for life, his youthful introspection and abysmal self-consciousness mark him as one of ourselves. Denis and Anne, Ivor and May, Mr. Scogan—they live with us afterward in recollection, vivid, unforgettable.

This novel will establish Aldous Huxley's reputation for the unusual which "Limbo" so sincerely promised.

THE SIN OF M. PETTIPON And Other Humorous Tales. By Richard Connell.

Net, $1.75

These stories, by a new humorist—Richard Connell—have real humor and a universal appeal. Mr. Connell has a lively and sure sense of the comedy of human beings. His characters are varied—Monsieur Pettipon, artist in bed-making; Mr. Pottle and his spouse, seekers after culture and adventure; little Peter Mullaney who wanted to be a cop; Terrible Epps, insurgent against Fate; and many more living, breathing people.

There is fun here for all, and laughter. For some there is burlesque; for others, satire. Here are no less than fourteen stories, each with a flavor all its own.

PETER. By E. F. Benson. Author of "Lovers and Friends," "Dodo Wonders—," etc.

Net, $1.75

Peter made a point of being different, of keeping his inner aloofness and paying just the amount of charm and gaiety required for the dinners, dances and opera seats which London hostesses so gladly proffered. Then he married Silvia, not for her money exactly, but he certainly wouldn't have asked her if she hadn't had money.

E. F. Benson has written with exquisite understanding of the quality of the love between Peter and his boyish young wife. He deals with emotion with the deft skill of the artist and does it with the lightness and wit which have always distinguished his work.

THE TWENTY-FIRST BURR. By Victor Lauriston.

Net, $2.00

A mystery novel of more than usual interest.

THE MOON OUT OF REACH. By Margaret Pedler. Author of "The Splendid Folly," "The Lamp of Fate," "The House of Dreams-Come-True," "The Hermit of Far End," etc.

Net, $1.90

"Don't forget, Nan, a Davenant's word is his bond—always."

Big, blustering, good-hearted Roger Trenby with all his good nature wasn't a man to be trifled with. To him Nan had given her word. To break it would have brought, perhaps, the chance to do what she wanted—but even at that she could not drag Peter Mallory into her life.

The problem is one that many a girl has faced: whether the right to live, to find one's own happiness ever supersedes other obligations. Margaret Pedler expresses in terms of convincing drama such a conflict of ideals and emotions.

THE STRONGER INFLUENCE. By F. E. Mills Young. Author of "The Almonds of Life," "Foreshadowed," etc.

Net, $1.75

A sympathetic and robust treatment of a problem of marriage set, as were Miss Young's earlier sensational novels, "The Almonds of Life," "Imprudence," etc., in British Africa. The story is of the choice confronting a girl upon whom two men have a strong and vital claim. Esmé had married Paul Hallam knowing his weakness and loving him in spite of it. Then when he disappeared, when all evidence declared him dead she married Sinclair because of his great need of her. Hallam conquered his weakness and returned. To which man did she owe allegiance?

A KNIGHT AMONG LADIES. By J. E. Buckrose. Author of "The Privet Hedge," "The Girl in Fancy Dress," etc.

Net, $1.75

Sir Francis came to Wynthorpe to rest. It looked such a peaceful little village. But in a world where there are ladies would any village have been peaceful for a marriagable plum like Sir Francis? "A Knight Among Ladies" is a delightful romance developed over a garden fence. J. E. Buckrose has plainly fallen heir to the English village, the quaint old characters, the charming manners of Anthony Trollope.

THE GARDEN OF MEMORIES. By Henry St. John Cooper. Author of "Sunny Ducrow."

Net, $1.75

A new novel by this rising English novelist whose knowledge of life is most varied and interesting. His stories and their characters have a quiet humor and charm of human kindliness and grace of delineation which might easily characterize them as very modern Dickens types.

THE TIMBER PIRATE. By Charles Christopher Jenkins.

Net, $2.00

A drama of miners in the great white north, stark and enthralling in its presentation of life lived on the precipice of death. The fast moving story is of the matching of strength against strength, of men who seem one third devil, one third mere animal and one third god in their stoical courage. And behind the human drama there stretches majestic space to the ragged rim of the northern world and the spirit of that world seems to be all expressed in the long drawn howl, half anguished wail, half mocking laughter, of the timber wolf.

THE VANISHING OF BETTY VARIAN. By Carolyn Wells. Author of "The Luminous Face," "The Come Back," etc.

Net, $1.75

There was no road leading from the great stone house on the sea cliff except the one on which Betty Varian's guests stood waiting for Betty and her father to join them. When they did not come, and Mr. Varian was found dead and apparently alone in the house, they were sure that Betty could not have left the grounds, but they did not find her.

This vanishing of a young and beautiful girl with no known enemies, the murder of her father, and the two tragedies which followed furnish a mystery so complicated that even Penny Wise and his ingratiating assistant Zizi almost give up the case. Almost give it up, but not quite.

THE FLAMING JEWEL. By Robert W. Chambers. Author of "The Little Red Foot," "The Slayer of Souls," etc.

Net, $1.75

Mr. Chambers sets his story in the bad lands of Canada, where life is simplified to its crudities in the struggle for existence. He brings together at a shack in the wilds a sophisticated New Yorker, a cosmopolitan crook, a little Russian Duchess, gruff old Mike Clinch and Eve his daughter. He involves them all in a cleverly complicated plot hinging about a famous jewel and binds them to one another with the thread of passion. In the struggle of craft against wit and knowledge of the country it was Eve who held the stakes and Eve herself who was the highest prize.

When Robert W. Chambers turns to adventure-romance he brings to it a masterly skill in the interlacing of events, a wealth of imagination and an unequalled sense of dramatic suspense.

BLACK GOLD. By Albert Payson Terhune. Author of "Buff: A Collie," "Lad: A Dog," etc.

Net, $1.75

Golden ingots—black gold—hidden in the mountains. A haunting presence and a footprint trail that vanished in mid-air.

These are but the beginning of a series of mysterious episodes which confronted Barry Dale, rancher, when he found Maida Grace captive in her father's house. The right blend for anyone who finds solace and joy in an exceptional story of mystery and danger.

THE DEAVES AFFAIR. By Hulbert Footner. Author of "The Owl Taxi," "Thieves' Wit," etc.

Net, $1.75

There he stood bound and blind, facing—he knew not what. A thick excitement choked him. Nobody spoke, but his sharpened senses told him that he was surrounded by people. He heard them breathe. The continued silence was cruel to his nerves.

He imagined them moving cat-foot about him, smiling meaningly at each other as they prepared to attack. If he only had a wall at his back!

Hulbert Footner has a thrilling mystery-romance to tell.
He tells it with the dash and vividness which have made him famous as a chronicler of the underworld of New York.

DOORS OF THE NIGHT. By Frank L. Packard. Author of "Pawned," "The Adventures of Jimmie Dale," "The Miracle Man," etc.

Net, $1.75

At eight o'clock of that evening Billy Kane was the respectable, law-abiding private secretary of rich old David Ellsworth—

Yet within the hour he stood accused of the most hideous murder, and, wounded and hunting refuge, found himself mistakenly accepted by the underworld of the East Side as their notorious leader, "The Rat."

The many thrilling adventures and hair-breadth escapes to which this mistaken identity led, and the plucky fight which young Kane made to clear his name set a new high mark for the author of "The Adventures of Jimmie Dale."

THE MAN IN RATCATCHER. A Series of Stories. By Cyril McNeile ("Sapper"). Author of "Bull-Dog Drummond," "The Human Touch," etc.

Net, $1.75

A new book by "Sapper" is an event eagerly welcomed by lovers of good stories. There will be no disappointment in this one. Dramatic situations, vivid characters, surprisin débâcles, are flung at the reader in rapid succession, with no time to catch one's breath in between.

The man who returned from the dead to save his sweetheart from destruction.
The man who staked his happiness on a half-forgotten waltz.
The man who played at cards for his wife.
The man who assisted at a suicide.
Each one better than the last and all of the best.

TARRANT OF TIN SPOUT. By Henry Oyen. Author of "Twisted Trails," "The Plunderer," etc.

Net, $1.75

Spence Tarrant of Tin Spout was one of those soft-voiced drawling young westerners whose sky-blue eyes are rayed round with laughter lines. Women loved him instinctively. Stupid men believed him stupid and stepped into the traps he laid for them. Clever men picked him out as a man worth fighting with every weapon they could command. Dorothy Dickinson said she hated this impudent young man who treated her with such debonaire friendliness and protected her against her will.

Like "Twisted Trails," "Tarrant of Tin Spout" is a masterpiece of fast-moving action, lovable characters and romance that rouses the imagination.

THE SECRET VICTORY. By Stephen McKenna. Author of "The Education of Eric Lane," "Lady Lilith," "Sonia," etc.

Net, $1.75

Is Mr. McKenna right in his visualization of the modern girl? If he is wrong, this book, a skillful and daring picture of London Society, is a challenge that should not be allowed to pass.

The story is of Eric Lane, successful dramatist, and of the rough path of his romance. The hectic whirl of London life catches him up, teaches him the new ideas of freedom and love. From the flapper he learns how to make the best of all this madness. And then she suddenly tears off her hard grinning little mask and he sees her pitifully childlike misery, her confusion and helplessness beneath the flaunted boldness. A vividly written romance and a keen, detached analysis of modern times and customs.

MR. PIM. By A. A. Milne. Author of "The Great Mr. Broxopp," "The Dover Road," etc. Net, $1.75

Old Mr. Pim, in his gentle may, shuffled into the Marden's charming household. Mr. Pim said a few words and went absentmindedly away—leaving Mr. Marden with the devastating knowledge that his wife was no wife, that her first husband, instead of lying quietly in his grave in Australia, had just landed in England. In short the Mardens had been living in sin for five years!

Then Mr. Pim came back for his forgotten hat and the Marden household was again revolutionized.

Mr. Milne is a delightful and exquisite humorist. "Mr. Pim," under the title of "Mr Pim Passes By," was the most popular comedy of a New York season—excellent proof that the American public does appreciate fine art. "The Great Mr. Broxopp," Mr. Milne's latest Broadway success, has been enthusiastically received.

DODO. By E. F. Benson. Author of "Peter," "Lovers and Friends," "Queen Lucia," etc. Net, $1.75

The only word that describes Dodo is "indescribable." She is entirely compounded of effervescence—gaiety—bad temper—wit—vivacity—magnetism. No one else, either before or since, ever talked such scintillating nonsense or showed such happy acumen. It is with pride and delight that Mr. Benson's publishers reintroduce her to society.

This reissue of a famous novel recalls the rumor current when Dodo made her first appearance, that Margot Asquith was the original of Mr. Benson's heroine.

JIMINY By Gilbert W. Gabriel. Net, $2.00

Who has known the perfect love? Dante and Beatrice? Does it happen today—often? Whether it does or not, the quest of it will lure all true lovers until the end of time. Jiminy, maker of small rhymes, and Benjamin Benvenuto were true lovers and they set their hearts on discovering no lesser record of a perfect love than Rafael's lost sonnets to his Margareta. It is just such a daring, seemingly impossible quest that distinguishes the great romanticists.

Delicate, loveable and delightfully whimsical is this tale of Jiminy and her lost sonnets. It is romance that lifts one out of an annoyingly practical world into a land where the search for beauty is the purpose of life.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW. By Baroness von Hutten. Author of "Pam," "Pam Decides," "Happy House," etc. Net, $1.75

Women are the oddest of creatures, widely different and just alike the world over. Especially odd and true-to-precedent are these creatures when they are mothers.

"Mothers-in-Law" is a tenderly treated tragi-comedy of the part played by the mothers in a romance staged under Italian skies. Pretty little Mrs. Roper, mother of Milly, was American, practical and gay. Donna Laura Gamba, mother of the Apollo-like Nino, was Italian, passionately religious and somber. Very, very imperfectly did these ladies understand one another's language. Yet most amazingly did they work together when the need arose.

WHAT TIMMY DID. By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes. Author of "Good Old Anna," "From Out the Vasty Deep," "The Lonely House," etc. Net, $1.75

Pretty Mrs. Crofton's husband had died from poison—self-administered, the coroner decided—and though but three months had passed it was quite apparent that she had come to Beechfield on a fresh romantic quest.

Little Timmy by some uncanny second sight was the first to see that something was wrong. To begin with, animals trembled at her approach—and then one day Timmy saw at her heels a shadow man, stiff and military, and behind him a phantom dog!

Was it all the imagination of childhood?

CASTLES IN THE AIR. By Baroness Orczy. Author of "The First Sir Percy," "His Majesty's Well-Beloved," "The Noble Rogue," "The Scarlet Pimpernel," etc. Net, $1.75

The romantic adventures of one M. Ratichon, who served his country by divers questionable means and never refused aid to a lady, if she were beautiful and rich. For instance there were those papers of the lovely Mademoiselle ————. But it were better to mention no lady's name.

The story is set in Paris in the days that followed Napoleon's fall. There have been many charming rogues in the pages of Baroness Orczy's books, but none who could surpass M. Ratichon.

GOLD-KILLER. By John Prosper. Net, $1.75

Gold-killer will be a unique experience for you.

Mystery—thrill—romance—unconventional detective work.

A novel of the fascinating new underworld that moves in stylish motors, inhabits exclusive hotels and hunts down its victims in their very boxes at the opera.

Excitement, adventure, love-making and a sufficient seasoning of fact to make a startling picture of modern criminal methods.

DEVOTION. By Amanda Hall.

Muffet, living alone with her lovable, unsuccessful father in a decaying old house, thought him a genius, no matter what the world said of his work as an inventor. This charming girl knew he was a perfect father; but she herself did not understand the true reason for her devotion to him. She resented the successful young man whose business ascendancy brought him into her father's life and hers. Muffet didn't understand that what she resented in the young man was his success. She married him.

And then the impossible happened; Muffet's father became a successful inventor and a man of large affairs! While Muffet's husband came more and more to lean upon her, to need, desperately, the devotion she had given only and completely to her unsuccessful father.

Not a first novel but a full-grown novel; and yet the author is young. Amanda Hall is well known as a poet and the beautiful prose of this novel is worthy of a poet turned novelist.

A Complete List of the

RELIGIOUS AND THEOLOGICAL BOOKS FOR 1922

Arranged According to Subject

(Note that the starred titles are Fall Books)

The Bible

* A HARMONY OF THE GOSPELS FOR STUDENTS OF THE LIFE OF CHRIST. By Rev. Prof. A. T. Robertson, M.A., D.D., Professor of New Testament Interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. 8*vo. Net,* $2.50

Based on the Broadus' Harmony in the Revised Version. Professor Robertson has thoroughly revised, rearranged and enlarged Dr. Broadus' well-known "Harmony of the Gospels." All who would read the Gospels intelligently must have a modern Harmony of the Gospels. College and Seminary Students, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. classes, Sunday School teachers and pupils, preachers and all Bible students will find this new harmony quite unequalled for study purposes.

* IS THE BIBLE THE INERRANT WORD OF GOD? And Was the Body of Jesus Raised from the Dead? By Rev. R. A. Torrey, D.D., Author of "The Real Christ," etc. 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

Dr. Torrey says in his introduction:

"Three great questions are agitating the church to-day, and seem likely to divide it. The three great questions are: First, Is the Bible the Inerrant Word of God? Second, Was the Body of Jesus that was nailed to the Cross and really died, raised from the dead? Third, Was Jesus born of a virgin?

"There is in the church today a wide-spread opinion that the Bible is not the word of God, but simply 'contains the Word of God!'

"If something is not done of a definite, decided and effective character to stem the tide of unbelief in the inerrancy of the Bible and in the fact of the resurrection of the Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, the outlook for our Missions abroad, and for our work at home, is appalling; hence this book."

* BIBLE TYPES OF MODERN WOMEN. Second Series. By Rev. W. Mackintosh Mackay, D.D. 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

Like its companion volumes, "Bible Types of Modern Men" (first and second series) and "Bible Types of Modern Women" (first series), all three of which have gone through several editions, this book offers the busy preacher and Christian worker a series of vivid and winsome biographical sermons.

* THE NATURE OF SCRIPTURE. By Rev. Professor A. S. Peake, M.A., D.D. Author of "The Bible, Its Origin, Its Significance, and Its Abiding Worth," etc. 12*mo. Net,* $2.00

A collection of papers and addresses dealing with the nature and value of the Scriptures by this great scholar who accepts the critical method while loyally adhering to the evangelical faith.

*THE PARALLEL NEW TESTAMENT. By. Rev. Prof. James Moffatt, D.D., LLD. 12*mo. Bindings and prices to be announced later*

Dr. Moffatt's "A New Translation of the New Testament" is recognized as a classic in its own realm. Increasingly readers of the Bible are finding it indispensable, whether for private study and devotional purposes, or for public ministrations. In the home and in the pulpit it is in constant use. Anyone who desires to be "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the truth," simply has to know this "Translation." Those who know the original Greek best, praise most the accuracy and virility, the challenge and the charm of this "Translation," which has given a "new" Testament to thousands. Not the least, however, of the values of Dr. Moffatt's "Translation" is the way it sends us back with eagerness to the Authorized Version, just to see how this word or passage is rendered in the older version. "The Parallel Edition" meets a real need. It will save both time and disturbance of mood thus to be able to compare with ease the new and the old, and the mere juxtaposition will promote a fruitful, spiritual comparative study. It is safe to predict that ere long every pulpit will be furnished with a copy of this "Parallel Edition," and that it will become a necessity for every earnest reader of the Bible. In addition to the Biblical text in the two versions, Dr. Moffatt has provided a brief Introduction to the New Testament, remarkable for its simplicity, succinctness, and insight into religious values.

*RABBONI: A Study of Jesus Christ, the Teacher. By Canon Anthony C. Deane. 12*mo. Net,* $2.00

"This is a gracious and wise book, showing how to go to school to the Master Teacher. I do not remember to have seen a better study of Jesus the Teacher, alike in atmosphere and suggestion."—Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.D.

*TYPES OF PREACHERS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT. By Rev. Professor A. T. Robertson, M.A., D.D. Professor of New Testament Interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. 12*mo. Net,* $1.60

A series of portraits of outstanding New Testament leaders, both men and women. Every detail is seized upon that will lend color to the picture. The author's scholarship is constantly reflected in new and original interpretations. The result is a fresh study which grips the mind and heart.

*THE UNWRITTEN SAYINGS OF OUR LORD. By Rev. Prof. David Smith, M.A., D.D. New edition. 12*mo. Net,* $1.00

A study of eight sayings of Our Lord which are generally accepted as authentic although they do not appear in the Canonical Gospels.

*A LITERARY GUIDE TO THE BIBLE. By Laura H. Wild. Professor of Biblical Literature, Mount Holyoke College. Author of "A Present Day Definition of Christianity." 12*mo. Net,* $2.00

Professor Wild has succeeded admirably in producing a much needed text book on the literary values of the sacred scriptures. Bible Schools, Colleges, Christian students and classes in Christian Culture will find it both comprehensive and readable. With questions and bibliography for each chapter.

*THE VOCABULARY OF THE GREEK NEW TESTAMENT. Volume V. By Rev. Prof. J. H. Moulton, D.D., D.C.L. and Rev. Prof. George Milligan, D.D. 4to. Net, $3.00

Carries one step nearer to completion this monumental work which supplies the student with an untold wealth of hitherto inaccessible information about the everyday vernacular Greek in which the New Testament was written; illuminating almost every page of the New Testament writers, by side-lights from the usages of the everyday speech of that period, as revealed in the great masses of recently excavated Egyptian papyri.

THE REVELATION OF JOHN. By Rev. Professor Arthur S. Peake, D.D., LL.D. Author of "The Bible, Its Origin, Its Significance, and Its Abiding Worth." The Hartley Lecture.

12mo. Net, $2.50

"Dr. Peake is generally acknowledged as one of the greatest theologians in Europe, and this, his latest work, is a complete justification of that high distinction. For clearness of insight, breadth of vision and depth of thought, this book is unequalled in the current literature on this subject."—Holborn Review.

"The amount of work put into the volume is amazing. The result is we have a scholarly, spiritual and poetic treatment of the Apocalypse for Bible students and Christians everywhere. The author has a world-wide reputation as a Scripture exegete, and we predict this will be the standard work on 'The Revelation of John' for long years to come."—The Reporter.

*THE CHURCHES OF THE NEW TESTAMENT. By Rev. George W. McDaniel, D.D. Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Richmond, Va. 12mo. Net, $1.75

"The aim of this book is to show the origin, character, principles, and practices of the New Testament Churches, to show the unity which existed in essentials in the midst of variety of material and diversity of environment; and to point morals and deduce lessons for twentieth century pastors, laymen, and churches."—The Author.

Dr. McDaniel is not only a powerful preacher in one of the largest churches of the South, but wields an easy flowing pen that draws vivid word pictures, and expounds fundamentals with grace and charm.

*
THE LIFE OF LIVES. The Story of Our Lord Jesus Christ, For Young People. By Louise Morgan Sill. 12mo. Net, $1.50

This Life of Christ for the young reflects the charm and skill of the author, who is notable for the rare literary quality of all she writes. Mary M. Russell, author of "Dramatized Bible Stories," says of the book: "It will be welcomed by all workers with boys and girls. The story is told in delightful, modern style. I know of no other book of this kind and believe there is a real need for it."

THE APPROACH TO THE NEW TESTAMENT. By Rev. Professor James Moffatt, D.D., D.Litt., Hon. M.A. (Oxon.). Author of "The New Testament: A New Translation," etc.

8vo. Net, $3.00

"There are factors in the intellectual, religious and social world which involve a new estimate of the New Testament. Advances have been made in literary and historical criticism and methods of research. We are learning how to approach this great literature from the proper angle and thus to see it in its true perspective.

"My instructions were, not to offer any results of research such as might appeal only to experts but to lay before the educated public an outline of the present position of the New Testament in the light of modern criticism—some brief statement of the general situation created by historical criticism which should also bring out the positive value of the New Testament literature for the world of today as a source of guidance in social reconstruction, so that readers might be enabled to recover or retain a sense of its lasting significance for personal faith and social ideals."—The Author.

THE BIBLICAL HISTORY OF THE HEBREWS TO THE CHRISTIAN ERA. By Rev. Professor F. J. Foakes-Jackson, D.D. Fellow of Jesus College, Cambridge, and Hon. Canon of Peterborough. Briggs Graduate Professor of Christian Institutions in Union Theological Seminary, New York.

8vo. Net, $3.00

"As it was at first so it remains a clear and well-written statement of the Old Testament History."—The Record.

"The book is delightfully written, and we envy the author the ease with which he puts his points."—Dublin Evening Mail.

"Arrests attention by its scholarship and style. The book has done well, but no better than it deserved. Now it appears in a fourth edition, with the notes revised and two new chapters added, bringing the History up to the New Testament times."—The Expositor Times.

Fourth Edition, enlarged, with maps. For this edition the notes have been revised and two entirely new chapters dealing with the times between the Testaments have been added.

THE TRIAL AND DEATH OF JESUS CHRIST. By Rev. James Stalker, D.D. Author of "The Preacher and His Models," "Imago Christi," etc. New Edition. 12mo. Net, $1.50

In this volume Dr. Stalker has supplemented his "Life of Jesus Christ" by a much more extended study of the closing period of the Saviour's earthly history. A new edition of this great book which will always remain a standard work on this supreme subject.

* DEVOTIONAL HOURS WITH THE BIBLE. By The Rev. J. R. Miller, D.D. New Edition. In eight volumes.. Each 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

It would be hard to name any American religious leader who could be ranked as the superior or even as the equal of Dr. Miller, as a devotional writer.

The method of Bible study followed in this series of books is described by Dr. Miller in his preface as a practical one. He says: "This is not a commentary in the usual sense. It is not an exegetical study of the Scriptures that is proposed. Its single aim is to suggest some of the spiritual and practical lessons which may be gathered from great passages."

BIBLE STORIES FOR CHILDREN

* BIBLE STORIES RETOLD FOR THE YOUNG. By Rev. Alexander R. Gordon, D.Litt., D.D.

A series of Bible stories for young people in Doctor Gordon's inimitable style, which will eventually embrace the entire range of Scripture. He has given many fresh renderings of Bible passages, which will make their meaning more simple and clear to the reader. When he has departed more widely from the common version, he has followed the oldest text as it has been handed down to us by the Greek translators.

* Volume One: Stories from Genesis (formerly published as THE ENCHANTED GARDEN) 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

The never-fading wonder of this inspired record of Man's beginnings is woven into a sheaf of dramatic and poetic tales that will be sure to fascinate the young reader and be very welcome to the older person, particularly the teacher, parent and minister looking for new story-telling material.

* Volume Two: The Exodus Period (formerly published as THE VICTORIOUS BANNER) 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

All the romance and the glamour of these ancient tales of sacred writ is set forth for the young with great skill and art. The Bible narrative is here carried on up to the conquest of Palestine. Parents, teachers, and preachers will welcome it to their story-telling library.

* Volume Three: Stories from Judges and Samuel. 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

"There is no part of the Bible more stirring than this one of the heroic age of the Judges and early kings of Israel. Rough deeds, no doubt, were done. But many a good blow was struck for God and right. And the record of these deeds is no mere tale of 'far off things, and battles long ago.' It is also a source of help and inspiration for the battles of today."—From the author's preface.

THE BIBLE: THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

* THE RETURN OF CHRIST. By Prof. Charles R. Erdman, D. D., of Princeton Theological Seminary. With an introduction by the Rev. J. Stuart Holden, D.D. 12*mo. Net,* $1.00

"The purpose of this book is to deepen conviction and to promote harmony of belief concerning the return of Christ."—The Author.

* THE SON OF MAN COMING IN HIS KINGDOM. By Rev. Alfred Gandier, D.D., LL.D. Principal of Knox College, Toronto. 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

A scholarly discussion of the Second Coming of Christ. The whole treatment illustrates the value of the historical method as against the controversial in New Testament study.

CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

* THE LORD OF THOUGHT. A study of the problems which confronted Jesus Christ and the solution He offered. By Miss Lily Dougall and the Rev. C. W. Emmet. 8*vo. Net,* $2.50

This book is a study of the religious beliefs current in Judaism in the time of Christ and the originality of His teaching in relation to them. It is an apologetic on new lines for the uniqueness of Christianity and the supremacy of our Lord in the realm of thought.

* THE REALITY OF JESUS. By J. H. Chambers Macaulay, M.A. 12*mo. Net,* $1.75

The author finds the reality of life in the reality of Jesus. He writes with a faith that is overmastering and a brilliancy that sweeps the reader along in wondering enjoyment. He says "The Mind of Christ is the greatest fact with which the mind of man can come in contact. Multitudes today are adrift, uncertain, unhappy, and inefficient in life, for lack of reality of faith. Jesus recreates belief in God and belief in men. He gives to life its joy, its duty and its destiny. Within the shadow of the world's restlessness lurks the Reality of Jesus, and the demand for a religion adequate to life is the conscious or unconscious quest of man for the Reality of God today."

* THE DOCTRINE OF SIN. By Reginald Stewart Moxon, M.A. 8*vo. Net,* $3.00

A critical and historical presentation of the various concepts of sin as held in early Christian, mediaeval, and modern times. Professor James Moffatt says: "Mr. Moxon gives a most competent and clear outline of the various doctrinal positions from the early centuries down to the present day. . . . He knows every winding of the river." In the last two chapters he suggests a new treatment of the subject in the light of modern psychology, showing how our various original instincts may be "sublimated"; that is, re-directed into socially helpful and ideal channels. "A great book," declares Dr. Hastings, in the Expository Times, "a searching, truthful, courageous book."

* THE ESSENTIALS OF CHRISTIANITY. By Rev. Professor Henry C. Sheldon, D.D. Author of "New Testament Theology," "Pantheistic Dilemmas," etc. Professor Emeritus of Systematic Theology, in Boston University. 12*mo. Net,* $2.00

A popular treatment of the great doctrines of the Christian faith. The book is intended primarily, not for ministers, although ministers will find it most stimulating, but for laymen, young and old, who feel the need for help in understanding the intellectual foundations of Christianity.

* EVOLUTION AT THE BAR By Philip Mauro. Author of "The Number of Man," etc. 12*mo. Net,* 75 cents

Evolution and its relation to Christian thought is the burning question of the hour in religious circles. No one is better able to meet the issue from the fundamental Christian position than the scholarly author of this able book. It is concise, logical and convincing.

Amos R. Wells says: "We have never read a better or stronger book in opposition to evolution than 'Evolution at the Bar.' The book is timely and should be read by every Christian that really wants light on this matter."

* THE PERMANENCE OF CHRISTIANITY. By Rev. Thomas Wilson, B.D. The Hastie Lectures.

New Edition, 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

The publication in the United States of these lectures in defense of Christian belief comes at a most opportune time. Dr. Wilson says in his Introduction: "There is a clamant need to understand the nature, claims, and benefits of the foundation truths of our Christian religion. It is more important than ever that the Fundamentals of the Christian Faith should be stated in their naked simplicity. . . . Religion and science to be of value must each be true and truth is one. They are not enemies at daggers drawn —they are co-adjutors in the service of truth."

*THE MEANING OF THE CROSS. By Prof. Edward Grubb, M.A. Author of "The Bible: Its Nature and Inspiration."

12*mo. Net,* $1.50

Mr. Grubb, one of the most influential of religious writers in the Society of Friends, puts together here the substance of a recent course of lectures. He gives a useful summary of the meaning and doctrine of Atonement in the Old and New Testaments, in early and mediaeval, reformation, and modern times. A last chapter suggests the factors which Mr. Grubb thinks must be the true solution of the problem—his view being in some ways a development of the Abelardian doctrine, revolutionary in the twelfth century, which rejected the Ransom Theory in favor of the Moral Influence Theory. But Mr. Grubb adapts it to modern thought, to scientific psychology, to Ritschl's insistence on a solution that is social; and comprising in the conception of Atonement, the revelation of the character of God, our identification with his will, deliverance from sin rather than punishment, and salvation by God's gift of love to us."—London Times Literary Supplement.

*THE DEATH OF CHRIST. By Rev. Prof. James Denney, D.D.

Doctor Mackintosh has here set forth the reasons for Christian faith in a fresh and trenchant way. His book is a notable addition to present-day apologetics. It will rekindle hope and reassure the doubting and be re-echoed in many an address and sermon which its reading will inspire.

THE UNIVERSALITY OF CHRIST. By Right Reverend William Temple, Bishop of Manchester. 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

"Dr. Temple is not only a theologian and a philosopher who already ranks, but also an explosive personality afire with love of the Church and the people. He escapes all classification. If he is a theorist, he has also proved that he has an amazing capacity for affairs.

"His latest book, a small one of great significance, consists of four lectures delivered to the recent Christian Student Conference. The notes of the book are simplicity and a certain originality in presentment. It is written with lucidity and force. It may be commended as an excellent and very sincere piece of apologetic, which minds, young minds especially, perplexed and harassed in regard to fundamentals, may perpend with great benefit."—The Guardian.

"These lectures were framed with a view to suggesting answers to problems specially prominent in the minds of Christian Students at this time."—The Author.

CHURCH AND PARISH WORK

*
HOW TO MAKE THE CHURCH GO. By Rev. William H. Leach. Minister of the Walden Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, New York.

12mo. Net, $1.50

From the point of view taken in this brilliant and original book, the minister is an executive at the head of a large organization. The author has sought to lighten his burdens and aid him in the solution of his problems, through a common sense application of the psychological principles which have proved so helpful in the business field. We believe that no other book in this field has approached these problems from the psychological standpoint.

EVANGELISTIC AIDS

*PASTOR AND EVANGELIST. By Rev. Charles L. Goodell, D.D. Author of "Heralds of a Passion," etc. Secretary of the Commission on Evangelism and Life Service of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

12*mo.* Net, $1.35

The emphasis to-day is on pastoral evangelism. Heretofore the pastor has relied too much perhaps on the professional evangelist. His own abilities in this direction have oft-times lain dormant to his own detriment and that of his church. Dr. Goodell who is universally recognized as a master of the art of evangelism, sets forth in this arresting and suggestive volume the ways whereby the minister may become his own evangelist. The great possibilities, the deep joys, and the large rewards are described by the author in his own impressive way. It is a book of rare inspiration and practical suggestion for every minister of the Gospel.

*EVANGELISTIC TALKS. By Gipsy Smith. With a foreword by Rev. James I. Vance, D.D.

12*mo.* Net, $1.25

The addresses in this volume were delivered at a series of noon-day meetings in Nashville, early in 1922. They reveal Gipsy Smith's genius in an extraordinary way, especially to those acquainted with the circumstances of their origin. Each day the evangelist was teamed with a local pastor, who spoke first for ten minutes on a theme of his own selection. Gipsy Smith then followed and without any opportunity for previous preparation delivered an address which invariably fitted closely and logically into the theme of the first speaker. "With a mental grasp swift, accurate, and original; with a command of simple words full of color and action; with a delivery free from all tricks and affectation; and with an eloquence sweeping from tears to smiles, mastering the mind, fusing the passions, capturing the will, Gipsy Smith in these impromptu addresses reached the height of pulpit power."—From the Foreword by Dr. Vance.

*AN EVANGELISTIC CYCLOPEDIA. By Rev. G. B. F. Hallock, D.D., Editor of "The Expositor."

8*vo.* Net, $3.00

Also suggestions as to the need of evangelism, pastoral evangelism, vocational evangelism, Lenten evangelism, and Decision Day, to which are added ten great revival sermons.

"Most heartily can this work of Dr. Hallock be recommended. . . It has not only 'feathers for arrows,' but it has out of Dr. Hallock's own soul, that which will put a man on his knees pleading for souls as John Knox pleaded for Scotland, and kindle a hot heart in both preacher and hearer with the fires of the Holy Ghost."—From the Foreword by Rev. Joseph A. Vance, D.D.

With an introductory chapter on the History of African Missions he writes consecutively of Robert Moffat, David Livingstone, John Mackenzie, Stewart of Lovedale, Laws of Livingstonia, Mackay of Uganda, Grenfell of the Congo, Coillard of the Zambesi, and Mary Slessor of Calabar. The material is so arranged that it can be presented by any group of young people, even in a church which has few facilities for dramatics. One chapter is devoted to suggestions for costumes and scenery with directions for making and providing them at small expense. The aim of the book is to give young people a chance to serve by helping them to present in an effective way, something of the meaning of world-wide missions.

* BACK TO THE LONG GRASS. My Link with Livingstone. By Dan Crawford. Author of "Thinking Black."

Fully Illustrated. 8*vo. Net,* $3.00

At long last Livingstone has found his Boswell or been found of him—Dan Crawford! To enrich the library which has gathered round Livingstone there comes this book, which is Livingstone. To truly interpret a man like David Livingstone demands that the writer shall be of the same big, heroic build and mighty, pulsing faith. And such a man is Dan Crawford. Could one be better fitted to give us the very soul of David Livingstone; a dour, hard-bitten, lovable Scot, a man who has given his life to and for Africa, and in this book has given us the record of a pilgrim's progress, walking foot for foot every mile of Livingstone's last agonizing journey. Step by step we go with him and follow after Livingstone, with our eyes wide open to the land about us and the men we meet. It is a great book of travel written on trek, when incident and speech, thought and mood, were warm and fresh. Again, Dan Crawford is an inspired grammarian who loves the music, the life, and the brightness of the African speech, and reveals for us the soul of the native through the intricacies of the native speech. And interspersed among these pages you will find enough and to spare of hair-raising experiences, sufficient to satisfy any healthy lad in his Red Indian stage.

A look into the real heart of China. The average tourist travels from seaport to seaport and sees even less of China herself than a visitor to New York often sees of America. It is only in the interior where travel is a difficult adventure, that Chinese life is to be seen and the changing mettle of China to be felt.

Unlike some tourists, Miss Kemp was a careful and sympathetic observer of Christian missions, and gives many intelligent and most interesting descriptions of the wonderful work they are doing for the Chinese people.

THE BOOK OF MISSIONARY HEROES. By Basil Mathews. Author of "The Quest of Liberty," "Livingstone the Pathfinder," etc.

12mo. Net, $1.50

In thirty-two stories, Mr. Mathews depicts with enthralling realism the thrilling adventures and daring deeds of the great heroes of sea and land who have faced perils among wild beasts and wilder men to tell of the love of God. From St. Paul to Raymond Lull, from St. Francis to Livingstone and Mackay and John Williams and Henry Martyn, with many others, the author tells the immortal stories of these knights of the cross in a way that will not only completely hold the interest of the youthful reader but will indelibly impress upon his mind the heroic character of missionary service.

A GENTLEMAN IN PRISON. By Tokichi Ishii. Translated by Caroline Macdonald. With a Foreword by Rev. John Kelman, D.D., LL.D.

Illustrated. 12*mo. Net,* $1.75

"The tale Miss Macdonald told us, of which this book is a translation from the Japanese, is indeed one of the world's great stories. There is in it something of the glamor of The Arabian Nights, and something of the naked hellishness of Poe's Tales of Mystery. There is also the most realistic vision I have ever seen of Jesus Christ finding one of the lost. You see, as you read, the matchless tenderness of His eyes and the Almighty power of the gentlest hands that ever drew a lost soul out of misery into peace."—From Doctor Kelman's Foreword.

12*mo. Net,* $2.00

The great preacher and expositor discusses certain outstanding Bible types of prayer, such as those of Moses, Elijah, Job, Paul and Christ, and in other sermons leads us into the consideration of some aspects and methods of prayer, such as costliness, concentration, reverence, the pleading note, the forgiving spirit, and the endless quest. "It is titanic," writes Rev. J. M. E. Ross, "colossal—nothing like it in the whole literature of the subject."

*WHEN GOD AND MAN MEET. By Rev. William J. Young, D.D. Professor of Missions, Emory University. The McDonell Lectures for 1921 delivered at Scarritt Bible and Training School, Kansas City, Mo. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Dr. Young is widely known as having a peculiar gift in conducting the devotional period at religious gatherings. He believes that the service of worship in the Church, instead of being merely preliminary to the sermon, should be indeed the hour "when God and man meet."

The author shows what hindrances stand in the way of meeting God at such times and what things may help the approach. He pictures the joy to be gained in the quiet hours of both public and private devotion. In a very new and helpful way the book will serve as a guide to multitudes in their quest for a sense of the reality of God.

*"THESE THREE." Devotional Thoughts For the Quiet Hour. By Rev. George H. Knight. New Edition, 12mo. Net, $1.00

The author says in his preface, "This book is an endeavor to utilize for devotional and practical purposes, some texts of the Divine Word in which Christian privilege, or Christian duty, or Christian danger is presented in a three-fold way." RELIGION IN LITERATURE

*MESSAGES FROM MASTER MINDS. By Rev. J. W. G. Ward. Author of "Parables for Little People." 12mo. Net, $1.50

A series of literary studies from the spiritual standpoint by the minister of Tollington Park, London, where the author succeeded Dr. Campbell Morgan and Dr. Arthur C. Hill. Mr. Ward is already widely known, both as preacher and author on both sides of the Atlantic.

In this volume, Mr. Ward sets forth the essential spiritual message of such notable writers as Tennyson, Coleridge, Tolstoy, Carlyle, Lowell, Longfellow, Browning, Francis Thompson, Emerson, Stevenson, Arnold, Ruskin, and others. Coupled with an interesting biographical sketch, the heart of each writer's message is deftly brought out by quotation and exposition.

The book is a very original contribution to the spiritual interpretation of English literature, and will be a most welcome addition to the material for "sermons about books" which preachers and public speakers are constantly seeking.

* POETS AND PURITANS. By T. R. Glover, D.D. Author of "The Jesus of History," "The Pilgrim," etc. Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Public Orator in the University. 8vo. Net, $4.00

The real business of the critic, says Dr. Glover, is to find out what is right with a great work of art, not what is wrong. That is the inspiration of this volume of intimate, personal studies, leisurely scrutinies of great men who are worth understanding. The essays, nine in number, deal with English writers. Among them are such great religious seers as Milton, Bunyan, and Cowper. In each case the endeavor is to realize a personality—to see a man in an environment face to face with problems in art or religion, or both. In short to see him in relation to human life and to let him speak for himself.

Because there is so much material that is already available for the recreation of children, "It Is To Laugh" was written primarily for the recreation of adults, although almost every one of the games and stunts described can be used for children. Again, there is so much available material for the athletic type of game that it has been thought desirable to provide in this volume indoor games which are of the social rather than the athletic type and which can be used either in the home or in large recreation halls. There are games for large groups and small, for dinner parties, for church social events, for community affairs, games and stunts for almost any kind of social gathering, with one whole chapter devoted to out-of-door and picnic programs.

RELIGIOUS ESSAYS

12mo. Net, $1.60

Starting from the modern critical standpoint, the author thinks his way to a new appreciation of Christianity, and a regaining of Christian experience. He discusses such great problems as those of personality, prayer, the person of Christ, and the atonement by Christ's death, in the light of his fundamental hypothesis that faith is implicit in all the higher activities of human life.

*
HELLENISM and CHRISTIANITY. By Edwyn Bevan. Honorary Fellow of New College, Oxford.

8vo. Net, $3.00

A series of essays dealing with such questions as: Can the East never be influenced by Western Civilization? How far was Christianity derived from Greek-Oriental mystery religions? What foundation is there for the hope of continuous progress? What is the relation between Christian faith and Western rationalism? What is the actual position of Christianity as a tenable view of the universe at the present day?

"Mr. Bevan is one of our finest scholars, a learned man, an acute critic, and an excellent writer. The book is a noble vindication of Christianity from the standpoint of a devout and highly accomplished layman."—The London Times Literary Supplement.

THE PILGRIM. By T. R. Glover. Author of "The Jesus of History," "Jesus in the Experience of Men," "The Nature and Purpose of a Christian Society," etc.

12mo. Net, $1.75

"Few English writers on religious matters seem able to serve the unbiased and thoughtful reader so well as Dr. Glover, and many will gratefully avail themselves of the assistance of a layman who shows that he knows how they think and feel about religion, and can interpret the meaning of Christianity in terms they can readily understand."—Times Literary Supplement.

"The work of a scholar gifted with wide literary knowledge. We shall value this book most for the wonderful papers in which the author develops the theme which he has already set before us in his 'Jesus of History.' "—The Challenge.

"We strongly commend Dr. Glover's book to those who wish to study the power of Christ in the life and thought of men."—Canon Barnes of Westminster Abbey.

THE NATURE AND PURPOSE OF A CHRISTIAN SOCIETY. The Swarthmore Lecture for 1912. By T. R. Glover. Author of "The Jesus of History," "Jesus in the Experience of Men," "The Pilgrim," etc.

12mo. Net, $1.00

Through some strange oversight this remarkable contribution to the discussion of the character and nature of the Christian Church has not heretofore been published in America. It is in its third edition in England and should find a large audience in the United States, where the author's "The Jesus of History" and "Jesus in the Experience of Men" have been so widely read.

LIFE AND HISTORY. By Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D.D. Minister at the Central Methodist Church, Detroit.

12mo. Net, $1.50

The papers which make up this volume constitute an appraisal of the intellectual situation in America following the world upheaval. They seek to find sources of permanent idealism in a period of reaction, to express the point of view of a man busy with books and men and to understand the forces of contemporary life. One may state the position of the author in the words "Evangelical Humanism." The author would like to believe that in some measure Athens and Jerusalem meet in friendly fashion in his own mind and in what he writes.

RELIGIOUS HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY

*PROGRESS IN RELIGION TO THE CHRISTIAN ERA. By T. R. Glover, M.A., D.D., LL.D. Author of "The Jesus of History," "The Pilgrim," etc. The Wilde Lectures for 1922, delivered at the Lowell Institute, Boston. 12mo. Net, $2.00

A well-known editor in reporting these lectures said: "Dr. Glover's lectures exceeded all expectations. . . . He impresses the listener as an intellectual athlete with a surprising range of exact information and an unusually individualistic method of interpretation and power of statement. In accuracy of observation he is a sort of genius. What comes to you in his discourse is like the overflow of a great reservoir."

The subjects of Dr. Glover's lectures are:

BOOK ONE. Early Man and His Environment. Homer. The Beginnings of Greek Criticism. Earlier Israel. Hebrew Prophets. The Great Century of Greece.

BOOK TWO. Plato. After Alexander. The Stoics. The Jews after the Exile. The Gods of the Orient. Roman Religion. Judaism after Antiochus. The Victory of the Orient.

PRINCES OF THE CHURCH. By Sir W. Robertson Nicoll, M.A., LL.D. Author of "Reunion in Eternity." Editor of "The Expositor's Treasury of Children's Sermons," "The Expositor's Dictionary of Texts," etc. 8vo. Net, $3.00

PREACHING IN LONDON. By Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, D.D., Litt.D. Minister of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York. Author of "The Sword of the Spirit," "The Eternal Christ." "Lincoln and Herndon," etc. 12mo. Net, $1.50

The author was known as "A Preacher-Ambassador" when minister at the historic City Temple, London.

A noted editor has spoken of Dr. Newton as "An Interpreter of England and America to each other." He was never more happily such an "interpreter" than in the pages of this volume, of which he says, by way of introduction, "The City Temple ministry was undertaken as a kind of unofficial ambassadorship of goodwill from the Churches of America to the Churches of England, and as an adventure in Anglo-American friendship. It was a great privilege to stand at the cross-roads of the centuries at such a time, a teacher of Christian faith and an interpreter of the spirit and genius of our country to the motherland. The Diary records observations, impressions and reflections of men, women and movements, of actors still on the stage of affairs, of issues still unsettled, and of beauty spots in one of the loveliest lands on earth."

This is truly an unusual portrayal of religious ideas and moral ideals. The riddle of life, the function of spirit and soul, the place of reason, ambition, adversity, and death in the scheme of things human and the life beyond, are all considered in the light of science, revelation, and common sense.

*WHEN JESUS WROTE ON THE GROUND. By Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones, D.D. 12mo. Net, $1.50

A collection of sermons by the noted Detroit preacher. The Christian Century says of him: "Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones is a gracious gentleman of the eighteenth century filling a twentieth century pulpit. He is a very modern man alive with social passion. You feel that Jones goes to his library not so much for thoughts as for companionship and he comes into his pulpit dripping with honey from many a hive. There is a mellow comradeliness about his speech which has its own charm. Then he is not afraid of a stately period such as one of his eighteenth century friends could have enjoyed. The Man of Galilee is a very real and inspiring presence to this minister, and he leaves his hearers not without a sense of the unseen presence in their midst."

*SERMONS FOR DAYS WE OBSERVE. By Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, D.D. Minister of Central Church, Chicago. 12mo. Net, $1.50

This beautiful volume of meditations reveals the secret of a man's joyful confidence in Christ. Dr. Marcus Dods was in his daily work and conversation a living evidence of Christianity. "He was a Christian," wrote Sir William Robertson Nicoll, "in the full sense of the word, and all that was pure and high in him was reinforced by faith, by prayer, by the practice of the presence of God, by the imitation of Christ." These meditations have not a little of the fragrance of St. Augustine; they are rich in spiritual experience, and together they form a devotional book of rare beauty and of great value.

*CATHEDRAL AND UNIVERSITY AND OTHER SERMONS. By the Right Rev. H. C. G. Moule, D.D., Bishop of Durham. Author of "Outlines of Christian Doctrine" and the volumes on "Romans," "Ephesians," "Philippians," and "Colossians" in the Expositor's Bible.

12*mo. Net,* $1.50

"This is a book of very real preaching of a kind not often heard or read. It is so simple, so real, so direct, so human. . . . I like the book because it is clean off the track of conventional preaching and the further we get off that beaten track and yet keep the essential genius and purpose of preaching, the better for us all. Not in years have I read a book or met a man with such a sense of reality—and that is the chief thing. It is religion dipped and dyed in the stuff and color of human life. Unless I miss my guess, this book will have a wide appeal, especially among young preachers."—Rev. Joseph Fort Newton.

*THE ART OF PREACHING IN THE LIGHT OF ITS HISTORY. By Rev. Edwin Charles Dargan, D.D., LL.D. Author of "The History of Preaching." 12mo. Net, $2.00

Some books on Homiletics refer to its history; a few scholars, chiefly German, have treated of the history of Homiletics for various periods and countries; but no known volume treats of the subject as a whole as it is presented in this book. It is therefore unique among books of its class treating the theory of preaching as historically developed from its origin to its present status.

The author who was trained under the great Broadus, master of the homiletic art, is himself noted as a great preacher and trainer of preachers.

The book consists of lectures delivered before the students and Junior clergy in the Divinity School of the University of Dublin, when the author was Professor of Pastoral Theology in that institution.

SOCIAL INTERPRETATION OF CHRISTIANITY

*FACING THE CRISIS. A Study in Present Day Social and Religious Problems. By Sherwood Eddy. The Fondren Lectures for 1922. 12mo. Net, $1.00

These lectures delivered before student bodies bear an urgent message for every thinking Christian who is concerned with the tasks set before the Church by the social and industrial conditions in the world today. It is a vital, compelling book by the author of "Everybody's World" who is doing so much to "Make the World Christian."

*
JESUS CHRIST AND THE WORLD TODAY. By Grace Hutchins and Anna Rochester.

12mo. Net, $1.25

What is the relation of individual conduct to the root evils of the industrial world? What can we learn from the decisions and experience of Jesus in relation to the social problems of his day? The authors of this arresting book have made a distinctive contribution to social thinking in this fresh analysis of these questions.
"I want this book to do for many what it has done for me. I think it is truly a clarion call. It is profoundly disquieting—as it should be."—Miss Adelaide T. Case, instructor in Religious Education, Teachers College, Columbia University.

*
CHRISTIAN JUSTICE. By Norman L. Robinson, M.A.

12mo. Net, $2.00

Says the London Times: "Mr. Robinson's discussion, well thought out and developed, starts from the assertion that 'justice has never been baptized into Christ.' It must rest far more on a valuation of personality. Following the teachings of Christ, it must be redemptive, not retributive; and basing himself on this principle, Mr. Robinson insists on three principles learned from the Cross—the recognition of fellowship; an eye for the future even more than the past; an inward view of sin not as a matter of isolated acts but as seated in the personality. In a final chapter—'By way of Application'—he projects his principles over a wider field, calling for a greater humanizing of our institutions; a deeper spirit of social service; the renunciation of war; the reform alike of prisons and slums; a real partnership in industry; the elimination of functionless or parasite elements, and education for freedom through freedom, remembering that freedom without service is an illusion."

*
THE QUEST OF INDUSTRIAL PEACE. By Rev. W. M. Clow, D.D. Principal and Professor of Pastoral Theology and Christian Ethics, United Free Church College, Glasgow. Author of "The Cross in Christian Experience," "Christ in the Social Order," "The Day of the Cross," etc.

12mo. Net, $1.75

A series of fourteen lectures on the industrial situation, delivered at the General Assembly's College, Belfast. An exhaustive and penetrating discussion of every phase of this vital subject from the Christian standpoint, quite as applicable to conditions in America as in Great Britain. We are once more placed under obligation to Dr. Clow for an able and brilliant work. The chapter titles are:

The Elements of the Industrial Strife.
The Economic Justification of Capitalism.
The Moral Values of Capitalism.
The Indictment Against Capitalism.
The Crimes of the Capitalist—and of Other Men.
Utopian Communism.
The Co-operative Movement.
Marxian Socialism.
Anarchism, Syndicalism and Guild Socialism.
The Nationalization of Industry.
The Gateway of Peace.
An Industrial Covenant.

*VICTORY OVER VICTORY. By Rev. John A. Hutton, D.D. Author of "That the Ministry Be Not Blamed," "The Proposal of Jesus," etc. 12*mo. Net,* $1.75

St. Paul in a great passage in the Eighth Chapter of Romans, uses the phrase, "We do more than conquer." It is from that phrase that the author takes his title. To say that the Word of God, as we believe, is a living thing, is to say that its accent varies. In the view of the author the very Word of God to-day is, that there is no recovery for men or for the nations of the earth, except by the hard way of forgiveness; that history itself is forgiveness, and that the spirit which resists the temptations of power is the saving salt of the human race. Such is the thesis, sometimes explicit, sometimes suggested, underlying this book.

CHRIST AND INTERNATIONAL LIFE. By Edith Picton-Turbervill, O.B.E. With Introduction by the Right Hon. Lord Robert Cecil. 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

The author's theme is—as phrased and accepted by Lord Robert Cecil—that "our national policy, both internal and external, must be Christianized; that, in other words, Christian morality must in its essence be the guide of our national conduct." It is a thesis that has often been urged by divines and others; the author's eloquent pages vindicate it with much independence and from new angles. Miss Picton Tubervill is known the world over for her work with the W. C. T. U. and the Y. W. C. A.

WHAT'S BEST WORTH SAYING: A Present Day Discussion of Christian Faith and Practice. By Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D. Author of "The Untried Door," etc. 12*mo. Net,* $1.25

Coventry Patmore says, "In divinity and love, what's best worth saying can't be said." Most of us try to express ourselves either on one subject or the other. Dr. Roberts' attempt to say just the right word about "divinity" is what might be expected from one whom the London Times speaks of as "one of the most able and helpful of Presbyterian writers in the church today." This new volume of present day beliefs and practices has that same frankness and insight that made "The Untried Door" so acceptable to Christian students who appreciate untrammeled and original discussion of religious problems. The author writes in a pleasant, informal way on "Creeds," "Faith," "Evil," "The Cross," "God Above and God Within," "God as a Society," "Spiritual Freedom," "The Joys of Life," "Love Among the Ruins."

PROBLEMS IN PAN AMERICANISM. By Samuel Guy Inman. Author of "Intervention in Mexico," "Through Santo Domingo and Haiti," etc. 8*vo. Net,* $2.00

Pan Americanism is the next great international question for North America to face. The Disarmament Conference and the Problems of the Pacific will soon be replaced in public interest by the Fifth Pan American Conference, soon to be held in Santiago, Chile, and the Problems of the American Continent. That Conference will make or break Inter-American friendship, which today is so delicately poised. What have similar Conferences done in the past and why have they not accomplished more? What are the obstacles to Pan American friendship, generally the least understood by North Americans of all international problems? What practical and immediate steps should be taken to bring about cordial relations on the American continent? These questions are authoritatively answered in "Problems in Pan Americanism."

THE UNTRIED DOOR. By Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D. Author of "What's Best Worth Saying," etc. 12*mo. Net,* $1.50

"The power of this discussion lies in the combination of the inner and outer elements of religion, or better still, its elimination of that false distinction between the spiritual and the practical which has come near to wrecking our religion and ruining our world." —New York Nation.

"This book is an attempt to discover the mind of Jesus for today, by one of the most able and helpful of Presbyterian writers."—London Times.

AFRICAN ADVENTURES.

The famous author of "Black Sheep" which so charmed Atlantic Monthly readers has given to these stories of African life that same fascinating realism—that same wonderful atmosphere which stamped her previous work as that of a literary genius.

Boys and girls, and grownups as well, will be transported across the seas and see things through the eyes of the children of the dark continent. The reader's interest in these simple, child-like people is irresistibly aroused and missions in Africa become a lasting reality.
